BRYAN PLEDGES US TO WORK FOR PEACE

Purpose of Administration to Sign Arbitration Treaties with the Nations.

TO CLOSE UP ALL GAPS

Lord Weardale and Representatives of Canada and Australia Add Assurances.

The cause of peace brought together at a dinner to the foreign delegates of the International Conference last night a distinguished company of men of renown. Statesmen, diplomats and leaders in the many walks of civic life, hailing from many lands, assembled in the Grand Ballroom of the Hotel Astor.

Secretary of State William J. Bryan made it an occasion to spread broadcast this country's protest against war. Lord Weardale voiced Great Britain's plea for lasting peace among all Nations. Both speakers addressed themselves to the rulers and peoples of all lands. Charm was lent to the affair by the presence of women prominent in society and philanthropic work.

The room was decorated with the National colors of Great Britain, Australia, Belgium, Canada, Newfoundland, and the United States. Preceding the dinner, which began at 7:30 o'clock, was a reception which had all of the brilliancy of an affair of state. The march into the dining hall was led by Joseph H. Choate, the toastmaster, escorting Ambassador da Gama of Brazil, and Secretary Bryan was with John A. Stewart. Cornelius Vanderbilt escorted Lord Weardale, and William B. Howland walked with Earl Stanhope. John D. Crimmins was with Sir George Houstoun Reid.

The brief reception furnished opportunity for presentations which started the spirit of good-fellowship that prevailed throughout the evening. It expressed itself when Mr. Choate, who was in his happiest mood, referred to Secretary Bryan as a man who had labored earnestly in the vineyard of peace for many years. Bowing gravely to the Secretary of State, who had in front of him a bottle of grape juice while others' glasses were sparkling with wine, he asked forgiveness for picturing him as "laboring in a vineyard." Secretary Bryan got back promptly at Mr. Choate by declaring that both drew their beverage from the same source, but Mr. Choate's was fermented while Mr. Bryan's was unfermented.

In the Places of Honor.

The other speakers of the evening were Sir Edmund Walker, Sir George Houston Reid, and Judge George Gray. Only a few of the delegation from the foreign countries sat on the dais, overhung with a festoon of flags. There were three big tables occupied by distinguished men, arranged in front of the dais. Elaborate menus bore on the front page a facsimile of the seal of the American Committee which gave the dinner. The third page had a picture of the Carthusian monastery, where the Treaty of Ghent was signed on Christmas Eve, 1814.

At the right of Mr. Choate sat these guests:

M. da Gama, Ambassador of Brazil; William J. Bryan, Lord Weardale, Sir George Houston Reid, Federico Mejia, Minister of Salvador; Sir Arthur Lawley, Dr. Arizaga, Minister of Ecuador; C. de Bruyne, Federico Alfonzo Pezet, Minister of Peru; William Alden Smith, Eugene H. Outerbridge, Gov. Otto Eberhardt of Minnesota, Rear Admiral Aaron Ward, E. Henry Lacombe, Capt. Albert Gleaves, U. S. N.; Alton B. Parker, Andrew Carnegie, Robert Bacon, and William Loeb.

On the presiding officer's left sat Sir Arthur Cecil Spring-Rice, British Ambassador; Earl Stanhope, Sir Herbert Eustace Maxwell, Ignacio Calderon, Minister of Bolivia; Raoul Dandurand, Theodore E. Burton, Sir Edmund Walker, Gov. Charles R. Miller of Delaware, Arthur L. Sefton, Premier of Alberta; Judge George Gray, of Delaware; Almet F. Jenks, Courtenay Walter Bennett, British Consul General; John A. Stewart, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the American Peace Centenary Committee; James B. Preston, Mayor of Baltimore; Walter H. Page, newly appointed Ambassador to the Court of St. James; President Nicholas Murray Butler, Henry White, and George von L. Meyer.

Toasts to King and President.

Many boxes overlooking the scene were occupied at the conclusion of the dinner. Drinking to the first toast, a health to President Wilson and King George, the assemblage stood while the national anthems of each country were played by orchestra and pipe organ. Here and there throughout the room could be heard the softly spoken words "To the King, God bless him," as British subjects emptied their glasses.

A letter was read from Cardinal Gibbons, in which he appealed to Britannia and Columbia to join hands across the Atlantic so that their outstretched arms would form a sacred arch of peace that would excite the admiration of the nations. In his introductory remarks Mr. Choate said:

"This banquet, attractive and glittering as it is, is only a dress rehearsal. We have been evolving a plan for celebrating a very wonderful event that occurred on Christmas Eve, 1814. That was the anniversary of the day when the Prince of Peace came into the world to preach and establish the gospel of good will and kindness and love to all mankind. We are here especially tonight to give a cordial welcome to the representatives of the various sections of the British Empire and the dominions beyond the seas. We are also here to welcome and celebrate the presence of that distinguished man, the Secretary of State of the United States. We in this country are willing to agree that there is much of sentiment in peace, but we have found in former times that sentiment sometimes very soon hardens into public opinion, and that public opinion rules the press and the world, Governors Presidents, Congressmen, and all."

Speaking in lighter vein, Mr. Choate said that this country had had constant quarrels with England, where lives, a cantankerous and fighting lot of people.

"But every one of our quarrels we have settled amicably," he continued, "and we were better friends later. Our good nature has covered and completely overwhelmed and cured their pugnacity. We have not had occasion to quarrel with other nations."

Bryan For the Administration.

Secretary Bryan was then introduced and received an enthusiastic welcome. In several boxes within his view were representatives of Japan, who listened intently to his speech. Mr. Bryan said:

"I am glad to bring to this gathering the greetings of our President, and to assure you that he is in most cordial sympathy with the purpose that has brought us together. I feel honored to speak for our Government and in its behalf. What I shall say to you will be in harmony with that which has been said. I am a believer in peace. I am

4,000 MILES BY WIRELESS.

Nauen, Germany, Communicates with the Station at Sayville, L. I.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, May 10.—The Berlin correspondent of The Daily Express says that the wireless station at Nauen to-day succeeded in establishing communication with the station at Sayville, L. I., at a distance of over 4,000 miles.

The wireless tower at Sayville is owned by the Atlantic Communication Company, of 90 West Street. None of the company's officials could be reached last night, and the report that Sayville had been in communication with Nauen could not be verified. The operator at Sayville declined to discuss the matter over the telephone, and added that the chief engineer had received instructions to give out no information whatever.

Considerable interest was aroused in August of last year, when the wireless plant at Sayville was still in process of construction, by a dispatch from Washington, which said that the staton was being observed by the Navy Department and the Department of Commerce and Labor, because the powerful wireless station, which practically dominates New York Harbor, was reported to be controlled by a corporation reputed to be under the influence of the German Government.

Manager A. E. Debec, of the Atlantic Communication Company, said at that time his company had no connection with the German government, and that, while there was some German capital in the enterprise, the German capitalists were interested only in the same way as English capitalists might be in the Marconi Company.

Experts here expressed some doubt that the wireless record had been broken. As long ago as November, 1911, Marconi sent the first wireless dispatch from Italy, in the form of greetings to THE NEW YORK TIMES, across 4,000 miles of space.

NAVY OFFICER A SUICIDE.

Lieut. Richard Hill Found Dead After Visit to His Fiancee.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, May 9.—The body of Lieut. Richard Hill, U. S. N., was found in his room at Mrs. N. W. Bolling's boarding house, on Hanover Street, this afternoon with a bullet wound through the heart. A revolver lay beside the body, and, while the reason for the tragedy is a mystery, all circumstances indicate that the officer committed suicide. He had been dead more than twenty-four hours when the body was found.

The engagement of Lieut. Hill to Miss Henrietta Erwin, daughter of Major James B. Erwin, U. S. A., had been announced within the last two weeks, and Lieut. Hill returned from a visit to his fiancée in Washington yesterday morning. He left Annapolis for Washington on Wednesday afternoon, and when he returned yesterday morning he went to his room. No one about the house saw him after that. When he failed to appear at the Naval Post-Graduate School to-day, a message of inquiry was sent to the boarding house. The door of Lieut. Hill's room was forced and the body found.

The officer had left no writing to explain his act.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Announcement of the engagement of Lieut. Richard Hill to Miss Henrietta Erwin was made here last Saturday morning in the columns of a military service paper. The wedding was set for November, when her father, Major James B. Erwin, Inspector General of Cavalry in the Philippines, intended to return to this country.

Miss Erwin is the third daughter of Major Erwin. Mrs. Erwin was Miss Isabel Doan of St. Louis. She and her daughter returned to Washington from the Philippines recently and are at the home of Major Walter M. Gordon. Miss Erwin's friends said to-night that the engagement had not been broken, and that the cause of Lieut. Hill's act was a mystery to her.

Lieut. Hill came to Washington on Wednesday and took Miss Erwin to the Chevy Chase Club that evening. They dined and attended a dance there. It had been the purpose of Mrs. Erwin and her daughter to go to Annapolis next Wednesday to visit Lieut. Hill.

Lieut. Hill was a native of Iowa. He was born there April 17, 1884, and entered the Naval Academy in 1903. While at the Academy he commanded one of the brigade battalions and was on the rifle team. He met Miss Erwin in the Orient while serving as an aid on the staff of Rear Admiral Murdock, then Commander in Chief of the Asiatic fleet. Afterward he commanded the torpedo boat destroyer Barry, and recently was assigned to the torpedo boat destroyer Chauncey, which is in reserve at the Naval Academy.

SPANKED FOR SAVING BOY.

Mother Thought Her Offspring Had Tumbled Into the River.

Many boys were at play in East River Park at the foot of East Eighty-ninth Street yesterday afternoon when shouts that a boy had fallen into the river were heard. Gardeners with rakes and other park attendants with ropes ran to the river front. The walls of the boy in the water could be heard above the shouts of the children on shore.

A 13-year-old lad, William Erlich, of 410 East Eighty-eighth Street, got to the river front before any of the park attendants. He saw a boy some four years old struggling with the waves of a passing ferry boat. Young Erlich, although he had a sore throat and was not able to swim well, jumped into the water to save the boy. Just how he did he could not tell, but within a minute he had the boy by the coat and both were clinging to the pier. Park attendants then pulled both the boys out.

"Now run home," said one of the attendants to the Erlich boy. "You're a brave lad. If you hadn't jumped in that little boy would have drowned."

The boy ran to his mother. He was spanked for having fallen into the river, for his mother admitted afterward that she had not believed his story.

Last night a reporter called at the Erlich apartment and testified to the boy's heroism. That changed the atmosphere around the Erlich home, and 13-year-old William was immediately brought from his bed and made much of.

WOMEN HELD IN AUTO CASE.

Clarence J. Wyckoff's Machine Runs Over Boy in Stamford.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, May 9.—Clarence J. Wyckoff, a White Plains lawyer, was driving on West Main Street this afternoon when his automobile struck Carlo Musela, a seven-year-old boy. The child's skull was fractured, and at the Stamford Hospital the surgeons said there was no chance of his recovery. Mr. Wyckoff said the boy became confused and stepped in front of the machine.

Mr. Wyckoff, Mrs. William H. Llewellyn of 177 Congress Street, Brooklyn, and Mrs. E. L. Perry of Manorville, L. I., who were in the automobile, were held by the police pending an investigation of the accident.

FRIEDMANN CLAIMS TO 'CURE' UNPROVED

Government Report Indorsed by Tuberculosis Association—No Specific Found.

SOME FAVOR DENUNCIATION

Full Official Statement by Drs. Anderson and Stimson Criticises Friedmann's Attitude.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Both the Friedmann and the Piorkowski vaccines for the "cure" of tuberculosis received a rebuff in Washington to-day before the most important gathering of medical men held in this country since the Friedmann method was brought prominently to the attention of the American people.

There were four important developments at the final session of the annual meeting of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, the ranking medical council with respect to the white plague. These developments were:

First—The presentation by Dr. John F. Anderson of the Public Health Service, Chairman of the Government board which has been investigating the Friedmann vaccine and methods of treatment, of a report stating that the effects of the Friedmann treatment on the patients treated under the eye of the Government's board "do not justify the confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by widespread publicity," and that "harm may have been done."

Second—The adoption by the association of a resolution introduced by its Board of Directors, asserting that there was no justification for the belief that a specific "cure" for tuberculosis had been discovered that deserved the confidence of the medical profession or the people.

Third—The assertion by Dr. Charles L. Minor of Asheville, N. C., a Director of the association, that the Friedmann remedy came to American shores, "not through medical and scientific channels, but through a commercial channel of a newspaper syndicate," to assist "the newspaper syndicate to make more money."

Fourth—The refusal of the Directors of the association to accept the telegraphic offer from H. Prescott Simpson of Cleveland, as a representative of Dr. Piorkowski of Berlin, of 100 turtle cultures to determine the efficacy of the Piorkowski vaccine in the treatment of tuberculosis.

Report Has Official Approval.

Dr. Anderson's report was filed with Secretary McAdoo to-day, through Surgeon Gen. Rupert Blue of the Public Health Service. That it has official approval and is made public with official sanction, was shown by the fact that it was read to the association by Dr. Anderson, with the permission of his superior officers, and copies of the report were later handed to the newspaper men in Secretary McAdoo's office.

Following the reading of the report at the association meeting, these resolutions were offered:

Whereas, Widespread publicity has been given to the claims of an alleged cure for tuberculosis.

Resolved, That there is no information before the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis to justify the belief that any specific cure for tuberculosis has been discovered which deserves the confidence of the medical profession, or the people, and

Resolved, That it is the duty of the public to continue unabated all the present well-tried agencies for the treatment and prevention of tuberculosis.

These resolutions had been carefully drawn by the Board of Directors and were not made in more positive form because the leaders in the association did not think they had evidence to justify them in making a "final" decision "at this time."

But some members of the association favored the adoption of more radical declarations. Dr. Charles L. Minor of Asheville was one of them. When the resolutions came up Dr. Minor said that the association, now nine years old, had acquired an enviable position by its activity in the field of tuberculosis prevention.

"We owe it due to ourselves that we realize our responsibility to the general public," Dr. Minor told the convention. "There has been brought to the American public's attention, through newspaper methods, a remedy which, arising in Berlin and failing to find substantial support from the highest authorities, has come to these shores. We are rightly and credibly informed that it has come, not through medical and scientific channels, but through a commercial channel of a newspaper syndicate.

Calls Remedy "Smirched."

"The very fact that it has been commercially exploited by a newspaper syndicate, that it has been smirched with a type of comercialism which this profession reprobates, is enough to make this association take its stand as a protector of the public to show forth the facts as they are.

"We all think, of course, that a scientific remedy, when placed before the public scientifically, must have time for scientific investigation before we reject or accept it. The fact that the person who promotes it before the public is unwilling to fulfill the necessary demands of scientific investigation, concealing the exact nature of the remedy, though not concealing the source from which he gets it, and the fact that he refuses to fulfill the legitimate demands of the Government, lead me to say that I believe it is within the purview of this association to reprobate such action.

"We know how much misery has already been produced. Many of us know the high hopes that have been raised and cruelly disappointed, the poor people who have committed suicide through their failure to get the treatment. We know all these things have been—and to assist the newspaper syndicate to make more money.

"Newspapers are valuable things, they fulfill a glorious and useful function in this country. But when to put money in their coffers they bring here pseudo-scientific remedies they cannot be too severely shown up."

The Board of Directors has acted, and that is all there is to it. But I am opposed to a resolution that only goes half way. We must be cautious, not too radical. We must investigate. I don't want radical action. But I do not want weak action. I consider this resolution weak action."

Sternberg Counsels Patience.

Brig. Gen. George M. Sternberg, former Suhgeon General of the Army, moving the adoption of the resolutions, said:

"I think them very well drawn, very prudent, and I do not think we have evidence to justify us in making the final decision at this time. I have no sympathy with the commercial aspect or with the fact that he has kept the medicine secret. He did propose to inoculate a considerable number of patients in the presence of physicians and leave them for these physicians to report on, and till that final report is made I do not feel we can make a final judgment. I am not at all sanguine as to the result, but I think we must wait in justice to ourselves."

Dr. Hermann M. Biggs of New York also favored the resolution, saying: "They will convey to the country

REPRIMANDS GLOVER AT BAR OF HOUSE

Banker, After Arrest, Apologizes for Sims Assault and Speaker Delivers Reproof.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Charles C. Glover, President of the Riggs National Bank and one of the leading bankers of Washington, was arrested this afternoon, taken before the bar of the House of Representatives, under a warrant issued by Speaker Clark, and reprimanded for slapping the face of Representative Thetus W. Sims, a Democratic member from Tennessee, in Farragut Square, on April 18 last.

This action followed the adoption of a resolution by the House, by a vote of 200 to 4, directing the Speaker to issue his warrant for the arrest of Mr. Glover, charging him with contempt of the House in assaulting Representative Sims for words uttered by the latter in debate in the Sixty-second Congress. In this speech Mr. Sims criticised the banker for his alleged part in a certain real estate transaction in which the Government was concerned.

Mr. Glover was escorted to the floor of the House by Sergeant-at-Arms Gordon.

"Do you desire to be heard on the charge?" asked Speaker Clark.

"I admit the facts to be as found, responded Mr. Glover, "but earnestly disclaim all intention to show disrespect to this House or its members, or to invade their privileges; nor did I know at the time of the occurrence that I was doing either. I express my deep regret and offer my sincere apology."

At the request of Speaker Clark a chair was furnished to Mr. Glover, who sat down, while Representative Crisp of Georgia made a statement regarding the power of the House to punish, and moved the adoption of a resolution authorizing the reprimand. This was carried. Mr. Glover arose at Speaker Clark's request. The Speaker then delivered this reprimand:

Charles Glover, the House of Representatives, after thorough and patient investigation of both the law and the facts, made by a special committee of five eminent lawyers of the House appointed by the Speaker, brought in a resolution declaring that you had violated the privileges of the House and acted in a manner derogatory to the dignity of the body; and after full debate the House almost unanimously adopted that resolution.

The freedom of speech and the immunity from being questioned elsewhere for words spoken in debate on the floor of the House and also of the Senate lie at the very root of our free institutions. You violated both by your conduct. From time immemorial, from the very inception of parliamentary government among English-speaking people, the principles that I have stated have been universally adopted and practiced.

This is not a case of a member of Congress against the prisoner at the bar. It is the House of Representatives in its assembled capacity asserting the freedom of speech and the dignity of the House; it is not to punish the individual, but for the public good that the Republic may endure.

The House passed a resolution authorizing the Speaker to issue his warrant and deliver it to the Sergeant at Arms for your arrest, and the same has been done. Acting with the moderation and the care with which people of our race act, they gave you a chance to be heard, either individually or by counsel, before they would determine the punishment for a very grave offense. You elected to be heard in your own proper person: •you acknowledged the facts charged and you apologized to the House; you expressed your regrets, you asserted your ignorance of the fact that you were violating the privileges of the House. This statement on your part no doubt influenced the members in the leniency of the punishment which they determined upon, and that was that the speaker should reprimand you.

It must be apparent that a Representative or a Senator in his individual capacity has no more right than any other citizen of the Republic; he is clothed with indemnity and the right of free speech, so that men may speak their minds freely. If one person is permitted to go unpunished for an assault upon one Congressman, everybody can assault a Congressman for words used in debate on the floor of the House, and free speech is at an end.

Not only that, but to assault a Representative or a Senator for words spoken in debate on the floor of the House might compel a good man who does not want to kill anybody to perform that very act.

The Chair, therefore, reprimands Mr. Glover in the name of the House of Representatives, and directs the Sergeant at Arms to remove him from the House and discharge him from custody.

The arrest followed an afternoon of debate in which two hours was devoted to a consideration of the precedents. During the discussion Representative Moon of Tennessee denounced the slapping of Mr. Sims as a "dastardly crime," and asserted that the banker had murder in his heart when he hit the Tennessean.

POLICEMAN PASSES THE HAT

Sends Consumptive Mother to the Hospital and Then Feeds Children.

While he was on duty late yesterday afternoon at North Moore and Greenwich Streets, Patrolman Corry came upon an Italian woman huddled on the curbstone with a boy baby in her arms. There were five other children grouped disconsolately around her. They all looked tired and very hungry, and the policeman asked the mother what was the matter.

She told him that she was suffering from tuberculosis and that she had come North in a ship from Florida to find a hospital for herself and a home for her children. She was not quite clear how she should go about it, and had no money. She and her children had had nothing to eat for a long time, she said.

Corry sent the mother to Bellevue Hospital and took the children under his own charge. At the Leonard Street Station he passed around his hat until there were so many coins in it that the youngsters had had all they could eat when they were finally handed over to the Children's Society.

JAPAN PROPOSES JOINT COURT APPEAL

Formal Document Presented by Chinda Urges Quick Test of California Land Law.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Japan's formal representations against the California Anti-Alien Land bill were handed to Secretary Bryan by Viscount Chinda, the Japanese Ambassador, to-day, and formed the subject of a two-hour discussion by the President and his Cabinet.

The character of the representations has not been made known, but there is gossip in official circles that Japan has suggested that the United States Government, whose good faith and friendship in connection with the California tangle have not been doubted in Tokio, join hands with the Japanese Government in testing in the courts the right of California to enact legislation which is apparently in violation of the treaty rights of Japanese subjects residing in that State.

According to the talk, one contention of Japan is that the Japanese are of the Aryan race and therefore entitled to be admitted to the United States and enjoy all the other rights of aliens of white blood, including the right to become citizens.

Viscount Chinda was at the State Department half an hour after the beginning of the business day this morning, and after a brief conversation with Secretary Bryan handed him a packet of papers containing the statement of the Japanese case.

Mr. Bryan hurried with these to the Cabinet meeting, which had been called an hour earlier than usual, to enable him to participate in the discussion and catch the 12:30 o'clock train for New York.

After the meeting the Cabinet members declined to say anything about the communication from the Japanese Ambassador.

"I have no statement to make at this time," was Secretary Bryan's only response to inquiries as he left the Executive offices. He went back to the State Department before going to the railroad station and found Viscount Chinda waiting for him. They had a conversation lasting barely five minutes, and will meet again to-morrow noon.

The papers presented by the Japanese Ambassador are being studied by the President so that he may reach a conclusion as to the course to be taken and a message may be sent to Gov. Johnson of California as soon as possible. It is understood that the alien land bill, which is now in the hands of the Governor, will not be acted on until he has heard from the President.

Tentative arrangements have been made for another Cabinet meeting to-morrow to discuss the proposition of Japan.

SACRAMENTO, May 9.—A new bill, providing for a census of the Japanese population of California and the collection of information concerning the class and acreage of lands held by them, was introduced in the Senate to-day by Senator Caminitti under suspension of the rules.

The investigation is to be made by the State Labor Commissioner, according to the bill, which carries $10,000 to defray expenses.

PRESS ON THE LAND BILL.

Japan Society Finds 207 Newspapers Condemn California.

Two hundred and seven newspapers in all parts of the country condemn, in their editorial columns, the attitude taken by California regarding anti-Japanese legislation, according to a statement issued yesterday afternoon by the Japan Society, which for four days followed the editorial articles in 800 newspapers.

One thousand three hundred editorial articles were studied with this result: In 400 newspapers the subject was suggested and not commented upon; in 120 newspapers the situation was discussed, but in such general terms that no classification could be made; in 207 newspapers were articles condemning California, commending the course taken by President Wilson, and saying that the United States cannot allow discrimination against the Japanese, and in twenty-five newspapers articles appeared supporting California.

CINCINNATI CAR STRIKE ON.

Trolley Men Quit and Power House Workers Vote to Join Them.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, May 9.—The threatened strike of the street railway employes of this city was begun at 9 o'clock to-night, when the crews of a large number of cars ran their cars to the barns and deserted them. It is impossible to state just how many men have answered the strike call. There has been no report of disorder.

Behind closed doors to-night, the union engineers and firemen of the power houses voted to go out in sympathy with the strikers.

Recent demands made by the new organization to the traction company, calling for increased pay, recognition of the union, shorter hours and double pay for overtime, were ignored by the company, according to the members of the Executive Committee.

The officials of the company in all their recent statements have asserted that the union was composed of not more than 100 men and that even though those should strike, traffic would not be injured. The union officials have refused to say how many men their union includes.

COST OF SULZER REFORMS.

Frawley Lays $6,000,000 Appropriation Increase to Governor.

ALBANY, May 9.—Responsibility for an increase of more than $6,000,000 in the annual appropriations over the figures submitted by the Governor's Committee of Inquiry is placed with Gov. Sulzer by Senator Frawley, Chairman of the Finance Committee, in a statement to-night.

"Most of the items of increase provided for in the appropriation and supply bills," said Mr. Frawley to-night, "are necessitated by reforms which Gov. Sulzer advocated, approved and promised. The Governor was always made familiar with every item of importance."

Senator Frawley submits figures showing the Committee of Inquiry's totals were $31,370,816, and the totals submitted to the Governor by the Legislature were $37,603,203.

JERSEY CITY GUILTY IN EXPRESS STRIKE

Jury Holds It Liable for Mayor Wittpenn's Failure to Give Police Protection.

DAMAGES TO WELLS FARGO

$300 for Loss of Property and $43,000 More for Its Loss of Business In Not Moving Wagons.

Jersey City was found guilty yesterday for the failure of Mayor Wittpenn, the Board of Aldermen and the Police Board to give adequate police protection to the Wells-Fargo wagons during the express drivers' strike in 1910.

After reaching this conclusion the jury awarded the company $43,300 damages, $300 being for its tangible property loss and $40,000 for its "intangible property," meaning its loss of business.

This was the outcome of a suit brought by the Wells-Fargo Express Company against the Mayor and Aldermen for $200,000 damages. It was tried before Judge John Rellstab in the United States District Court at Newark, and had occupied the attention of the court for nearly two weeks. The plaintiff company, a Colorado corporation, asserted that its employes were not on strike; that they had no grievance against the company; had made no demands of any kind on it, and the company could have run its business without interruption or damage of any kind if proper police protection then had been afforded by the Jersey City authorities.

A number of witnesses were called to prove that such was the case, and they testified to attacks made on the company's wagons by strikers or sympathizers who cut the harness on the horses, drove drivers from the vehicles, and committed other acts of violence. Other witnesses employed in the clerical department of the plaintiff company testified to the financial loss of the company through loss of business and unnecessary expense to which it was put.

The municipality also called a number of witnesses, including the Mayor, former Police Commissioner Joseph H. Lippincott, who was President of the Police Board at the time of the strike riots; former Gov. J. Franklin Fort, and many police officers, all of whom testified to the efforts that had been made by the city to prevent disorder.

It was shown by that evidence that the police force had been doubled, and that the men had worked in twelve-hour shifts day and night, and that they slept in the express company stables or in Pullman cars close to the express platforms so as to be ready for call at any moment. It was further shown that the men were under strict orders to do their duty against any and all odds or be stripped of their shields.

Former Judge Gilbert Collins of Jersey City argued for the express company, while Corporation Counsel Warren Dixon defended Jersey City. Mr. Dixon asked Judge Rellstab to charge the jury to find for the defendant, but his request was denied. He then asked that the Judge strike out all evidence touching on damage to intangible property. This was also denied. He further asked the Court to instruct the jury that the express company being a Colorado corporation, Jersey City could not be held responsible for loss of the company. To this, the Judge said that he would let the jury decide from the testimony whether the city was responsible, because of existing conditions, for the loss of New York business.

"In my opinion," said Mr. Dixon, "the evidence in this case was carefully prepared for the purpose of misleading this jury. I dislike to say it. After months of preparation a mass of figures showing business done, they do not submit one single item to show the cost of doing that business, or the profit enjoyed in its transaction. Who knows that the company was at that time doing business at a loss? This misleading feature has crept up in other aspects of the case. They try to show their loss was due to the inability to move the wagons. They could have gotten more wagons if they had desired."

The jury deliberated about an hour. In framing the verdict the jurors followed the direction of the court to find the city guilty or not guilty of the first allegation in the bill of complaint, and if guilty then to settle on the amount the plaintiff company should get for damage to its tangible property, and next the amount, if any, for injury to its intangible property.

Mayor Wittpenn would not discuss the verdict last night. Corporation counsel Dixon said the case would be appealed.

WARNS TRAIN SMOKERS.

Magistrate Fines Tyler and Says He'll Send Others to Prison.

After a struggle with Interborough guards, Charles W. Tyler, a civil engineer of 208 West 136th Street, was arrested last evening for smoking on the platform of a Ninth Avenue elevated train. In the Night Court Magistrate Krotel fined him $10 and announced in doing so that in the future all men convicted of smoking on the trains would be imprisoned, if their cases came before him.

"You men who smoke in trains ought to be sent to the Workhouse," he said. "You deserve all the rough treatment you get from guards who try to enforce the rules. My life and the lives of others have been made burdensome by smoking in trains, and the practice should be stopped. I warn you, and I warn everybody who hears me, that the next man who is convicted before me of smoking in a train in this city will be sent to the Workhouse."

CHURCH OFFICERS QUIT.

Senior Warden and Vestryman Out After Trouble with Roslyn Rector.

Special to The New York Times.

ROSLYN, L. I., May 9.—Henry M. W. Eastman, senior warden, and Frederick C. Davis, a vestryman, have resigned because of differences with the Rev. Clifton H. Brewer, rector of the Trinity Episcopal Church of this place, which was erected by Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay. Mr. Eastman has been a member of the Episcopal Church in Roslyn for forty years, and Mr. Davis has been affiliated with the church for many years.

The resignations were due to trouble in the church which has lasted for two years. The faction opposed to the rector asserts that Mr. Brewer is too dictatorial. Bishop Burgess, it was said, upheld the rector when members of the parish appealed to him. Mr. Davis, it was said, complained to the Bishop that at the last election of church officers he was about to deposit his ballot when he was told by Mr. Brewer that he had no right to vote because of his inquehood at the rector's church. To this complaint Mr. Davis asserted the Bishop returned this reply: "Why do you go to church?" Mr. Davis said he did not know what the Bishop meant.

MINDING HER OWN BUSINESS

Thus the White House Answers Tale of Mrs. Wilson's Political Activity.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A report that Mrs. Wilson had obtained a promise that J. A. Bowie, whom she had known when they were girl and boy together, would be appointed Postmaster at Rome, Ga., brought from the White House the sharp response that "Mrs. Wilson has the happy faculty of minding her own business."

The explanation of the report was that when Mrs. Wilson heard that charges had been made against the character of Mr. Bowie in connection with his candidacy she came forward in his defense. Another candidate had been named for the place by Representative Lee of Georgia.

When Mr. Lee learned of Mrs. Wilson's defense of Mr. Bowie, he offered to withdraw his candidate. He was told at the White House that there had been no attempt to interfere with his recommendation, and that Mrs. Wilson was taking no part in the matter.

SUBMARINE CALL TO ARMS.

Officers and Men of Flotilla Get Hurry Orders to Go Aboard.

NEWPORT, May 9.—Orders to return to their posts immediately were issued to-night to all the enlisted men of the first and second submarine flotillas, which are gathered in Narragansett Bay with nine battleships, in connection with mimic war manoeuvres.

Officers of the submarines also were ordered back to their vessels, but were allowed until midnight to enjoy a ball which they were giving ashore. Notification to the enlisted men came in the form of summonses from theatre stages and by criers on the streets. The orders were entirely unexpected, and aroused much speculation among the men.

It was learned that the first group of submarines would sail to-morrow morning under "sealed orders." The second group is under orders to be ready to proceed.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The hurry-up call for officers of the submarine fleet at Newport to return to their vessels was merely part of the general manoeuvres that the Navy Department has mapped out.

LABOR OPPOSITION TO PAGE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 9.—On the ground that he is an opponent of organized labor, the London Trades Council has passed a resolution which will be forwarded to President Wilson, asking the recall of W. H. Page.

The resolution requests President Wilson to replace Mr. Page by an Ambassador "who will more truly represent the opinions of the working classes of the United States and be more acceptable to the organized workers of the United Kingdom."

FRANCE TO HONOR PEARY.

Geographical Society to Arrange a Reception for June 6.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Saturday, May 10.—The Matin announces that the French Geographical Society has decided to arrange a reception to Admiral Peary at the Sorbonne on June 6. It has been a subject of much adverse comment in Paris that the society has hitherto not seen fit to recognize Peary's north pole triumph.

$490,000 IN DAY'S WHALING.

Slaughter in the North Pacific Threatens the Salmon Industry.

Special to The New York Times.

TACOMA, May 9.—Thirty-five sperm whales, worth $490,000, were killed in one day off Prince of Wales Island by three steamers of the United States Whaling Company recently. Forty-five whales, valued at $630,000, were killed during the first five weeks of the whaling season.

Alaskans say that indiscriminate slaughter soon will drive the whales out of the North Pacific, and that this will result in the destruction of the salmon industry. Countless millions of herring, now driven close to shore by the whales, will stay out in the deep water, and the salmon, which live on the herring, will stay out in deep water with them, except in the spawning season. Alaskans would like to apply the conservation idea to the whaling industry.

IMMIGRANT ARMY GROWS.

Aliens Arriving in United States in Nine Months Number 888,899.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—In the nine months from July, 1912, to March, 1913, 747,998 immigrant aliens were admitted to this country. In addition to these 140,901 non-immigrant aliens were admitted, making a total of 888,899. In the same period 12,557 aliens were debarred for various causes. All these figures exceed those of the three previous years.

More Japanese entered the country during the nine months than during the entire previous year. The Japanese arrivals numbered 6,435. Immigrants from the Russian Empire numbered 176,252. Italians were next with 150,383.

One significant feature of the statistics is the fact that the number of laborers leaving the country exceeded the number arriving.

GIRL'S LONG TRIP TO WED.

New Jersey Heiress Sails for Guatemala to Join Her Fiance.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Ala., May 9.—Miss Martha D. Schmick, a wealthy 18-year-old New Jersey girl, sailed from here for Virginian Farms, a suburb of Puerto Barrios, Guatemala, to-day, to meet her fiancé, R. Wallace Oches, whom she is to marry on May 13. She was accompanied by her brother, Jack Schmick, 16 years old, who came with her from East Orange, N. J.

Previous to her departure Miss Schmick admitted that she had contemplated giving up the trip.

"It was a feeling of lonesomeness, I guess," she said, "although I can't understand it, because I have traveled in Colorado and the West and never felt that way before."

After the ceremony the bride and groom will make a two years' tour of the world.

GRAFT LEADERS IN PRISON GARB

Four Ex-Inspectors Sentenced to One Year on Blackwell's Island.

PASS DAY OF ORDEALS

HEADS CLIPPED ON ISLAND

Murtha Allowed to Pay Farewell Visit to Sick Children—Whitman After Another Inspector.

The doors of the penitentiary on Blackwell's Island opened at 3:35 o'clock yesterday afternoon to receive four prisoners in handcuffs, Dennis Sweeney, John J. Murtha, James F. Thompson, and James E. Hussey, the former Inspectors of the New York Police Department who were convicted on Tuesday of conspiracy. An hour later the four pillars in the police graft system were conducted to their cells in their new misfit uniforms of alternate black and gray horizontal stripes. Their heads were closely cropped and they were stripped of all personal belongings, even to the bone buttons in their collars and the links in their cuffs.

Earlier in the day, before Justice Seabury, they had received the maximum sentence of one year. In addition the maximum fine of $500 was imposed. By good behavior the ex-Inspectors may hope to get their applications for release sanctioned by the Board of Parole at the end of ten months. The $500 fines must be paid before they leave the prison, and if they are not paid at the end of twelve months the fines may be "worked off" at the rate of one day for each dollar. In accordance with the rules of the prison the ex-Inspectors may be put to work at any of the trades which are in vogue on the Island. These trades range from the crushing of rocks with sledges to the manufacture of mattresses for the New York Police Department, the latter not an enviable trade for an ex-policeman.

From the moment that Justice Seabury passed sentence, at 10:44 A. M., to the time that the gaze of the reporters was shut off by the barber shop door in the penitentiary every tick of the clock added to the humiliation of the four prisoners. Sheriff Julius Harburger took personal supervision of the trip to Blackwell's Island.

Courtroom Crowded.

The courtroom was crowded before the ex-Inspectors crossed the Bridge of Sighs. The seats which they had occupied during their trial were not set aside for them. Instead, the four were told to take their places at the bar immediately, while behind them men held their breaths to get Justice Seabury's words. Despite the strain the four convicted men looked brighter than usual. The pallor on Sweeney's face was gone. Thompson showed the effects of restlessness, but the eyes of Hussey and Murtha were clear.

District Attorney Whitman rose from his seat within the counsel rail and moved for judgment upon the men he had convicted. John B. Stanchfield, speaking for all the ex-Inspectors o'clock Sheriff Harburger arrived on the scene. The prison van, which has taken thousands of prisoners over the road to prison, was ordered into service, and while the lazy old workhorses were being hitched to the wagon the Sheriff confided important secrets to the reporters.

Harburger on Handcuffing.

"Powerful influences have been brought to bear on me," he began, "to refrain from handcuffing these four ex-Inspectors. Powerful influences, also, tried to induce me to refrain from taking these men to Police Headquarters to be photographed."

"What were the influences?" he was asked.

"Don't ask me that," replied the Sheriff, his hands playing the while with a dangerous looking pistol whose butt protruded from his left coat pocket.

"All that I can say," continued the Sheriff, "is that men of great influence, a great number of them, called me up on the telephone. 'Don't humiliate these men by putting irons on their wrists,' they said, 'and don't, whatever you do, take them to be photographed in the very building where they once had great power. No, I cannot betray conidences and tell you who those men were, but those are the facts.

"Now I am going to tell you reporters just what I told those men who called me up. I am the Sheriff of New York County. I am the servant of the people and I carry out the laws of this great State. I say here that I will show no discrimination for these Inspectors of Police. They were my friends. I knew them for years. But that has nothing to do with it. To me they are nothing now but convicted and sentenced men. I make no distinctions unless the court orders me to. I treat them all alike, no matter whether they received ten days, thirty days, one year, or thirty years. Handcuffs it shall be and Rogues' Gallery, too."

Therewith the Sheriff twirled his automatic pistol once more and gave the order to have the Inspectors handcuffed. At exactly 2:10 o'clock the old rumble wagon, with the ex-Inspectors and one Deputy Sheriff inside, with another Deputy Sheriff on the little back seat, and with the Sheriff, a driver, and a third deputy on the front seat, drove out of the prison yard.

To ride in the old wagon is degradation in the extreme. This wagon, once black, is now streaked with red paint. A large brass padlock on the back door is its most conspicuous adornment.

Measured at Headquarters.

The prisoners were driven up to the back door of Police Headquarters. A few detectives awaited them there. No uniformed policemen were in sight, and around the wagon a curious crowd gathered. The Sheriff had jumped from his seat before the wagon had come to a stop.

"Open that lock," he ordered, pointing to the padlock, which was two feet out of his reach.

Out came Murtha first, tumbling, for he missed the little iron step. His back was turned, and he dragged with him gray-haired Sweeney, but the latter's fall was checked by his partner. The two were linked so close together that Murtha's loss of balance jerked Sweeney's wrist unmercifully. When the men recovered their balance they shielded their faces with the hands that were free.

Next came Thompson, with a deep dent in his black derby hat. Locked to him was Hussey. Thompson clutched at his hat and drew it over his face. Hussey, however, looked all about him and smiled right and left, as if very glad to get another breath of fresh air. All the while cameras were snapping from all angles.

"Where do we go now?" asked Sweeney, still blinded by his own hat.

"Look at him. He's how game he is," came from a man in the crowd, while Sheriff Harburger showed Sweeney the way to the little cellar door which leads to the Bureau of Identification's quarters. A few detectives followed the procession, and then the door was barred.

From the Sheriff himself later were learned the details of the added humiliation the former wearers of the coveted gold shield and gold leaves passed through. First the men were measured from head to foot. Then they were placed on pedestals, so as to facilitate the passing of the tape measure. Next their eyes were examined. Then a policeman ordered them to open their mouths while each tooth was tapped and notes made of the condition. Then followed the taking of thumbprints and also prints of the whole hand.

Their Photographs Taken.

The ex-Inspectors were allowed to wash their hands after this ordeal was finished, and then they all went to the photographer's quarters, where a full face and a profile view of each of the four was taken.

"The regular procedure was compiled with," said the Sheriff. "They didn't miss a trick. They wouldn't, you can bet your life, while I was there. I watched every move. They branded those men just as they would the most miserable murderer. That's the law, and I am the Sheriff."

When the ex-Inspectors again met the gaze of the crowd outside the effect of the disgrace was visible. Three of the prisoners again held hats over their heads. Hussey alone kept up a brave attitude. But he did not smile this time. He puffed hard on a cigar.

The crowd followed the van, and a squad of reporters took up the trail in a taxicab. Just as the old wagon cleared Headquarters a man ran up to the wagon from behind, balanced himself on the little iron step and pushed through an aperture, one by one, four cigars. The cigars were drawn in by eager hands, and through the shutters came a muffled "Thanks." Sheriff Harburger did not see this act.

"Who is that man on the little back seat?" inquired one reporter of a detective who walked along after the wagon for a block

"Why, he's a Deputy Sheriff named Whitman," replied the detective. "Can you beat it? It's Billy Whitman, not Charles S. this time."

The route led through Cooper Square, St. Mark's Place, and up Second Avenue to Fifty-third Street, where the wagon turned toward the dock of the Department of Correction. All the time faint curls of smoke came from the crooked shutters in the dark wagon. This was the only sign there was of life inside.

Wait for the Steamer.

A half-hour wait occurred at the dock, and then the Charity Department steamer Lowell came along. About fifty charity patients got aboard first and then Sheriff Harburger led the ex-inspectors across the gangplank. The photographers were again on hand. Again three of the prisoners covered their faces, Hussey alone facing the music.

"Fire away, boys," he shouted. "Get a good one while you are at it." Then he waved them farewell.

At 3:50 o'clock the boat landed at Blackwell's Island. A number of men in the regulation gray and black prison garb, with stripes nearly two inches wide, waited at the pier. They furnished the first "view" for the ex-police officials. In spite of the chilly reception, however, the faces of the four men were brighter. Perhaps it was the absence of photographers. Still handcuffed, the walk of several blocks to the penitentiary was begun, the Sheriff leading, as usual.

"Come up and see us some time," said one of the ex-inspectors.

"Yes," chirped in Sweeney, "come and stay over-night. We'll give you ham and eggs in the morning."

"Have you anything you would like to say?" Sweeney was asked.

"No kick at all," replied Sweeney, waving his free hand over his head. "No kick at all."

Inside the prison the four men were detained in the reception room for a few minutes while a Deputy Warden learned from Sheriff Harburger who the new criminals were. The handcuffs were released when the Warden returned with identification slips. He asked each of the prisoners for his pedigree. They gave them cheerfully, particularly Sweeney, who appeared anxious to get acquainted in the new place.

Then the property clerk asked for the prisoners' valuables. One by one, watches, money, wallets, papers, and jewelry were passed through iron bars to the clerk in Warden Hayes's office. Thompson helped Hussey pick the collar buttons out of his shirt. Sweeney smiled when he unlinked his cuff buttons and passed them through the bars. The prisoners were told that they would soon be fitted out with suits. These striped suits were in the next room, and were piled up like bathing suits at a Summer sea resort. All sizes were to be had, it was explained.

Sweeney was the first to finish "checking" his valuables.

Barber Clipped Their Heads.

"This way," came the order, and Sweeney was last seen by the reporters passing into the prison barber shop, a room furnished with four plain, curved back chairs with straight head rests. The others stopped to shake hands with the Sheriff before filing after Sweeney to have their hair cropped with a clipper.

"I want to thank you for the very pleasant trip," said Murtha as a final salutation to Sheriff Harburger.

"Oh, that's all right," replied the Sheriff, very soberly.

Then the door closed behind the ex-Inspectors.

"You know," said the Sheriff on the way to the boat, "one of those Inspectors, I won't say which one, was very angry with me because I treated him so brutally, as he put it. He said that he and his associates should never have been humiliated by being taken to Police Headquarters. But I told him just what I told you."

"Was it the man who was the first in the barber shop?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied, "that was the one, the one that didn't shake hands with me."

On the wharf a hundred or more convicts who had just come from a day's work at breaking rock filed from the boat and brushed dangerously near the little Sheriff. There were big negroes and big Italians among them. The Sheriff intuitively gripped his revolver in his left hand coat pocket.

"It shoots eleven times in three seconds," he whispered to a reporter near him.

When the Sheriff again set his foot on Manhattan he made his final speech:

"This was the first time I ever went to Blackwell's Island since I was elected Sheriff," he said, "and I had a mighty fine day. I wish to repeat that I showed no favoritism. Powerful influence was brought to bear on me, but I would not yield to it. I will never, as long as I am in public office, play favorites with aristocracy. These Inspectors were my friends and I was sorry for them, as individuals. But as a Sheriff, no. I did my duty, didn't I?"

"You did!" came back in a chorus.

AFTER ANOTHER INSPECTOR.

Whitman to Follow New Trail—Duffy Trial Shortly.

The fact that not one of the four ex-Inspectors who were sentenced to the penitentiary yesterday asked for a certificate of reasonable doubt gave rise to the belief that the prisoners' lawyers could find nothing in the trial minutes on which to base their arguments. It was an added feather in District Attorney Whitman's cap.

Up until the very last minute the lawyers for the ex-Inspectors refused to say what they would do regarding applications for certificates of reasonable doubt. Immediately after sentence was imposed, however, George Gordon Battle decided that no writ would be asked for Sweeney. The others followed suit. Mr. Gilbert said an appeal would certainly be taken for his client, Murtha. It is believed, moreover, that an appeal will be taken in each of the other cases.

Francis L. Wellman, for Hussey, gave out this formal statement when asked whether he would appeal:

"My client, Capt. Hussey, is a high class man, in my judgment, notwithstanding his conviction as a part of this conspiracy. If the higher courts take a different view of his conduct from what Mr. Justice Seabury did, we hope to set this conviction aside and have him reinstated in the department. But in the meanwhile I will not attempt to evade his punishment. He is very game.' He has not once asked for any delay in his trial, his sentence or his imprisonment.

"I am convinced that he never knew that the witness Sipp had gone away, or that there was any conspiracy on the part of Capt. Walsh and Officer Fox and their lawyers, or anybody else, to keep the witness away until he was told about it by Sipp's lawyer, Newell, the night before Fox was discharged.

"The error he made was in not reporting his knowledge to Police Headquarters. But it was hardly a crime, for the men involved had once been his friends and associates. Mr. Smyth and I had hoped to acquit him, but the air of New York is surcharged with prejudice against the police force just at present.

"Even the very microbes on the walls of the courtroom can plainly be heard singing their paean of 'Guilty.'"

There is little likelihood that the convicted officials will be prosecuted on the bribery indictments against them while they are serving their sentence in the penitentiary on the misdemeanor conviction. Mr. Whitman, however, wants it understood that he did not in anywise enter into any arrangement with the lawyers for the ex-Inspectors to quash these indictments provided they would abandon their applications for certificates of reasonable doubt. The indictments will remain as constant reminders to the ex-Inspectors. It is believed that the determination to go to Blackwell's Island at once was reached because of the fear that a denial of a certificate of reasonable doubt would not only arouse the District Attorney, but would also prolong the confinements. The prisoners figured out that they might just as well begin their sentences immediately and let the appeal work go on while they were in prison. In case of a reversal, it was argued, a vindication would suffice to atone for their hardships.

The next step in the graft investigation will be the prosecution of Sergt. Peter J. Duffy, alleged collector for Sweeney. It was thought yesterday that this trial might be moved within a week. Immediately after Duffy's trial Mr. Whitman will take up the trail of another Inspector not yet mentioned in the graft disclosures. This man was in charge for a time in the Tenderloin. He is said to have collected $200,000 a year in graft.

W. J. Conners Sees Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—William J. Conners of Buffalo, former Chairman of the New York State Committee, had a talk with President Wilson to-day. Senator James A. O'Gorman of New York, was with him. Mr. Conners is Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Perry Victory Celebration, and he wanted the President to see that the Federal Government participated in the affair.

ENVOYS OF PEACE MINGLE AT DINNER

Committee from Feast to English Delegates Calls on Guests at German Banquet.

DERIDES THE CELEBRATION

President Sutro of Publication Society Says America Would Better Celebrate Peace with Germany.

The first annual dinner of the German Publication Society, an organization formed to cement more closely the friendship between this country and Germany, held at the Hotel Plaza last night, was turned into a joint peace celebration, when a committee, representing the delegates who are arranging a celebration for 100 years of peace between the English-speaking peoples, who were dining at the Astor, appeared in the Plaza dining room. The committee from the Astor was composed of J. Allen Baker, M. P.; A. Von Verwecke of the City of Ghent, C. De Bruyne, Alderman of Ghent, and Dr. George F. Kunz of the American delegation. When word was received by the German diners over the telephone early in the evening that the Treaty of Ghent delegates would pay their respects, it was reported that they came prepared to answer some of the statements in the speech made by President Theodore Sutro of the Publication Society, which had been given out in advance. Dr. Kunz said that he had not seen the address, and was there simply to bring the felicitations of the other members of the conference which he represented to the German society.

The dinner of the Publication Society was attended by some 300 men who had been prominent in various movements to bring about closer relations between the great nations. The principal speaker was Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador to this country, and among the others who spoke were Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard; President John Grier Hibben of Princeton, and Prof. Hugo Münsterberg of Harvard, Calvin Thomas was toastmaster. At the speakers' table were Hugo Reisinger, Kuno Francke, Controller Prendergast, Congressman Richard Bartholdt, Charles S. Huntley, Rodman Wanamaker, Thomas Carmody, Herman A. Metz, T. R. Lounsbury and others.

The representatives from the peace dinner at the Astor arrived at the Plaza at 9:30 o'clock, while Dr. Eliot was speaking, and they stood seemingly unnoticed at one side of the room for fifteen minutes while Dr. Eliot concluded his remarks. Then President Sutro held out a welcoming hand, and they were escorted to seats at the speakers' table. They listened with interest to all that was said, and especially, some thought, to the remarks of Mr. Sutro. In his address Mr. Sutro said:

President Sutro's Speech.

"At the Hotel Astor to-night they are dining and wining the delegates from the English speaking countries of the world, as a prelude to a grander celebration next year of a hundred years of peace among them since the signing of the Treaty of Ghent on Dec. 24, 1814. They may well celebrate, seeing what little peace there was before that date between England and America; how during the war of the Revolution, England had tried her best to crush the struggle of the American colonies for independence, and how she had fomented the war of 1812 by plotting for years to disrupt the young Republic.

"Yes, it is well to further amicable relations among the nations and to commemorate a protracted period of international peace. And yet I cannot help thinking that it is, after all, not so comperlatively to the credit of the Anglo-Saxon race that it has practically lived at peace with itself for a single century, and I cannot understand why there should be on that account such wild rejoicing, such extravagant self-laudation, or such a tremendous demonstration. There would be far more reason, it seems to me, that this country should celebrate the peace between it and some other countries, such as, for example, the German-speaking nations of the world, a peace which has prevailed unbroken since time immemorial, and which has never been disturbed by a single act of hostility or aggression on one side or the other."

"And so I say that we here to-night have pre-eminently the best reason for rejoicing, because of the peace which has reigned unbroken between all German-speaking nations on the earth and our own country from the very dawn of its history. And in order to cement and perpetuate that peace most effectively the German Publication Society was formed and has undertaken to interpret to English-speaking people the literary masterpieces of modern Germany, the greatest intellectual storehouse in the world.

"This, our first enterprise, will afford a splendid foundation for a better understanding of the work and ideals of one hundred leaders of the world's culture, and will prove a most important link in the chain of mutual endeavor to promote a closer and more cordial relationship between the United States and the German countries, for no ties are more binding than those of common ideals set forth in great literatures.

J. Allen Baker responded for the English peace conferees after President Sutro had made his address. He did not make any comment on Mr. Sutro's remarks. Germany and England, he said, had stood in very close relations in the last months of unrest in Europe, and he expressed the belief that the close relations of the two nations in former times had acted to prevent the countries of Europe from becoming involved in a great war.

"I bring to-night a message of good will from England," he said, "to the people of the United States and especially to the German Americans. We do not have to celebrate peace between England and Germany because there never has been and I hope never will be war between these countries."

Letters of regret were read by Toastmaster Thomas from President Wilson, Secretary of State Bryan, Premier Borden of Canada, and the imperial and the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador at Washington, at the beginning of the dinner.

"We are here," Mr. Thomas then said, "to celebrate the international aspect of an undertaking which makes inevitably for international comity and good will."

Von Bernstorff Praises Movement.

Count von Bernstorff was the first guest to speak.

"When I was invited to this banquet I accepted directly," he said, "because I always wish to participate in any movement which is inaugurated for the purpose of forming a new bond of friendship between Germany, my own country, and the United States, which I am happy to regard as my second home.

"Among the links which bind countries together the foremost is the intimate knowledge of the cultures of the two countries. We hope that the voice of German idealism will be heard with pleasure by the American people."

Count von Bernstorff then proposed a toast to the President of the United States, and added this touch to his tribute to the American people:

"I have, during the last year, witnessed for the first time a fight for the Presidency, and I may add that nothing has impressed me in this great self-governing country as much as the hearty acquiescence of the whole people in the process of Government. From the moment that the change took place the President was again the representative of the whole American people and found the support of the whole Nation."

Referring to THE NEW YORK TIMES, Prof. Münsterberg then said:

"A few days ago the leading New York paper had on its editorial page these words:

"'It is a fact perfectly well known, though so rarely mentioned, the words teacher and professor bring into the mind men and women whose differences from others are not so much those of recognized superiority as of the grotesque, the impractical, people theoretically respected and perfunctorily praised, but warranting no expectation of sound advice and leadership. One explanation of the curious disesteem in which the teaching profession is held lies in the almost certainty of its members remaining in or far from poverty all their lives, and the constant steady elimination from it of the enterprising and ambitious.'

"I doubt whether THE NEW YORK TIMES was perfectly correct in describing so the attitude of the Nation. It seems to me, while this feeling prevails with regard to the school teacher, the American people begin to discriminate between the teacher and the productive scholar, the teacher in the true universities. The culture of the Nation has reached a point at which public opinion understands the difference between those who do not earn money because they lack the power, and those who do not earn money because they have much more important things to do. Moreover, as the wealth comes to the second and third generation, which does not see any ideal in mere money making, more and more strong and ambitious young men turn to academic work and help to mark off the life of the true scholar as a career worthy of the highest and noblest efforts. But while that pessimistic picture may be exaggerated, a core of truth cannot be denied, and it is no chance that the standing of the university professor in the German community has always been exactly the opposite, the ideal of the best and finest minds of the country.

"The highest effectiveness of scholarship can never be reached as long as the individualistic view prevails which has grown on American soil, the view that knowledge and science have their value simply in preparing the individual for his life work and for his battles. Great scholarship and a high standing of intellectual ideals can awake only where the belief in the value of scholarly ideals is independent of any usefulness for the individual. Scholarship, beauty, and morality are to be valuable in themselves, eternally valuable, and to serve them is an ideal goal which needs no praise on account of its usefulness. The Americans want to master scholarship, the Germans want to serve it; to the Americans scholarship is a tool, to the Germans an altar; to the Americans the scholar is an artisan, and to the Germans a priest. Artisans will never be the leaders of a nation."

TAFT ON 'POLITICAL CRANKS'

Initiative and Referendum Their Work—His Income Tax Idea.

NEW HAVEN, May 9.—William H. Taft, Kent professor of law at Yale, in his third lecture on "Some Questions of Modern Government" to-day, denounced the initiative and referendum as "very much like legislation during the French revolution—the work of political cranks and directly contrary to the spirit of the Constitution."

He advocated a graduated income tax which would include all incomes of more than $1,000, on the ground that "everybody ought to contribute something, in order that he may feel more responsibility in the Government because of his payment."

Prof. Taft discussed characteristics of the present Congress, declaring that they pay too much attention to what their constituents want. He said:

"They coddle the people, fail to tell the truth to them. Many men in Congress now flatter the people so much for many suicidal bowing to its licensing of gambling casinos. The Deputy asserted he knew a financier who had made $8,000,000 out of such authorized pleasure resorts. Another of his acquaintance had made a profit of $2,000,000.

The French Government in 1909 profited to the extent of $9,750,000 in percentages, said the Vicomte, but at what a moral cost! The profit accruing to the contractors for the casinos and other resorts was so enormous, the speaker added, that the croupiers' incomes often exceeded those of Cabinet Ministers. He knew of one who was receiving $18,000 yearly, and another had a salary of $12,000.

STRIKERS SMASH GOODS.

They Raid the Showrooms of the Columbia Lamp Works.

Into the offices of the Columbia Lamp Works, at 245 West Forty-seventh Street, seven strikers from among the employes who walked out of the shop on May 1 forced an entrance yesterday afternoon, brushing past the guards, and once inside, they piled crowbars in a general smashing of the lamps and automobile radiators on exhibition there. The two women clerks they terrorized with revolvers, fired wildly in the air.

The commotion brought the police, but of the seven men, six escaped. The seventh, Moe Mogulan of 61 East 102d Street, was sentenced to twenty days in the workhouse by Magistrate Corrigan in the West Side Court.

BRYAN PLEDGES US TO WORK FOR PEACE

proud to be connected with an Administration that is an advocate and an exponent of peace. The President could not live up to the expectations of this Nation or to the demands of this time if he were not whole-souled in his interest in this great cause.

"What are the forces that are back of the peace movement? They are the great forces of the world. No one can dispute it. And with increasing intelligence people not only learn more accurately the terrible cost of war, but as men rise in the scale of intelligence they more and more insist that their contests shall be upon an intellectual plane and not upon the plane of the brute. Therefore, as the world moves forward in intelligence it must move toward peace. But there is another force, a force that is even greater. It is the moral progress of the world.

"The world is advancing in morals. The moral standards of the world are being lifted up, and the world's conception of brotherhood is a constantly growing more definite and more clear year after year. There is a greater sense of kinship among men than there ever was before. There is more altruism on this earth than this earth has previously known. Every year the number of those increases who recognize that they are linked by indissoluble bands to all other people. And with this understanding of the meaning of universal brotherhood peace makes progress.

"The third great cause that makes for peace is the spread of that conception of government that puts increasing power in the hands of the people.

People Will End War.

"There was a time when Kings felt that it was their privilege to sacrifice their subjects to secure dominion for their families. Read the pages of history and see on how many occasions nations have been thrown together in war, and the only reason for it was the ambition of a father to provide an empire for a son. As the people take government into their hands, as the people more and more impress their will upon the Government, that Government will more and more reflect the real welfare of all the people, and the real welfare of all the people is advanced, not by war, but by peace.

"There are certain influences in a country that may profit by war; there are some, they are few in number comparatively, who grow rich as the people's burdens increase with the horrors of war, but it is not true of the multitude; the multitude bears the burden of taxation, and the masses furnish their sons to die on the battle line. We have, therefore, three great forces, forces at work throughout the world, forces that work constantly, at work irresistibly, and every one of those forces makes for peace.

"No nation shall go beyond us in its advocacy of peace or in its work for peace. If we allowed any nation to outstrip us we would be guilty before the world. If these three forces which I have mentioned are forces working in the interests of peace, then how can any nation excel us as an exponent of peace, as a worker in the vineyard for peace? For here we have increasing intelligence; here we have a growing sense of brotherhood, and here we have a Government growing more and more popular year by year.

"But there is another reason. This Nation more than any other nation has a population to which all other nations have contributed. Our Nation is linked by ties of blood to the other nations of the earth, and, therefore, we have at its maximum the restraining influence of blood and kinship to keep us from engaging in war with any other country in the world. Not only that, but our isolation, our freedom from danger. Things that would play on the passions of the world are less to people here than in any other country in the world, and therefore it is easier for our people not only to believe in peace but to give an evidence of their faith, and make that faith manifest in works. I believe that in the Nation, as in the individual, example is the most potent of influences.

"No other nation is better situated or better prepared to set an example in the interests of peace, and I am glad on this occasion to make reference to the acts of our President that embodied this thought in language. Two weeks ago yesterday, at his direction, I summoned the representatives of thirty-six nations represented at Washington to meet at 12 o'clock, that I might for him simultaneously present through them to their governments a proposition in which the President expresses not only his willingness to enter into arbitration agreement with every other nation, great or small—enter into agreement with every other nation that so far as our Nation and that contracting nation is concerned there will be no war, no declaration, no commencement of hostilities until the question in dispute has been investigated by an international tribunal and its report made known.

"I can speak of this proposition with more propriety and with more enthusiasm for the fact that it has already, in its essence, received the endorsement of a peace congress, held in the city of London, nearly seven years ago, where twenty-six nations were represented. And I am glad on this occasion to acknowledge my indebtedness to our distinguished visitor, Lord Weardale, for the efficient services rendered in securing the indorsement of this idea almost seven years ago.

"I believe, my friends, that this proposition is as long a step in the direction of peace as has ever been proposed. It does not mean to take the place of arbitration treaties; make all you can; submit to arbitration every question which you can agree to submit; but when you are through you will find, at least we have found thus far, that there are certain questions that are excepted.

"And they are so important that they themselves become the cause of war. And it is the purpose of this plan to close the gap and to leave no question to become a cause of war. It is the belief of the President, it is his earnest hope, that when these treaties have been made, or agreements if you prefer to call them such, agreements between this Nation and all the other Nations severally, by which there will be investigation before hostilities begin, it is his belief, it is his hope, that war will become practically impossible.

"When men are mad they talk about what they can do, when they are calm they talk about what they ought to do. And it is the purpose of this plan to provide a time for passion to subside, for reason to regain its throne, and it is the hope of those who believe in the plan that when it is adopted between this nation and other nations it will then be adopted between other nations until the nations of the earth will be knit together by these agreements and people will learn war no more."

Lord Weardale's Response.

Introducing Lord Weardale, head of the British delegation, as the next speaker, Mr. Choate recalled that he was once a neighbor of his in London, and remarked that their domiciles were separated by only about nine partitions, and that there had never been a word of contention between them. He had thus set an example for his followers, who had laid aside their "pugnacious, pugilistic tendencies, which prevailed during the century now being celebrated."

The eloquence of Secretary Bryan, whom Lord Weardale said he had first heard in the United States, somewhere in the vicinity of Cripple Creek, speaking from an eminence near a mining camp, was the subject of a tribute from the Englishman. Lord Weardale offered his congratulations to the American people on the choice of Mr. Bryan for the place of Secretary of State, and said that he would add lustre to the office.

The particular object of the visiting delegations was held by Lord Weardale to be a little more than to fix the plans for celebrating the centenary of the signing of the treaty of Ghent.

"For more than a hundred years upon that great boundary line between Canada and the United States," said Lord Weardale, "not one frowning fortress, not one menacing iron-clad, has disfigured either banks or waters. There has been and there is a lesson to-day which surely should come home to every thinking mind when some people are calling out for increased armaments in order to insure peace. Peace has been established there because armaments did not exist, and it is a great fact that I hope will be brought home to every mind when these celebrations take place.

"You will allow me to confine my observations to very general words of sympathy with the causes which have brought us together, and our most enthusiastic appreciation of the kindness shown to us in this country and of my firm belief that the day will come, if it is not already here, when the English speaking people of Great Britain and America will one and all say peace is here to stay, peace has come to reign, and never again shall the sword be allowed to break it."

Canada to Her Neighbor.

"It is my privilege," said Sir Edmund Walker, Chairman of the Canadian delegation, whom Mr. Choate presented as the "man who so fittingly represents our nearest neighbor, our dearest rival, and our constant friend," "to speak for that part of the British Empire that is represented by Canada. I wish to draw your attention to the fact that that country represents 8,000,000 people, with its nearest neighbor of 100,000,000 people, and that both of these countries are trying to carry out and develop the same kind of civilization. We are 100 years behind you for reasons which I shall not enter on to-night, but during the past 100 years, with as many causes of success as we have had, we have been, especially in our pre-railroad time, remote from all other countries in the world except the United States.

"Among the people who come to us, to the extent of more than one-third, are people from the United States. That immigration started about ten years ago, and it will never stop in the lifetime of any of us, and probably not in the lifetime of any of our children, because as long as we have in that country, land which is cheaper than yours and all the opportunities that man may want for his civilization, people will leave your country, of course, and go to ours.

"We live under the blessed condition that we have but one neighbor, and that between that neighbor and ourselves for 100 years we have been at least able to go to bed at night with the knowledge that no enemy could come easily while we were asleep and dispossess us, but there was not the slightest fear of anything of the kind.

"We are coming, however, to a time in our life when we may have occasion to look anxiously across the Pacific, not out of regard to ourselves so much as out of regard for our motherland; and it is a thing very well worth bearing in mind whether we believe that armaments are necessary to preserve peace or not.

"We then are to enjoy the tremendous privilege of living alongside of you in amity and in peace, and of developing a civilization which will be like yours, I hope sincerely, and there is no offense in the statement, there is admiration, but I hope sincerely that the civilization we develop will not be entirely like yours. I do not think that it is in the interest of the United States any more than in the interests of Canada that we should grow too like each other. We, of course, fancy that we shall be able to watch your social experiments and hope to learn from them. We hope that by the difference between us and by the contrast that exists that we may help all together to develop the British civilization of North America.

"The United States represents nearly 100,000,000 English-speaking people, by far th leargest body of English-speaking people brought together anywhere in the world. It is perhaps quite safe to say that for all time to come the body of English-speaking people in the Republic of North America will be larger than any other body of English-speaking people brought together in the whole world. The majority of the people in the British Empire do not speak the English language. Still, these subject people, who often represent the white man's burden of the British Empire to a great degree, will be among those who will join us in the celebration of this one hundred years of peace, and they will feel a keen personal interest in it because the two greatest instruments of peace in the world are the instruments within the United States and within the British Empire."

America and Australia.

"I have come from the fatherest outpost of the Anglo-Saxon race," said Sir George Houston Reid whom Mr. Choate introduced as the first and only delegate of the conference of Australia.

"As an Australian I have looked upon the beginnings of a magnificent displays of friendship between Great Britain and the United States with the keenest satisfaction. I am glad to notice that the people of his great Republic are beginning to doubt the generally received notion that the Almighty created a special breed of mankind about the year 1776. The fact is, the Motherland is as much your motherland as it is to the people of Astralia. The only difference between the people of America in the time I allude to, was this: it was the English-bred fighting in a good caus eagainst the English-bred fighting in a bad cause.

"I hope that no one will think that Britain's love of peace is a sign of weakness. The land may be old, but it is inhabited by a race that shows no signs of decay. It is quite true that all the Nations of the past have crumbled into decay. But there were great differences between the empires of the past and th mpire of Great Britain. Great Britain has born many illustrious children who will survive her, who wil larise to call her blessed, and who, whether in peace or war, will always be found standing by her side.

"Have we not had enough of the horrors and miseries of war? The patriots and the clear intellects in all lands are begining to see more clearly how the fertilizing streams of human energy may take their rise on various continents, how they may flow along in many distant lands. Thank God, they all fall at last into the broad ocean of universal progress."

Judge Gray on the Great Change.

"I have only one thought to contribute if it can be called a thought," said Judge George Gray of Delaware. "I feel that there is a certain fullness of time that is preceded by a preparation in the long train of historic events when all great movements that have made for the betterment of humanity have been consummated. These hundred years of which we have heard so much to-night have been a season of preparation. At no other preceding time up to the last decade has it been possible to have more than alluded to the dreams of the dreamer, to the imagination of the poets who conceived of universal peace, but here we find ourselves now in the whole world in a ferment looking to the great consummation of peace that we all have at heart. It is possible because this great preparation of the century just gone has made it possible."

Judge Gray said he was not one of those to believe there never was a just war or that peace had always been a desirable thing at any cost. He did have confidence, he said, that the great movement for peace the world over would result in a state of things which would make it more difficult in the future to engage in war. He regarded the movement as one affecting not only the English-speaking people but addressing itself to the sympathies of the whole world.

Among those present were Job E. Hedges, Dr. John H. Finley, Perry Belmont, Henry Clews, Borough President George Cromwell, Borough President Alfred E. Steers, Dr. Abraham Jacobi, George W. Perkins, Chancelor Elmer Brown, William A. Prendergast, Henry F. Osborn, Cornelius Vanderbilt, District Attorney Charles S. Whitman, J. Joyce Broderick, Police Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo, Borough President George McAneny, Borough President Cyrus C. Miller, Alphonse Van Werveke, Horace White, Oswald C. Villard, Chester S. Lord, Dr. George F. Kunz, John Mitchell, Samuel Gompers, Mr. and Mrs. George T. Wilson, Miss Elsie Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, George Foster Peabody, Marcus M. Marks, Robert Adamson, Commissioner of Docks R. A. C. Smith and Mrs. R. A. C. Smith, John D. Crimmins, William Jay Schieffelin, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac N. Seligman, Rodman Wanamaker, Dr. and Mrs. Louis L. Seaman, Rear Admiral Francis J. Higginson, U. S. N., and Mrs. Higginson, Francis Lynde Stetson, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Coudert, Mr. and Mrs. James Brown Scott, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Sloane, Dr. and Mrs. Beverly Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Austen G. Fox, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Burleigh, John Hays Hammond, Adolph Lewisohn, Charles D. Hilles, Otto H. Kahn, and Edward Lauterbach.

WARNS PEACE DELEGATES.

Prof. Muensterberg Says "Crowd" May Find Anti-German Motive.

The International Conference for formulating suitable plans for the celebration of the Centenary of the Signing of the Treaty of Ghent and the one-hundredth anniversary of peace among English speaking nations, concluded its week's labors at the Plaza yesterday.

In the morning the American committee held a session, Andrew Carnegie presiding, and among others present were Joseph H. Choate, Judge Alton B. Parker, B. J. Greenhut, Dr. John H. Finley, President of the College of the City of New York; Isaac N. Seligman, William B. Hornblower, Charles D. Hilles, Lyman J. Gage and Charles R. Flint.

After the annual report had been read by Secretary A. B. Humphrey, Mr. Carnegie said:

"I would like to make one suggestion. There should be on these monuments, not 'To celebrate one hundred years of peace with hopes for another hundred.' I don't like that. Here is what I would suggest: 'To celebrate a hundred years of peace, the hundred years of peace in the past, with abiding faith in unbroken peace for all the centuries to come.' The idea of limiting anything so heavenly as peace to a hundred years! I don't know but I may be living myself at that time."

The next speaker was Judge George Gray, who dwelt on the cordial relations between the two great English speaking nations, after which Mr. Carnegie said:

"The longer I live the more I appreciate the doctrine of 'Home our Heaven.' This life has become more and more delightful to me, and I confess that it is on occasions like this that the feeling comes home to me that perhaps I have not lived altogether in vain, and that I shall leave this world a little better than I found it."

Prof. Hugo Münsterberg of Harvard, the next speaker, rather ruffled the peace meeting when he suggested that the whole celebration might be construed as being aimed at Germany.

"We should endeavor to avoid as much as possible every appearance of its being pointed against non-English descendants of this country," he said. "From a personal conversation with Mr. Carnegie which I have not forgotten, I know that what is sought here is a better understanding and good feeling all over the world. But the crowd misunderstands it and the crowd thinks it means more intimate feelings between the English descendants of this country and England, crowding out somewhat the non-English, and there are many who think that the purpose of this whole movement is to bring America to the service of England in order to fight Germany. That is certainly a most absurd misunderstanding, and yet it would be most unfortunate if such a view would get more strength, because, after all, there is one century of peace with England, but the peace was never broken with Germany.

"I hope certainly that those who are responsible for the conduct of the detail of this great movement will not overlook the possibilities of danger. Mr. Carnegie said that this ought to be peace of an unlimited time. I think it should be unlimited not only with regard to time, but also with regard to National elements. Therefore, I hope that you will avoid anything which, while bringing peace between English speaking countries, may bring quarrels between the elements of this country."

George Foster Peabody replied to Prof. Münsterberg, reassuring him that the conference had no ulterior motives.

The afternoon session listened to an address by Prof. William A. Dunning of Columbia, in which he reviewed the century of peace, after which Mayor Preston of Baltimore extended an invitation to the committee to visit Baltimore, the invitation being seconded by Mrs. Donald McLean. A joint meeting of the American Committee and the international conferrees brought the week's work to a close.

The International conferrees, with the exception of Lord Weardale and Mr. Mills, leave this morning for Boston.

WANAMAKER GIVES $25,000.

Building for Colored People His Part in Girl-Conservation Work.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—John Wanamaker to-day gave $25,000 to the $500,000 Girl-Conservation Fund of the Y. W. C. A., bringing the total of the day's subscriptions to $33,227 and for the campaign so far to $350,815. In his letter to the campaign chairman Mr. Wanamaker said:

The part I have chosen to have in the good work of the Young Women's Christian Association is to subscribe $25,000 to the building for the Young Women's Christian Association for Colored People, with the understanding that the money already contributed shall be invested and the interest thereof applied for a maintenance fund. The location of the building, its erection, or the adaptation of existing buildings to be subject to the approval of Mr. William R. Nicholson, Mr. Joseph M. Steele, and Mr. Rodman Wanamaker, with the consent of your managers. Very truly yours, JOHN WANAMAKER.

The $50,000 conditional gift of Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury and another conditional gift of $5,000 previously announced, with the $350,815 unconditional contributions, bring the total to $405,815, leaving less than $95,000 to be collected.

MILITANTS MENACE BLENHEIM PALACE

Duke of Marlborough Accordingly Closes It to the Public.

TAXICABS ARE DAMAGED

Arson Squad Destroys Another Country House—Heavy Guard for Asquith.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 9.—The Duke of Marlborough has received a warning in an anonymous letter from a supporter of the suffragette movement, who says she is opposed to any violence, that "Blenheim Palace has got to fall by the hands of the suffragettes."

The letter adds that a plot is now being prepared, and that the particular portion to be damaged will be the picture gallery. No expense will be spared to ruin the palace.

Blenheim Palace is one of the great show places of the country, and thousands have enjoyed the sight of the treasures gathered there.

In view, however, of the danger indicated in the letter the Duke has decided that for the present he will be compelled to close the palace to visitors.

(By Wireless.)

The latest form of suffragette attack is the mutilation of taxicabs, one of which had its interior fittings ruined to-day. A card bearing the inscription "Votes for Women" was left on the seat.

This is a small, trumpery affair in comparison with the campaign of arson, the latest exploit of which is the destruction of a large empty country house near Barrow-in-Furness belonging to Lord Richard Cavendish. The suffragettes also made an extensive raid on pillar post boxes in Romford, where nearly all the contents were damaged with a blue fluid.

LONDON, May 10.—The anxiety of the British authorities over the threat of the militant suffragettes to eclipse destructive acts of the past week was displayed this morning when Premier Asquith and Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, accompanied by their wives, left Waterloo Station on the South-western Railway to proceed to the coast in order to join the Admiralty yacht Enchantress, on which they will make an extended cruise in the Mediteranean.

A large number of naval aides-de-camp, departmental secretaries, and railway officials surrounded the party formed by the Cabinet Ministers and those who had come to bid them farewell. Beyond these there was an outer circle of detectives to protect the Ministers from any undue attention on the part of militant suffragettes or their male supporters. So great was the protecting force in the railway station that any demonstration by the suffragettes would have been impossible.

Mr. Asquith and Mr. Churchill intend to inspect the British garrisons and naval stations in the Mediterranean.

"General" Mrs. Flora Drummond, the militant suffragette leader, who collapsed twice in the Bow Street Police Court during yesterday's conspiracy proceedings against the principal officers of the Women's Social and Political Union, is to-day very ill from the effects of her privations during her "hunger strike," and the physician in attendance has advised her to undergo an operation.

The National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies is organizing an immense national suffrage pilgrimage. Each of the seventeen federations of the union will arrange for processions from all parts of the kingdom to London. The suffragette propaganda will be carried out by the pilgrims on their way to the capital, and the demonstration will culminate in a great meeting in Hyde Park on July 26, and a service in St. Paul's Cathedral the following day.

Mrs. Millicent Fawcett, President of the National Union of Women's Societies, says in a manifesto:

"The keynote of the pilgrimage will be the joyfulness of self-dedication to a great cause. Every pilgrim will have in her heart a deep sense of reverent happiness that it has fallen to her lot to have a chance of dedicating herself to one of the greatest movements in the history of the world."

The Mayor of Windsor has received an official letter expressing the King's sincere regret for the cause which made necessary the closing of the State apartments at Windsor Castle to visitors. The Mayor has been informed that the apartments will be reopened to the public when the militant activities of the suffragettes cease.

The Manchester police to-day arrested Mr. Whiteley, Secretary of the firm which printed the last issue of The Suffragette.

The Daily Mail, in an editorial to-day, suggests that the suffragettes could secure all they have at heart by organizing a woman's Parliament or Senate, elected on representative lines by the women of the whole country. Such a body, the editorial says, although lacking in executive authority, could draft measures, and if it acted with sanity and judgment it would acquire immense influence, and its recommendations could not lightly be disregarded by the House of Commons.

NEW MONTENEGRIN CABINET

Promises to Evacuate Scutari To-morrow—Disastrous Fire There.

CETTINJE, May 9.—A new Montenegrin Cabinet, under the Premiership of Gen. Vukotitch, was formed to-day to take the place of the Government which resigned when King Nicholas decided to evacuate Scutari at the behest of the European powers.

The Foreign Office immediately afterward opened negotiations with the commanding officers of the international fleet which has been engaged in blockading the coasts of Montenegro, and arrangements were made for the evacuation of Scutari. This began yesterday and will be completed by Sunday, when the last of the Montenegrin soldiers will march out of the city.

The foreign admirals will then land detachments from the fleet, and the formal surrender of the old Turkish fortress will be made to the combined international forces.

King Nicholas to-day, in a speech to the members of the Montenegrin Parliament, said that, in the interests of general peace and in order to save Montenegro and the entire Serb nation, he had been forced to yield to the European powers. Russia, Servia, and Greece, he said, had counseled submission on the part of Montenegro. Russia, however, had undertaken to continue to protect the little kingdom.

CHINA ACCEPTS THE LOAN.

First Advance of $125,000,000 Total to be Made To-day.

PEKING, May 9.—The bankers representing the five powers—Great Britain, France, Germany, Russia and Japan—in connection with the loan of $125,000,000 to China were notified to-day by the Minister of Finance of China's final acceptance of the loan.

The first advance will be made to-morrow.

HAMMERSTEIN WINS SUIT.

Keith Prowse Company Must Pay for London Opera Tickets.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 9.—Oscar Hammerstein has won his suit against the Keith Prowse Company for $2,595, the balance due for seats at the London Opera House.

The defendants pleaded that Mr. Hammerstein had failed to perform the terms of the contract under which they guaranteed the sale of $11,250 worth of tickets during April and July, 1912.

Mr. Justice Bray said that he could not find that Mr. Hammerstein had not produced certain operas just to save his own pocket. It seemed to him that Mr. Hammerstein's attitude was: "I will not promise anything. You must trust me and my discretion."

Mr. Justice Bray held that there had been no contract to perform twenty-eight operas. The parties should have inserted in the contract what penalties were to be paid by Mr. Hammerstein if there were a breach of contract.

NAPOLEON SCOFFS AT GLORY

According to French Spiritualist, His Shade Calls It a Monstrosity.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, May 9.—Totally unexpected views of glory and ambition were expressed by Napoleon, according to Eugene Sorgue, at a spiritualistic séance held by the latter at Oran.

"It is very painful," said the conqueror from his astral plane, according to to-night's Journal des Debats, "for spirits to note how all the evil caused by politics quickly disappears from the consciousness of people. The glory you have acquired is soon forgotten or only vaguely remembered; but you cannot be blamed for forgetting glory, because everything called glory is in reality only a great monstrosity toward humanity. Your monstrous earthly politics are nearly always inspired by the personal ambitions of a few individuals. It is unpardonable wickedness for men to warn people that their vitality in relation to liberty is at stake. These are only words used to influence great masses. Those uttering them know that nobody can deprive the world of what God created."

"The fatalism here expressed is familiar," the Debats observes, "but the contempt for ambition is unrecognizable."

FEARED ANARCHIST AIRMAN.

Paris Police Let Only Known Aviators Fly for King Alfonso.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, May 9.—King Alfonso's visit to Buc to-day to witness the aviation evolutions presented a new problem to the Paris police. It was conceivable that danger might come near the King in the form of an anarchist flying over the royal stand.

During the display, therefore, all the airmen in Paris, except those participating in the spectacle at Buc, were forbidden to make ascents.

PARIS, May 9.—The political results of the visit of King Alfonso have not been disclosed, but the opinion is general in well-informed quarters that a close understanding between the French and Spanish Governments has been attained, and that this may develop into an alliance.

Virtually the entire press of France, with the exception of the Socialist newspapers, expresses itself in favor of such an alliance, which, it says, would add 200,000 excellent soldiers to assist in the defense of France, and would make Spain a secure field for the investment of French capital and thus develop the immense latent resources of the country. Spain, it is pointed out, would by such an alliance be raised to an important place in the diplomacy of Europe.

Count Alvaro de Romanones, the Spanish Premier, speaking to a representative of the Liberté to-day, said:

"To-day Spain and France have reached a friendly agreement. To-morrow the two countries may take a further step. The understanding we have attained is the result of mutual effort."

SWINDLER DUPED SHAW.

Messenger Obtained Playwright's Check in Exchange for a Forgery.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 9.—George Bernard Shaw has fallen a victim to the wiles of a swindler. He has been robbed of $2,625.

A few days ago Mr. Shaw received by messenger a note, purporting to come from Pethick Lawrence, editor of Votes for Women. Accompanying the note was a crossed check (payable only through a bank) for $2,625, made payable to Mr. Lawrence. The note requested Mr. Shaw to hand the bearer an uncrossed check for the same amount, so that it might be cashed forthwith.

Mr. Lawrence's handwriting had been so cleverly imitated that Mr. Shaw, quite unsuspicious, gave the required check, which was cashed almost immediately by his bank. Mr. Shaw, when he presented the crossed check at the bank, discovered that it was the work of an expert forger, and that Mr. Lawrence was wholly ignorant of the matter.

SMALLPOX IN STOCKHOLM.

Half the Inhabitants Vaccinated—Only One Death as Yet.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

STOCKHOLM, May 9.—A smallpox epidemic is frightening Stockholm. A Swedish workman returning from Russia developed the disease and spread the infection in a public ward of the general hospital.

There have been thirty-five cases, one with death. There was a great rush for vaccination, nearly half of the inhabitants having been vaccinated within a few days. The energetic measures taken by the authorities seem to have prevented the spread of the epidemic, though fear of it is still prevalent.

WORKMANS CLIMBED 21,000-FOOT PEAKS

American Explorers Surveyed Himalayan Glacier 47 Miles Long.

TWO PORTERS WERE KILLED

Peaks Named After King and Queen of England—Saved from an Avalanche.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 9.—Dr. W. H. Workman and Mrs. Fanny Bullock Workman have returned to Paris after an absence of more than a year spent in exploring the Himalayas. Their expedition was very successful, although two of the party lost their lives. Some exceptionally fine groups of peaks at the head of the Siachen Glacier, heretofore unknown, were mapped, and several virgin peaks were climbed.

"We are feeling exceptionally fine," said Dr. Workman, "barring a slight touch of asthma and throat trouble which always recurs when we get back to the dust of cities. I regret exceedingly the loss of two lives—that of Chenoz, one of our Italian porters, who fell into a crevasse, and that of a native porter, who tumbled into a subglacial river. The latter accident occurred when two porters, working in conjunction with our survey party, were traveling alone. After a superb effort the second porter got the first out of his predicament, but before he could get help and return the injured native had been frozen to death. Mrs. Workman voluntarily pensioned the man's family.

"We encountered very great cold—almost as great as that experienced by Amundsen in the antarctic—the thermometer averaging zero every night for two weeks, and on one occasion falling to 4 degrees below. When the altitude and winds are considered our hardships may be imagined. Sometimes storms raged for thirty hours, but, speaking generally, we had very fine weather."

Mrs. Workman added:

"Our principal work was the exploration of about 900 square miles of new country, including the great Siaschen or Rose Glacier in Eastern Karakoram, which was explored and surveyed by us for the first time. This glacier is about forty-seven miles long and in places two and three-quarters miles wide. Its valley is the longest belonging to any glacier in the world outside the polar regions. We passed six weeks on the ice, which forms the most difficult glacier in Asia for exploration, as the approach to it must be made from Baltistan, over twenty-five miles of crevassed glaciers, including a passage of 18,400 feet over the snowy Bilaphon Pass.

"For five weeks we camped at heights varying from 16,000 to 19,000 feet. Two new peaks 21,000 feet in altitude were climbed, and north and west watersheds were discovered and visited. Forty new peaks were triangulated by the theodolite. Among the peaks first seen and identified as a cluster are those at the head of the Siaschen, which the King consented to have called the King George group, and as such they will appear on the new Indian survey map. The Queen also consented to our naming the high peak of the Siaschen Glacier after her.

"We had diversion enough. Ibex as large as yaks—quite tame, since they had never been shot at—came around within 400 feet to have a look at us. We saw wolves, foxes, and plenty of mouse hares. In order to have fresh milk most of the time we took with us fifteen milch goats which served the purpose admirably We also had twenty-five sheep, which were killed for food as circumstances required.

"Twice I narrowly escaped being killed. I was walking directly behind Chenoz when he stepped into the crevasse. Had I been roped to him, as I usually was, nothing could have saved my life. Above Bilaphon Glacier we all got nearly killed. Dr. Workman was in the act of taking a photograph when a tremendous avalanche crossed our path, near enough to powder us.

"It is a curious fact that, although we bought shoes for our native porters, they preferred to save them and walked up the glacier barefooted."

Low Prices at Lesperonmiel Sale.

PARIS, May 9.—Surprise and disappointment are expressed at the small total realized at the Lesperonmiel sale. To-day's proceedings brought in only $24,336, which is practically a low record for important sales at the Georges Petit Galleries. The bidding was slack, and the prices generally below the experts' valuation

HEPBURN CHEERFUL AS TO NEW TARIFF

Banker Looks for Prosperity Both in Europe and America.

FORESEES SOME RECESSION

Until Business Adapts Itself—English Activity at High-Water Mark.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 9.—A. Barton Hepburn has arrived in London from a four months' shooting trip in Africa. He will sail for home on the Mauretania.

He has prepared a statement for the Directors of the Chase National Bank, of which he is Chairman, and has given a copy to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, in the course of which he says:

"Returning from East Africa, where I have been wholly out of touch with current events, I have naturally been seeking to ascertain present business conditions and prospects. I have conferred with prominent bankers and business men, and I have dined with the Political Economy Club, where the question under discussion was whether or not there were any signs or portents indicating curtailment of present business activity and prosperity in the near future. The question was ably discussed by prominent men of large affairs, and the consensus of opinion seemed to be that the prospect was one of hopefulness rather than of confidence. Contracts and payments are in a state of suspension in Turkey, necessarily, and largely in abeyance in certain sections of the Balkan States. When peace is finally declared and normal conditions are restored a very large number of bankruptcies may be expected.

Needs of Balkan States.

"All the States engaged in the Balkan war need and must have money in large amounts. Austria-Hungary, it is said, will come in the market for loans. Germany is the natural source from which all these States will expect help, and in order for Germany to maintain her commercial and financial prestige with these States she will naturally wish to meet their requirements. These demands, plus the constantly growing needs resulting from German commercial expansion, are likely to make strong demands upon Germany's financial resources.

"Commercial business in France seems somewhat relaxed, and French money conditions are easier than those of any other nation. The demands of India and Egypt are pronounced, but normal. China stands ready to take money whenever the great commercial nations have it to spare. Business activity in England is at high water mark, with no apparent signs of recession. Undoubtedly her manufacturers are rushing manufactured goods, expecting to find a profitable market in the United States when the pending tariff reductions become law.

"The official statement to Congress that the proposed tariff reductions would not disastrously affect manufacturers with up-to-date machinery and methods, but might affect those concerns that were not managed with economy and efficiency, produced an impression here. The failure of any considerable number of concerns from any cause will disastrously affect any community, temporarily, at least. Even though their weeding out would prove a blessing in the end, it would also produce a sentimental effect that would be a depressing influence.

A Period of Uneasiness.

"A period of uncertainty and business recession must follow tariff legislation until business adapts itself to changed conditions, and until harmonious relations are established between the Government and large business interests—the Union and Southern Pacific Railways, for instance—full confidence in American affairs and American securities will be wanting.

"The proposed tariff reductions of the present Administration are cordially indorsed in Europe, where it is thought that they will prove advantageous to the United States, but may temporarily be disturbing and uncover other things that will be likely to produce liquidation and recession of values. Personally I do not share this pessimism as to American affairs and cannot help feeling optimistic as to the future of business in both Europe and America."

information as to the opinion of the members of this association as to the main facts, and though perhaps we might have liked to go further, these resolutions cover the facts as we know them."

The resolutions were adopted by a large majority.

No reference to the offer of Prescott Simpson of Cleveland, of 100 cultures of the Piorkowski vaccine to the association was made in the public sessions during the day. The fact was confirmed that telegrams were received by Dr. William Charles White of Pittsburgh, Dr. John H. Lowman of Cleveland, who was to-day elected President of the association, and Dr. Edward R. Baldwin of Saranac Lake.

Piorkowski Offer Ignored.

At the executive session of the Board of Directors there was discussion of these telegrams, and it was decided to ignore the offer.

The Directors felt much the same way about the efficacy of the Piorkowski vaccine that they did about the Friedmann vaccine and method of treatment, and it was felt that the resolution adopted to-day covered the situation with respect to all alleged remedies which had recently been heralded as "specific cures" for tuberculosis.

Among the new Directors elected by the association were Lee K. Frankel and Dr. Hermann M. Biggs of New York City, Dr. Herbert M. King of Liberty, and Frederic Almy.

TEXT OF OFFICIAL REPORT.

How the Friedmann Treatment Was Observed—Deductions Drawn.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Following is the full text of the official report on the Friedmann vaccine, made to-day by Dr. John F. Anderson of the Public Health Service, Chairman of the committee which has been making the investigation for the Government:

In November, 1912, Dr. F. F. Friedmann of Berlin reported before the Medical Society of that city a new method of treatment for tuberculosis, consisting of injections with what he described as living, avirulent tubercular bacilli.

In the discussion, following his paper, a number of scientists, whose opinion was regarded as carrying weight, supported in greater or less degree his contentions that curative effects were derived from this method of treatment.

On theoretical grounds the treatment of tuberculosis by living, avirulent tubercle bacilli, if such could be secured, had been regarded as the most hopeful line along which work could be carried, and for this reason, and because of the measure of support which had been given to Dr. Friedmann's methods, the interest of the Public Health Service was attracted to the subject.

The number and source of inquiries, received from the most diverse parts of the country, showed that this interest was being widely shared and, to a large extent, had been stimulated by widespread publicity through newspapers and other publications.

Beginning of Negotiations.

It being one of the duties of the Public Health Service to investigate the diseases of man and their methods of control, correspondence was entered into through the Department of State to ascertain whether Dr. Friedmann would submit details of preparation and administration of his remedy and its effects on patients to representatives of the Public Health Service; and if so, under what conditions.

In correspondence, Dr. Friedmann expressed a willingness to place at the disposal of such investigators all the facts at his command and afford them every aid to prepare a "comprehensive and impartial report."

Before arrangements could be completed to send an officer to Berlin, advices were received through the State Department that Dr. Friedmann was preparing to transfer his activities to the United States, and notification of the date of his sailing was received through the same source.

Preparations were accordingly made to meet Dr. Friedmann on his arrival with a view to taking advantage of his expressed willingness to have an investigation made of his remedy; and a board was appointed, consisting of Surgeon John F. Anderson and Passed Assistant Surgeon Arthur M. Stimson, to carry on the work.

At its first interview with Dr. Friedmann the board ascertained that he was not willing to reveal all the details of his methods, contrary to the offer contained in his previous correspondence. He willingly furnished a culture of the organism, however, which he stated was used in the preparation of his remedy, but declined to divulge the method of its use in the preparation of the remedy, and he would not make any definite statement as to the antecedents of the culture in question.

He imposed, as a condition to finally furnishing detailed information regarding the methods of preparation of his remedy, a recognition of the board of favorable results from the use of the remedy on patients. He specifically disclaimed that his culture was possessed of either curative or immunizing properties against tuberculosis in the lower animals, but had no objection to an investigation of his claim that it was completely avirulent to them. He agreed to administer the remedy to patients for purposes of observation by us of its effects upon them and to give them such subsequent treatments as, in his opinion, were necessary to effect a cure.

Arrangement Not Satisfactory.

The board, in effect, found that under the conditions mentioned it would have opportunity only to study a culture of the bacteria, said to be used in some way by Dr. Friedmann in the preparation of his treatment, to test its pathogenicity on the lower animals, and to observe the effect of treatment by him of tuberculosis patients with his finished remedy.

It will be recognized, of course, that such an arrangement was not satisfactory from a scientific standpoint, but, in view of the great importance of the matter to tuberculosis patients throughout the country and in the hope that a valuable remedy might have at last been found to not only cure tuberculosis patients, but to prevent the disease, the conditions imposed by Dr. Friedmann were accepted. An additional reason for taking advantage of opportunities to make every study possible was the assurance, by Dr. Friedmann, of its harmlessness, when injected into human beings.

Arrangements were accordingly made with the staffs of Mt. Sinai Hospital, Bellevue Hospital, the Montefiore Home, and Seton Hospital, whereby patients would be placed at the disposal of Dr. Friedmann for purposes of treatment. The thorough co-operation of these authorities has been had during the course of the observations and it is a pleasure to acknowledge publicly their great courtesy.

Practically all the patients in question had, for some time, been resident in these hospitals, were under the care of their visiting staffs, and our observations were made conjointly with those authorities; and, with their valuable assistance, the investigations have been undertaken and conducted in an impartial manner. The reticence and attitude of Dr. Friedmann have in no way been allowed to interfere with our judgment of the effects as observed by us.

Progress of the Test.

Considerable delay has been experienced in the treatment of cases on account of the repeated absence of Dr. Friedmann from New York, the first patients having received their first injection March 9, and the last of them their first treatment April 6. In all, ninety-four patients had received the first injection up to April 15, when it became necessary to inform Dr. Friedmann that, on account of the halting progress in the demonstration, the board was forced to limit its studies to these patients. Dr. Friedmann was also informed that, in the interest of the demonstration, these patients should be seen by him with a view of giving such additional injections of his remedy as might, in his judgment, be necessary to effect a cure. Up to the present time, five of these patients have received a second injection.

On account of the enormous number of inquiries regarding the remedy, and the statements in newspapers purporting to be expressions of opinion of the board of officers as to its value, a statement was made in the public health reports on March 21, 1913, to the effect that considerable time would necessarily be required to carry out the investigations, that no opinion had been expressed one way or the other, and that in the meantime the public was informed of the inadvisability of tuberculosis patients traveling long distances in the hope of receiving the treatment. This latter information was furnished on account of the hardships and disappointments suffered by those who had traveled to New York in the hope of receiving treatment.

We believe that, at the present time, we are not in a position to express an opinion based on the present condition of patients under observation. The disease for which the remedy is used is prolonged, and is characterized by periods of advancement and retrogression; it is also one in which psychic influences are a powerful factor. Time is, therefore, necessary in order to properly evaluate the effect of therapeutic measures.

Warns Against Too Great Optimism

We must not lose sight of the possible therapeutic value of this preparation and, on the other hand, it is necessary to guard against too great an optimism in respect to its merits.

Without presenting in detail the condition of patients under observation, we are in a position to state that the effects, thus far observed, do not justify the confidence in the remedy which has been inspired by widespread publicity. In our opinion harm may have been done by this undue publicity, in so far as it has lessened the confidence of tuberculous persons in well recognized methods of treatment or interrupted their use, and we are constrained to advise against any lessening of those well-known measures, which not only have effected cures, but which have reduced the incidence of the disease.

We are aware that Dr. Friedmann does not wish to be judged scientifically on newspaper statements and he would undoubtedly disclaim responsibility for certain of those which have appeared. Nevertheless, it is on those that the public bases its opinion, until replaced by reliable and unbiased scientific pronouncements, supported by convincing data.

In his published address before the Berlin Medical Society, Dr. Friedmann stated that the intra-muscular injection was the standard or "sovereign" method of administering his treatment, but that it offered some difficulties which were overcome by the combined or simultaneous intravenous and intra-muscular method. The chief difficulty seems to have been that in certain individuals the "normal" local reaction (consisting of the development of an infiltrate from the size of a nut to that of an apple, which becomes gradually resorbed) either fails to develop any palpable induration whatever, or the infiltrate breaks down in the form of a discharging abscess.

According to his article, the course to pursue seems to be, in the first instance, to repeat injections at long intervals until the development of "hyper-susceptibility" caused the formation of an infiltrate; or, in the second instance, to refrain entirely from further treatment for a prolonged period, since "further injections will only subject the patient to more abscesses without doing him any good."

Cases of this kind, therefore, would apparently be in need of treatment, according to Dr. Friedmann's ideas, for a long period of time. In our series of patients, Dr. Friedmann has almost exclusively made use of the intra-muscular method alone in pulmonary cases, and a very considerable proportion of them have either developed no considerable infiltrate at all or have suffered from abscess formation. It is evident, therefore, that a very considerable proportion of these patients may expect their treatment at the hands of Dr. Friedmann to extend over a prolonged period.

Nature of the Vaccine.

Concerning the culture submitted to us, we may state that a series of experiments is under way. The bacillus has been found to be an acid-fast organism, having properties quite different from those of any tubercle-bacillus with which we are acquainted. It appears to be identical with an organism, cultivated from a few loopfuls of the material used for injection, which Dr. Friedmann permitted us to place on culture media in his presence.

We requested Dr. Friedmann to furnish us with a larger amount of this material for examination, but this he has declined to do. We can state, however, that living acid-fast bacteria are being injected by the intra-muscular and intra-venous method, although we are ignorant of what medium they are suspended in or what additional substance or substances may be contained in the final mixture.

FRIEDMANN MINIMIZES REPORT

Not Significant, He Asserts, but May Say More To-day.

Dr. F. F. Friedmann, who returned yesterday from Canada, where he gave a second injection of his vaccine to 61 patients, whom he had previously inoculated, showed no signs of being disturbed by the official report concerning his method of tuberculosis treatment, presented to the Government at Washington, and read at the meeting of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, by Dr. John P. Anderson of the Public Health Service.

When interviewed at the Majestic Hotel, to which he transferred his place of residence on his arrival, he said he had not read the report of Dr. Anderson or the resolutions passed on the strength of it by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. He woul dnot discuss the report, merely remarking that there was nothing very significant about it. He added that he had never heard of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. He denied having been associated with Dr. Pierkowski of Berlin, who is shipping to this country a turtle vaccine similar to Dr. Friedmann's.

Morris Eisner of Eisner & Mendelsohn, who have obtained the rights for the sale of the Friedmann vaccine in this country, and purpose to establish Friedmann institutes in more than half of the States, asserted, however, that the report of Dr. Anderson was nothing more than he had expected. Mr. Eisner did not regard it as necessarily adverse, and pointed out as significant that part where Dr. Anderson said: "We must not lose sight of the possible therapeutic value of this preparation."

Mr. Eisner promised a fuller statement from Dr. Friedmann to-day in answer to the report of Dr. Anderson.

Asked when the first Friedmann institute was to be established in this city, Mr. Eisner said that an office would be opened on Monday, but did not tell where. With regard to the treatment of patients, Mr. Eisner said that the institute in this city would be primarily for purposes of demonstration. People with means would be charged for the treatment, while the poor would be inoculated free. The selection of the poor subjects for treatment, according to Mr. Eisner, would be a matter of supervision for some charity organization.

Dr. Friedmann was accompanied on his trip to Canada by Capt. D. G. Arnold of the Rhode Island Coast Artillery, who represents Gov. Pothier in an effort to obtain the location of a Friedmann Institute in Providence.

Yesterday afternoon he went to the Seton Hospital at Spuyten Duyvil, where he examined about two dozen of his patients. He was accompanied by Dr. Stimson, who signed the Anderson report, and Dr. Appel of the Marine Hospital.

BERLIN, May 9.—Prof. Schleich, who is in charge of Dr. Friedmann's sanatorium while the latter is in America, flew into a rage to-day when THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent asked what reply he wished to make to the statements of Frankfort physicians criticising the conduct of himself and Dr. Friedmann regarding the patients inoculated by them at Frankfort.

Prof. Schleich refused to say anything beyond expressing his belief that the Frankfort doctors had not made the statements attributed to them, although the correspondent assured him positively that they had done so.

TARIFF BILL MEETS REVERSE IN SENATE

Five Democrats Desert Leaders by Backing Republican Proposal for Public Hearings.

MAJORITY OUT OF HAND

Senate Adjourns Till Tuesday to Give Leaders a Chance to Win Back Recalcitrants.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The tariff bill reached the Senate this afternoon, and in the first day's skirmish there encountered a severe reverse. As a result, the Democratic leaders adjourned the Senate until next Tuesday, to allow time to reform their shattered ranks. Unless recalcitrant Democrats are won back by that time, it looks as if public hearings before the Finance Committee will be ordered and the progress of the bill delayed for many weeks. While the leaders are confident of their ability ultimately to pass the bill with no serious changes from the text of the House measure, to-day's experience has impressed upon them the need of great caution.

The tussle this afternoon came on the motion of Mr. Simmons of North Carolina, Chairman of the Committee on Finance, to refer the bill to that committee. Mr. Penrose of Pennsylvania, ranking Republican of the committee, offered an amendment that the committee be instructed to hold public hearings, and it was on this amendment that the fight centred. The leaders laid the matter aside for consultation and the Senate ultimately adjourned.

The leaders were actuated in this course by direct information that they had temporarily lost control of the majority. Five Democratic Senators let it be known that they favored public hearings and would vote for Mr. Penrose's amendment. That would have given the amendment a support of 50 to 46, on the subject of hearings, and the handling of the bill would practically have made Mr. Penrose the leader of the majority.

The five Democrats who are mentioned as having given notice of their intention to oppose their party leaders are Senator John R. Thornton and Joseph E. Ransdell of Louisiana; J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois; James E. Martine of New Jersey, and Morris Sheppard of Texas. Of these, Mr. Martine, as a Democrat from President Wilson's home State, and Mr. Sheppard are certain to support the bill on its final passage, and Mr. Lewis has never been mentioned as doubtful, but other Democratic Senators who are considered so are not included in to-day's list of defections. This alignment is puzzling the leaders.

Kern Intervenes.

The Penrose amendment had been discussed for about two hours when, under the rule, a resolution by Senator Kern of Indiana was laid before the Senate as its unfinished business. Had the way been smooth for the adoption of Mr. Simmons's motion for reference to his committee without instructions, Mr. Kern's resolution would have been temporarily laid aside, and the consideration of the motion to refer would have continued. As it was, Mr. Kern's resolution occupied the Senate until, in despair of reforming the Democratic lines to-night, adjournment was taken. All that Mr. Simmons could accomplish was unanimous consent to print 2,000 copies of the bill as it passed the House.

In adjourning until next Tuesday, the longest recess possible under the Constitution without the consent of the House, the leaders hope to bring pressure to bear upon the deserters. It is likely that this hope will be realized, and that enough of the recalcitrants will return to carry out the leaders' programme. Meanwhile the Louisiana Senators who have been fighting for months against any free sugar provision in the bill are evidently elated.

"I don't know anything about it," said Mr. Thornton, chuckling mysteriously, "but I have a feeling that if the vote had come this afternoon public hearings would have been ordered. I suppose they have adjourned until Tuesday to bring pressure on those who would have supported Mr. Penrose's amendment."

The defeat that forced the Democratic managers was not generally known, but late in the afternoon the failure of the leaders to push the tariff bill into the hands of the controlling committee aroused suspicions in certain quarters. The leaders were evidently marking time, utilizing every rule of the Senate in the interests of delay. Mr. Kern's course, as the titular Democratic leader, in pressing his resolution was part of the plan to put off a vote on the previous motion until adjournment could be taken without raising the issue again.

Inquiries disclosed what was troubling the leaders. The strange part of it is that Mr. Walsh of Montana, a Democrat, who has been considered almost as hostile to the free wool provisions as the Louisiana Senators are to free sugar, had no wish for further hearings. The best explanation of the tangled situation seems to be that in the closely divided Senate party discipline sits lightly, and that certain Democratic Senators, like Mr. Martine, Mr. Sheppard, and Mr. Lewis, whose loyalty to the Administration is not doubted, have yielded to the demands of constituents to present their claims before the committee. All three of these Senators, it is thought, will in the end support the bill itself.

The debate on the Tariff bill to-day was lively, but took no definite course. Mr. Smith of Michigan, Republican, quickly launched out into an assault on the measure, which Democrats gladly seized upon as an excuse for sharp retorts. The principal developments of the debate were the unmistakable indications given by Mr. Thomas of Colorado and Mr. Lane of Washington, Democrats, both of whom have been mentioned as opposing the House draft, that they will support the bill as it stands.

Wrangle Over Sugar.

"Everybody knows," shouted Mr. Smith, waving his hands toward the Democrats, "that the sugar industry of this country is dead. The bill gives it three years in which to die, and gives the American Sugar Refining Company three years in which to buy out the stock of the smaller companies which will be swamped."

Senator Ollie James of Kentucky, Democrat, who, before he entered the Senate, was a member of the House Ways and Means Committee that drafted the bill, wrung from Mr. Smith the reluctant admission that the Hamburg price of sugar was often 2 cents a pound below the price in America under the Payne-Aldrich protection, and that in England the price of sugar was often less than in America.

"The duty costs the American people $115,000,000 a year," said Senator James, "and it protects the sugar refiners and growers, who have about $20,000,000 invested. I would rather see the country buy the plants outright than tax the people so heavily for their protection."

Senator Smith, in vigorously appealing for consideration of the bill in the open instead of in "the darkness and gloom" of the committee room, said the latter course would result in a repetition of "dark days" that followed the Wilson bill.

Senator Thomas read to the Senate an article from a Troy (N. Y.) newspaper in which an employe of the United States Shirt Company asserted that that concern already had threatened to reduce wages and in other ways had attempted to coerce its workers to use their influence against the Underwood bill.

"Tactics of this sort will produce any but desired results," said Senator Thomas. "I believe that an industry which resorts to this line of conduct in order that its employes may be coerced should meet the result of having placed on the free list every article that enters into its line of business."

"I think it little less than brazen effrontery," retorted Senator Smith, "for the Senator from Colorado to make these statements, and to say that manufacturers shall not be allowed to complain about the burdens put upon them by this bill. If you think by your threats you can force silence on the part of employers of labor, you are making a mistake."

MILL LOSS LAID TO TARIFF.

Revision Fears Blamed for $100,000,000 Shrinkage in Share Values.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 9.—The depreciation of $100,000,000 in the value of New England mill shares since 1909 is attributed by The Boston News Bureau to "the prospects of general business depression and tariff revision."

"The Pacific Mills, paying 6 per cent., the shares hovering above par, the Arlington, paying 8 per cent. at 95, and the 7 per cent. American Woolen at 74, are but instances of the general run of prices," it says. "There are many New Bedford and Fall River stocks, new and old, selling at virtually the lowest level in their history. The declines have been taking place gradually for months, but in the recent past have been exceptionally sharp.

"By careful calculation the loss on New Bedford stocks alone exceeds $10,000,000, and in Fall River, too, over $8,500,000, a combined loss for these two big textile centers of $18,500,000.

"With the decline in American Woolen preferred from $108 to $74, and in the common from $40¼ to $17¼, has come a paper loss of about $24,000,000. Arlington contributes about $4,000,000, New England Cotton Yarn $5,000,000, and Pacific, since January, $2,000,000. Adding Amoskeag, upon which there has been a depreciation since 1911 of $4,000,000, the list includes all the big textile combinations of New England.

"The story of the smaller mills is even more disheartening."

MILLS GO ON SHORT TIME.

Carpet Firm Curtails Work, Owing, It Is Said, to Free Wool.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., May 9.—Notices were posted in the M. J. Whittall carpet mills to-day announcing that commencing Monday the mills would only be operated four days a week. The action is said to be due to the placing of raw wool on the free list in the Democrats' tariff bill.

The mills have been working their force of over two thousand night and day for the past year, and the curtailment will affect all departments. It was said that orders for carpets and rugs have recently fallen off in anticipation of the House of Representatives approving of the removal of the duty on wool, and that buyers were holding back for lower prices on the products of the carpet mills in New England as a result.

The action of the Whittall plant, according to general rumor, will be followed shortly by a similar curtailment in several woolen mills.

DEMOCRATS DEFER TO WILSON'S WISHES

Congressmen Delay Election of Chairman for the Campaign Committee.

NEED BETTER ORGANIZATION

President Has No Desire to Promote or Defeat the Ambition of Any Candidate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—President Wilson succeeded to-night, temporarily at least, in his effort to have the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee defer the election of a new Chairman and arrange its programme of procedure until that body had an opportunity to consult with the Democratic National Committee and arrange a plan of co-operation for the next National campaign.

The Congressional Committee met this evening, and Representative Lloyd of Missouri, its Chairman, read a statement containing the President's views. The committee decided to comply with the President's wishes. A new Chairman was not elected, the present officers being continued temporarily, with instructions to confer with the Executive Committee of the Democratic National Committee in Washington on May 16 about plans for the Congressional campaign.

Mr. Lloyd was obliged to call to-night's meeting because a majority of the Congressional Committee's members signed a request for it in the face of President Wilson's desire for a postponement. The understood purpose of those signing the request was to elect Representative Ben Johnson of Kentucky as Chairman. While Mr. Lloyd told the committee that the President disclaimed any intention of promoting or defeating "the ambitions of any person for position with the committee," the idea had prevailed among Representative Johnson's supporters that the real purpose of the President was to find a Chairman who would, in his opinion, be better qualified than Mr. Johnson to manage the important Congressional campaign of 1914, when the Wilson policies will be on trial.

Mr. Lloyd told the committee that the President desired a better system of Congressional organization that would more completely interest the Senate and enlarge the scope of the Congressional Committee's work by electing Senators as well as members of the House of Representatives.

"Since the adoption of the constitutional amendment by which Senators will be elected by direct vote of the people the same as Congressmen," said Mr. Lloyd, "the President feels that this committee should be charged equally with the responsibility of trying to elect both a Democratic House and Democratic Senate. The President disclaims any purpose to promote or defeat the ambitions of any person for position with the committee, and states he feels sure that any suggestion that any of the leaders in the House have become partisans in connection with the affairs of the committee for the preferment of any one man is likewise without foundation."

The committee agreed that there should be nothing done until after Mr. Lloyd and Secretary Page had talked over plans for co-operation with five members of the Executive Committee of the National Committee a week from to-day. The National Committee representatives are Cummings of Connecticut, Vice Chairman; Lynch of Minnesota, Sells of Texas, Howell of Georgia, and Palmer of Pennsylvania.

SAW CAPITAL IN 8 HOURS.

Two Englishmen Impressed by the Democracy of Leading Men.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Two English knights came to Washington this morning, called on President Wilson and other public men, visited several of the show places of the city without the aid of a "rubber-neck wagon," and went to New York this afternoon well satisfied with having established a record for speed that could hardly be exceeded by the most rapid sight-seeing American. They were here eight hours.

The visitors were Sir William Treloar, who was Lord Mayor of London in 1907, and Col. Sir William Dunn, who is to be Lord Mayor in 1916. They are members of the delegation which came from England to arrange for the celebration of one hundred years of peace between the English-speaking nations, and felt it would be wrong to return home without having seen the capital of the United States.

Arriving early this morning, they started out immediately after breakfast and during the day visited the White House, Capitol, Library of Congress and Washington Monument, and were received by President Wilson, Vice President Marshall, Speaker Clark, Secretary Bryan, Secretary Garrison and Major Gen. Wood.

What amazed the two Sir Williams was the ease with which they obtained admittance to the presence of distinguished men. It surprised them to find such real democracy in Washington, even after all they had heard. They expressed the opinion that it would take four months to arrange for seeing in London persons of rank equal to those upon whom they called to-day. The visitors were impressed particularly with President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and Speaker Clark, and said they thought Gen. Wood was "a fine man."

Their conversation with the President lasted only a few minutes. Mr. Wilson asked them about their visit to America, and told them he had always been a close student of English affairs.

WANT MURDOCK FOR UMPIRE

Progressive Asked to Officiate at Congressional Ball Game.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The annual baseball game between the Republican and Democratic members of the House of Representatives will be played on May 17. The proceeds will be turned over to the Playgrounds' Association.

Representative Kinkead of New Jersey is organizing the Democratic team, which will be as follows:

Thomas L. Reilly, Connecticut; B. P. Harrison, Mississippi; James T. McDermott, Illinois; W. A. Oldfield, Arkansas; Walter Elder, Louisiana; F. A. Garrett, Tennessee; A. B. Rouse, Kentucky; William F. Murray, Massachusetts; Maurice Connely, Iowa; Sam Rayburn, Texas; E. Y. Webb, North Carolina.

The Republican team will include S. G. Porter, Pennsylvania; C. B. Norton, North Dakota; Fred A. Britton, Illinois; John M. Moran, Pennsylvania; James Manahan, Minnesota; John J. Rogers, Massachusetts; Ambrose Kennedy, Rhode Island; C. E. Patton, Pennsylvania; C. B. Slemp, Viriginia; C. B. Miller, Minnesota.

Representative Victor Murdock of Kansas, the Progressive leader, who gained fame years ago as a baseball authority, has been asked to act as umpire. His friends have advised him to take out an accident insurance policy.

MARSHALL ANSWERS HARVEY

Denies Revolutionary Utterance and Returns the Attack.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Vice President Marshall to-day replied to Col. George Harvey's statement that the Vice President's recent public speeches were meant to incite the "predatory poor."

"If anybody will produce a public utterance of mine advocating the curtailment or distribution of honest wealth except by a fair inheritance tax I will go to Wall Street and personally apologize," said Mr. Marshall. "In the course of a long professional career, I have learned that the witness who had knowledge of fraud invariably got mad when he was interrogated as to the fraud."

GIVES FIVE MINUTES TO BRONX RESIDENTS

State Engineer Bensel Says He Wants Them Satisfied with Canal Terminals.

INVITES THEIR SUGGESTIONS

Tells Them of the General Plan and Then Leaves Stenographer to Record Their Ideas.

After advertising widely through the Bronx that he wanted to meet all citizens who might care to impart ideas to him about Bronx terminals for the barge canal, State Engineer John A. Bensel spent less than five minutes with those who gathered in response to his invitation at the Bronx Borough Hall yesterday afternoon.

The invitation to meet Mr. Bensel brought out about one hundred representatives of civic associations and boards of trade. During the short time that Mr. Bensel was with them he did not listen to any of their terminal ideas, but instead he spoke to them about the canal and told them he would leave a stenographer behind to take down all the ideas they might have about the matter on which the meeting had been called.

"The stenographer's notes," he said, "will be put before me, and thus I will get the information I need about your wishes. On this canal the boats to be accommodated will be from six to eight times the size of the ordinary canal boat, so no one can tell what the canal will do for New York."

Swamp Sites Not Wanted.

Borough President Miller took charge of the meeting after Mr. Bensel went away. He called attention to the fact that the number of terminals to be provided in the Bronx would depend entirely upon the needs of the section as pressed for consideration by residents. He said that all who had ideas on the subject might as well understand that swamp sites were not wanted or sites up little creeks that would be congested by the traffic of a second barge if one was already up the creek.

He pointed out on a map nine arrows which pointed to sites considered as available. He said these sites had not been chosen, but were merely tentatively brought forward as likely places to tie up barges and install loading and unloading machinery.

The nine places included Ferncliff Place on the Harlem River, the foot of 149th Street and the Harlem River, the Third Avenue Bridge across the Harlem, the foot of Sherman Creek on the Harlem, Dyckman Street and the Hudson River, the Bronx River at Westchester Avenue, the Bronx River at 176th Street, and the East Chester Creek at 222d Street.

Most of those who spoke advocated that the State utilize tidewater land to which it already had title and spend most of the money appropriated for terminals for building docking facilities. Much opposition was expressed to spending large sums for land now on the market at high prices.

On behalf of State Engineer Bensel, President Miller explained that no terminal site could be considered where there was less than 600 feet of water front, as the new canal boats would be 200 feet long, and it was desired to dock at least three at a time.

At the Hotel Woodstock last night State Engineer Bensel talked to reporters about the present state of progress toward the final location of canal terminals.

Not for Empty Barges.

"It is a mistaken idea," he said, "that those terminals will be places where empty barges can drop anchor and rest. They are to be places for rapid loading and unloading and the dispatch of the barges to their destination. The port of call where idle boats may anchor will be at Dyckman Street in the Hudson.

"Surveys will soon be made for the canal which will extend from Jamaica Bay to Flushing Bay, and from Newtown Creek to Flushing Bay. So far barge canal work has seemed an aloof thing so far as New York City is concerned, but activities here are soon to begin. The gigantic work of building the locks at the City of Lockport is 99 per cent. completed, and the remaining 1 per cent. of the work will be finished this month. The Champlain Canal, the first of the series of waters to make up the new canal, has been completed. I can't fix a date yet for the entrance into the vicinity of New York City, but next year the work will reach Syracuse. On an inspection trip last week I found all contractors hurrying their work in a most satisfactory manner.

"The people of New York City fail to appreciate what a great work is coming near to them. In 2,000-ton boats they will be able to reach readily Albany, Schenectady, Little Falls, Utica, Rome, Syracuse, Rochester, Lockport, and Buffalo with every kind of manufactured article.

"I do not intend to wait for the canal to be in need of terminals before starting them. As soon as I am sure the people are satisfied with the places decided upon I shall recommend to the Canal Board the immediate starting of work in the Bronx and Manhattan."

Tennis Club in Flushing.

The women of Flushing are going to organize a tennis club next Wednesday evening, when officers will be elected. Work of laying out tennis courts on the corner of Jamaica and Maple Avenues will soon be started. It is expected that the club will begin its existence with a membership of more than one hundred. Tournaments will be arranged throughout the season.

CUPID'S CHAPEL, AT CITY HALL, MAY GO

McAneny Sees No Good in the Marrying Room in City Hall Basement.

FOR PRIVATE PROFIT ALONE

And the Profits Are Large and Gathered In Such a Way as to Provoke Criticism, He Says.

Cupid is going to have hard sledding at the City Hall hereafter, if Borough President McAneny has his way. In the basement of the hall there is a small room called "Cupids Chapel," which has been used for many years by Aldermen as a room for weddings. It has been very convenient for couples pressed for time to get their licenses in a nearby room, and then call upon some Alderman to tie the knot there and then. Mr. McAneny thinks that some of the Aldermen have used the convenience too much for their own financial advantage, and in a letter to the Sinking Fund Commission yesterday he asked that the room be abolished. He said in his letter:

There is in the basement a room about 20 by 30 feet known as Room 4, which for several years has been used and is now used as a marriage room. It is situated diagonally across the hall and about 50 feet distant from the room where the marriage licenses are issued by the City Clerk, and is occupied by several clerks who keep certain records of all marriage ceremonies performed therein, as required by the domestic relations law. These clerks are not in the employ of the city, but are paid by the various Aldermen who perform wedding ceremonies in that room.

The Aldermen charge fees for their services, varying in accordance with the apparent means of the contracting parties, pay the clerks for their services, and retain the balance. In other words, the room is run as a private enterprise, the profits from which are reputed to be very large, and the charges in certain cases such as to provoke criticism of the City Government, the general impression being that it is a branch of the Marriage License Bureau. I am of the opinion, therefore, that if it is deemed advisable to maintain and operate a "marriage chapel" in the City Hall, its conduct should be under the control of some branch of the City Government, and the fees and other charges fixed upon a definite and published scale.

Several of the men who have made out marriage certificates and collected fees for Aldermanic ceremonies, denied last night that the Aldermen took fees themselves.

Progress of New Battleships.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The battleship Texas, building at Newport News, Va., advanced 1.5 points last month and stands 88.4 per cent. completed. The dreadnought New York, building in the New York Navy Yard, advanced two points, thus being 77.2 per cent. completed. The battleships Nevada and Oklahoma, building at Quincy, Mass., and New York, advanced 4 and 5.5 points, respectively, according to figures made public in the Navy Bureau of Construction and Repair to-day. The new battleship Pennsylvania, to be built at Newport News, has not been laid down.

BISHOP ALIMONY SPENT.

Quarterly Allowance of $5,500 Used Up, Wife's Lawyer Tells Court.

Supreme Court Justice Pendleton reserved decision yesterday on the application of Mrs. Abigail Hancock Bishop to punish her husband, James Cunningham Bishop, for contempt of court. Mrs. Bishop is suing her husband for divorce, and alleged that he had failed and refused to pay installments of alimony. Attorney James W. Osborne appeared to press the motion and Henry W. Taft, counsel for Mr. Bishop, to oppose it.

Mr. Taft explained to the court that Mr. Bishop believed that he had already paid his wife more alimony than was due her. He recited that when the suit was started three months ago Mrs. Bishop got an award of $22,000 a year alimony in Special Term. Under this arrangement, Mr. Taft said, Mr. Bishop had paid $5,500 as one quarter's allowance. In the meantime he appealed to the Appellate Division, which cut the temporary alimony to $10,000 a year. Under this rate of alimony, Mr. Taft said, nothing would be due Mrs. Bishop for some time.

Attorney Osborne said that such a construction of the obligations of Mr. Bishop would be unjust to his client, since she had spent the first quarter's allowance in the expectation that she would receive more money last week. Mr. Taft replied that it had been improvident for Mrs. Bishop to expend the money without waiting for the decision of the Appellate Division on Mr. Bishop's appeal to reduce the alimony.

HARPERS BOOKS

The Judgment House

By Sir Gilbert Parker.

Here is room for a few voices in the chorus of praise: "An intense story, in which the characters seem living persons rather than creatures of the author's imagination."—Pittsburgh Post. "A novel of international excellence and importance." — Portland Oregonian. "Stands out like a lighthouse amid a flood of mediocre novels."—Detroit Free Press. "A masterful and majestic tale, which holds a reader gripped with the course of the story from the first page to the last." —Columbus Journal. "'The Judgment House' easily ranks as one of the best of his brilliant novels, and as one of the greatest that has appeared in many months."—San Jose Mercury.

The Turning of Griggsby

By Irving Bacheller.

Full of the same genial satire and humor as "Keeping Up With Lizzie" and "Charge It," and the most delightful love story Mr. Bacheller has written. Griggsby, twenty years after Daniel Webster's death, was still living up to the Websterian tradition. "The scarlet blossom an' the silver tongue went hand in hand." Then a young girl became editor of the town newspaper. In its columns she held up to publicity and ridicule the vices of certain prominent citizens and those of their imitators. The laugh was against them, and the town had to reform.

Desert Gold

By Zane Grey.

"S-s-h—steady—keep quiet, and follow me"—so, treading softly with a new guide, we vanish into the night—into adventure along the Arizona-Mexico border in search of desert gold—and we find life free and unafraid. The American filibusters, the guerillas and the loyal Yaqui are alive in this alluring purple sage country, and so is Mercedes, a beautiful Mexican girl. Critics tell us that romance is coming back again. It has come back—in this new tale of Zane Grey's.

Isobel

By James Oliver Curwood

This romance of the region between Hudson Bay and Great Silver Lake is full of the same mystery and heroic adventure that characterized the author's "Flower of the North." The hero, a Sergeant of the famous Royal Northwest Mounted Police, whose boast is that a criminal never escapes them, captures the fugitive husband of the only white woman he has seen for months. Then, urged by his chivalry, he lets him escape—to reap later an unexpected reward.

Our Own Weather

By Edwin C. Martin.

A simple account of how the weather as we experience it day by day comes about; of its peculiar forms and constant movements from one part of the country to another. Here are the scientific explanations of cyclones, hot waves, fogs, floods, droughts, etc. There is no more general topic than the weather, and no subject which can be more delightfully discussed. While the work has, of course, a scientific basis, it is meant primarily for the lay reader.

ASTOR GIVES COLORS TO POLICE LEGION

Present to Honor Detachment All of Whom Have Performed Some Act of Bravery.

MANY HAVE SAVED LIVES

Gift Made in Memory of Col. John Jacob Astor, Who Was on Committee to Prepare Hero Roll.

Vincent Astor presented a stand of colors to the Honor Legion of the Police Department last night in the Seventh Regiment Armory, Lexington Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street. The Honor Legion is composed of about 500 men of all ranks in the department, every one of whom has proved his worth by some act of bravery, many by saving human life.

Col. John Jacob Astor, who perished on the Titanic, was a member of the committee which prepares the hero roll of policemen each year. Vincent Astor was elected to succeed his father, and was also made an honorary member of the Honor Legion. In memory of his father he offered to provide the Legion with its first stand of colors. The families of the policemen and many invited guests filled the galleries of the big armory and the boxes along the side walls.

After the honor men had lined up at the east end of the Armory, Col. Daniel Appleton and his staff escorted Vincent Astor, Commissioner Waldo, civilian honorary members, and invited guests to a box midway on the south side of the Armory. Headed by the Police Band, led by Bandmaster Gustave A. Beaufrere, the men marched half around the Armory and formed in a double column facing the reviewing box. Then Chief Inspector Schmittberger and Capt. J. Brown, the drillmaster, put them through a number of evolutions.

After Chaplain Ernest M. Stires had spoken of the splendid work of the men, Vincent Astor handed the colors to Chief Inspector Schmittberger, who passed them along to the company commanded by Capt. Dominick Henry of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station. Then the seven companies, the six others commanded by Capts. Edward Burke, Barnard Ketteher, William Day, John Barnes, John L. Falconer, and Charles Kinsler, marched in review.

"I never saw better marching on this floor," said Col. Appleton to the policemen.

The colors consist of a large silk American flag, and a large silk banner of white and blue bearing the coat of arms of the city on one side and the emblem of the legion on a blue field on the other side, the figures woven by hand in natural colors. The colors cost $1,500. The Police Band gave a concert when the ceremonies ended.

SAYS AUNT IS NEGLECTED.

Witness Replies Her Room Was Only Being Decorated.

An application by Henry Lewis of East Orange, N. J., that a committee be appointed for the care of his eighty-five-year-old aunt, Maria Theresa Bates, which has been pending for several weeks in the Supreme Court, came up for argument before Justice Pendleton yesterday. Lewis alleged that his aunt, who had $14,000 in securities and enjoyed an additional annuity of nearly $300, was being kept in squalor by Mr. and Mrs. William Jacot.

Justice Pendleton commented on the fact that Dr. William F. Wright of 55 West Tenth Street had made one affidavit in favor of the application and a second against it. Dr. Wright explained that the first affidavit was made early in April, when Mrs. Bates was living in a room which was in the process of redecoration, as he was afterward informed. His impression that the state of the room as he saw it then was its natural condition led him to make the affidavit. Since discovering his mistake he revisited Mrs. Bates, found her surroundings pleasant, and therefore made the second affidavit. The hearing was adjourned until Monday.

GIRLS IN MAY FESTIVALS.

Next Three Tuesdays Set for Public School Gatherings.

The great annual May festivals of folk dancing and games of the Girls' Branch of the Public Schools Athletic League, will be held on the next three Tuesdays in May—with postponement in each case of two days should the weather be unpropitious.

The hour set in each case is 3:15 P. M. The Manhattan festival will be in Central Park on the green west of the Mall. The Brooklyn festival will be staged in the Long Meadow of Prospect Park. In Richmond, the dancing and games will be given on the lawn at Fairview, Borough President Cromwell's home in Dongan Hills.

STRIKING BARBERS FIGHT FOR RED FLAG

Try to Prevent Police from Removing It from Stand at Union Square Meeting.

MAKE MANY CONVERTS HERE

Brooklyn Strikers Parade to Manhattan and Persuade Workers on the East Side to Join Them.

With cheers and red flags flying, several hundred striking barbers of Brooklyn paraded across the Brooklyn Bridge yesterday afternoon and up Park Row to Union Square, where they attended a mass meeting held under the auspices of the Industrial Workers of the World and presided over by Rosolino Rotolo.

As the strikers marched through Fourteenth Street some quit the procession and, going into a barber shop, tried to induce the barbers there to stop work. In this they were unsuccessful. An attempt to close a shop in Union Square was also unsuccessful, the barbers in this shop saying that they were perfectly satisfied with their condition. In other shops the strikers had better luck, and in one or two the barbers were all induced to quit work and join the parade.

At the close of the mass meeting the strikers decided to have a red flag demonstration. There were three American flags among the red ones when the paraders arrived at Union Square, but in the course of the meeting they disappeared. So, also, did all the red ones except one, which was flown from the cottage. Several policemen, noticing the disappearance of the American flags, went to the cottage and demanded of the committee that they either take down the red flag or hoist an American flag beside it. When the committee failed to do this a policeman snatched the red flag from its staff, and there was trouble at once. Scores of hands tried to wrest it from the policeman's grasp, and one barber shouted: "We have a permit for that flag." At length those in charge of the meeting compromised by putting an American flag beside the red flag.

There was much speechmaking when the excitement over the flag incident had died down. The Brooklyn barbers asserted that a partial strike was unjust and that Manhattan as well as Brooklyn should be affected.

After some wrangling the strikers dispersed. Three hundred men, in bands of fifty each, visited many shops in Delancey, Broome, Sheriff, and Columbia Streets, and attempted to persuade the barbers to strike. Four hundred men marched from these shops, leaving customers in chairs sometimes with lather on their faces. As each new convert to the strike was announced a great shout arose from the crowd.

Policemen from the Delancey Street Station kept an eye on the strikers, but as they did not resort to violence no arrests were made.

GROW BIG CROP OF WHISKERS.

Brooklynites Go Unshaven as Striking Barbers Parade the Streets.

With a borough-wide strike of barbers on, the Brooklynite who does not shave himself complains that he is "taking on the appearance of an Airedale terrier above the collar." The troubled burghers fear that if the strike does not end soon they will have to gather their hair into psyche knots, or plait it down the back. Tony and Giuseppe and the other "tonsorial artists" have put aside the razor and shears, demanding shorter hours and more pay, and while all Brooklyn is growing hair day and night the barbers are parading the streets demanding their rights. Something like 4,000 of them are on strike.

About three-fourths of the "tonsorial parlors" in the borough were closed yesterday. In the Borough Hall district only one shop was open in the afternoon. It was that of a lady barber.

The barbers demand that their working hours each week day shall number twelve and on Sunday four. They also want the ban put on the man who shaves at home. The strikers say that when this man visits a shop to have his hair cut he should be charged at least 50 cents for the service. The strikers have been meeting and parading daily, visiting shops and calling out journeymen barbers. There has been some window breaking, but no serious clashes. The strike has spread to all parts of the borough, and the strikers threaten that if their demands are not met soon they will extend it to Manhattan.

BEST BABIES ON EXHIBIT.

Prizes to be Awarded To-day and Others Promised for Progress.

Twenty-two babies who were rated at 90 per cent. or higher in perfection will be on exhibition to-day at the Lenox Hill House, 446 East Seventy-second Street, in the finals of the great "Better Babies'" contest under the direction of the New York Milk Committee.

The baby who is judged the winner to-day in each of the three age classes will be proudly decked in a blue ribbon and sent home with a bank-book showing a $25 deposit to its credit. The babies who for one reason or another, fail so low in the count as to be ineligible for first prize will receive notice six months hence that a prize will be awarded to the one who has made the most progress toward perfection in the intervening months.

JURY DEADLOCKED IN QUINLAN CASE

Consider I. W. W. Case for More Than Eight Hours and Are Locked Up for the Night.

PRISONER OUT OF THE STATE

Labor Leaders Say He Had a Right to Go, Being Still Under Bonds—Said to be in Brooklyn.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., May 9.—The case of Patrick Quinlan, the little Irish lieutenant of "Big Bill" Haywood, the leader of the Industrial Workers of the World, who is on trial for uttering remarks inciting Paterson silk mill strikers to commit an assault, is in the hands of a Passaic County jury. The case went to the jury at 1 o'clock this afternoon, and at 9:30 o'clock they were locked up for the night.

The jury seems hopelessly deadlocked. The general impression is that a majority is standing out for Quinlan's conviction, some of the rumors placing the number who want a verdict of guilty as high as eleven out of twelve.

The strange situation exists here to-night of a jury in Paterson being deadlocked in the case of a defendant who has left the State since the jury began its deliberations. Quinlan left Paterson at 6 o'clock and is said to be in Brooklyn.

The attorneys for the indicted strike leaders say he will return to Paterson the first thing in the morning. The lawyers said that as Quinlan was under bonds he had a legal right to leave the State, so long as he was not charged with murder or treason.

In the long hours that he sat in the courtroom this afternoon, waiting for the tap on the jury room door that would foretell the reaching of an agreement, Quinlan laughed and joked with those about him. He said that if he was convicted and sent to prison, Thursday would be visiting day so far as he was concerned, and that when not at work for the State he would spend his time organizing the prisoners into a chapter of the Industrial Workers of the World.

Strikers Plan Demonstration.

All the afternoon the streets in front of the court house were crowded with strikers impatiently waiting for the verdict. The majority seemed sure it would be an acquittal, and a big demonstration was to follow when Quinlan appeared. In the event of a conviction, there was also to be a demonstration, it was understood, and the police were held ready for instant duty if any disorder followed.

Judge Klenert, who presided at Quinlan's trial, and will also preside at those of Haywood, Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Carlo Tresca, and Adolph Lessig, the other I. W. W. leaders, permitted no delay in the examination of witnesses when the Quinlan case was resumed this morning. The defence produced seven more witnesses, every one of whom swore that Quinlan did not tell the strikers on Feb. 25, as charged by the State, to go to the mills and club the loyal employes out of the factories.

Henry Marelli summed up for Quinlan, and said that the case was a "police frame-up, pure and simple," and that the arrest of Quinlan and his subsequent indictment was a carefully worked out scheme to get the labor leader out of Paterson.

Referring to the witness, Paduchi, who admitted he was an anarchist, and added that he "believed neither in God nor Government," Mr. Marelli said that Paduchi was at least frank, and added that "in labor we have all classes."

He asked for an acquittal on the grounds that the charge against Quinlan was false, and that it was known to be so by the police. He said that County Prosecutor Dunn was in court in the rôle of a strikebreaker, and that he was prosecuting Quinlan for the purpose of disheartening the strikers and causing them to go back to work. He called Quinlan a hard-working labor advisor, who had never uttered the words charged in the indictment.

Prosecutor Dunn began his speech by comparing Quinlan and other leaders with the McNamara brothers, who are now in prison in California for the blowing up of The Los Angeles Times Building.

"In 1908," said Mr. Dunn, "rioting made it advisable for the Legislature to put in the State statute Chapter 278. This chapter is the one under which the indictment was brought, and fixes the punishment for inciting to riot or assault.

Enemies of the Law.

"It is peculiar that these people who want to do wrong always find fault with the law. They had a man here who said:

"'I don't believe in law; I don't believe in God; I don't believe in government.'

"One of the greatest elements in the Government is its power to restrain one set of men from doing injury to another set of men."

Mr. Dunn called upon the jury to show their citizenship and determine whether the citizens of Paterson were to control the Government or whether it was to be in the hands of outsiders.

"There is nothing you can do," Mr. Dunn added, "in the interests of the laboring people of this State more than to convict Quinlan if you find him guilty of the charge in this indictment. It is such men as Quinlan who cause trouble. In your hands rests the whole justice of this country. If such men can come here and defy the police, don't you think it is time that the old days of citizenship should come back and stamp out the viper?"

The charge of Judge Klenert was brief. He said the testimony of each was "to be weighed for what it was worth."

"In order to assist you to arrive at a verdict, the court is going to suggest that you only take up whether Quinlan used the words charged. You can also consider whether he used those words or other words. If you find from the evidence that he did not speak the words alleged to have been spoken by him, then it is your duty to acquit, even if he had spoken other words.

"But if you find that he did use those words you must go further. Then it is for you to determine whether the words used by him were such as come within the statute, so that if you find he did use those words, it is your duty to go ahead and find if they were such as to come under the statute. If you find that they do come under the statute, then you must convict the defendant."

TRY TO RAID FACTORY.

Bayonne Strikers Driven Away When Strikebreakers Shoot.

About 30 of the 150 men on strike at the Herman Brothers' cap factory, at Avenue C and Twenty-third Street, Bayonne, N. J., became riotous last night and tried to force their way into the mill and get at the strikebreakers housed there. Before they could batter the door down, however, there came three shots from within, and the strikers retreated. There were no arrests.

On Thursday three of the women strikers at the plant attacked Miss Dora Herman, daughter of one of the owners of the factory, as she was leaving the building.

FAIL TO BREAK JURY REFORM DEADLOCK

Jersey Legislators Wrangle All Day and Adjourn Until Next Week.

REPUBLICANS HOLD FAST

Now Announce That They Will Stay All Summer Rather Than Help the Democrats.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 9.—President Wilson's battle for a mandatory jury reform law is as far from victory as ever. Both Houses of the Legislature adjourned until next week after having spent the whole day in wrangling without result. The Assembly will meet again on Monday afternoon, but the Senate will honor the memory of the late U. S. Senator Frank O. Briggs, whose funeral will be held that afternoon, by not convening until Tuesday morning.

It now seems absolutely hopeless that any jury reform legislation will be enacted. As the breach in the ranks of the Democratic majority widens, the Republicans are becoming angrier at the delay and late this afternoon Senator Read of Camden, leader of the minority in the upper House, addressed the newspaper men from the floor, and said that the Republicans would not vote for a Democratic measure. Before to-day's session began, the Republicans of both Houses held a conference. At its conclusion, they announced that they would vote only for the Read bill, and that they would remain here all Summer rather than help the Democrats.

The only progress made to-day was passage by the Assembly this afternoon of the Hennessey Constitutional Convention bill. It was passed by a vote of 37 to 14. But even this action will prove of no avail, for the Senate is certain to defeat it. In speaking for the bill before the House this afternoon, Mr. Hennessey admitted this.

In the Senate Mr. Leavitt of Mercer introduced a bill to legalize boxing, and Senator Wheaton of Cape May put in a bill validating the sale of road bonds in Cape May County.

Gov. Fielder gave out a statement, in which he expressed himself as "sick of the whole jury reform fracas." He said he did not care who got the glory for the passage of a jury bill, but that he did want one passed.

The Senate spent all of its time on jury reform. Senator Read tried to have his bill substituted for the Davis measure, which is the one drafted to meet the suggestions of President Wilson. This attempt was beaten by a strict party vote.

COURT ASSAILS HUSBAND.

His Action Like Napoleon's Outrage on Josephine, Vice Chancellor Says.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., May 9.—Saying that Henry D. Phillip's announced intention of leaving his wife because she had not borne him a son was a diabolical plot that had for its prototype "Napoleon's outrage upon Josephine," Vice Chancellor Backes dismissed today a bill filed by Phillips against his cousin, Miss Jennie Phillips, to establish a trust in a 188-acre farm.

It was asserted in the testimony that Phillips lent his cousin money with which to purchase the farm. He contended that he advanced it to her so that she could buy the property as his agent. In the trial of the suit, Phillips told the court that because he had no son, he had planned to separate from his wife. Referring to this, the Vice Chancellor said:

"The reason he assigned for putting the legal title to the landin the name of the defendant, as the prelude to a diabolical plot against his wife, which has for its prototype 'Napoleon's outrage upon Josephine' is not calculated to inspire confidence in the complainant's testimony."

Phillips is a lawyer and owns much real estate in the city. He and his cousin have been involved in litigation for years, as to their interest in a farm in Lawrence Township.

A True Story.

Nearly two years ago by the sun-dial a wonderful thing happened in the child world: THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE came into being. This new heir of the Royal Family was not born with sound of trumpets and great acclaim, but since that day in thousands of American homes THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE has been steadily proving itself to be "every inch a king" among books. One of the best pieces of evidence of the popularity and usefulness of the work in the home is shown by the hundreds of unsolicited letters which the publishers have received from educators, ministers, men and women of affairs, and even the delighted children themselves, telling of the help, the comfort, and the pleasure which THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE has been to them. They show conclusively that this work has made its way equally well in the homes of culture and the homes where it is almost the only reading matter which the children possess.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE was not the result of an experiment, nor was it the inspiration of genius; it came straight from the human heart of a father who loved his child, and was determined to give him an education which should properly fit him for the struggle of life. Realizing how difficult it is for fathers and mothers to superintend this high and delicate task of guiding the mind, the heart and the hands of their little children through those long days when they must have something to do with every waking moment, he conceived a wonderful plan, and then drew to him others of like desire and of expert experience. Together they studied the mind process of a child, in his efforts to find out everything he wants to know, and following the discoveries they made they were able to develop the world of knowledge so simply and so beautifully that a little child can understand it almost as simply as an adult.

One little chap who was so young that he thought he ought to hold up his hand for permission to speak to a lady who was showing his mother the sample pages of THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE, exclaimed eagerly, "Please do you think if I saved all my money for two years I could get this book?" Another little fellow refuses to go to bed without a volume under his pillow. His sister, much older, nearly cried her eyes out, because her father did not see how they could take the books to the country with them, which of course decided the matter. Such straws as these show which way the current is running, and there seems to be no question that it is running pretty strong.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE has had the sincerest flattery, "imitation," but imitation is usually as far from accomplishment as the artificial always is from the real, and can easily be detected. Certain features which this work has used with scientific accuracy have been copied, and the public has been led to believe that they were buying the veritable BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE, when as a matter of fact they were only getting a weak dilution of the plan, having none of its original vigor or power of attraction for children. While these books will, no doubt, go the way of all such parasites, it is not amiss to sound a word of warning, and ask the public to keep their eyes wide open for the name of the publishers and the title of the book. One of the Ten Thousand Educational Pictures Which THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE Describes

THE SPACE NO MAN CAN MEASURE! FLYING 40 MILLION YEARS TO THE NEAREST STAR!

This picture helps us realize what our minds can hardly understand—the wonderful size of the universe. Such trains as these, which dash past us almost before we can see them, would take 177 years to travel from the earth to the sun, if there were a railway on which they could travel a mile a minute and never stop; and a train starting from the earth for the nearest star would not arrive for forty million years! The figures on these trains give the time it would ake the trains, travelling all the time at sixty miles an hour, to reach the planets.

The New York Times says of The Book of Knowledge:

"The old saying has it that a bright child is a big interrogation mark; but everybody knows that the child gets comparatively few good and sufficient answers to the questions he asks. Think what it will mean to the children to put into their hands 'The Book of Knowledge,' a work that will tell them what they wish to know."

President John H. Finley of the College of the City of New York says:

"Suppose a boy of ten were to spend fifteen minutes a day reading these volumes . . . he would at thirteen know more about the earth and life on it than the wisest men knew a few generations ago."

HUERTA EXPLAINS MEXICO'S POSITION

Insists Ambassador Wilson Has No Diplomatic Standing There.

CLAIMS CAN'T BE SETTLED

Provisional President Points Out His Republic Has No Personality Before United States.

MEXICO CITY, May 9.—Keen interest is being displayed by the Government and the public generally in what action the United States Government will take as a consequence of the virtual repudiation of Ambassador Wilson to-day by President Huerta. The President has made no statement either to Ambassador Wilson or to the public qualifying his assertion that Mr. Wilson "diplomatically has no standing," but Foreign Minister de la Barra, who always has been regarded as desirous to placate everybody in dissensions, showed eagerness to minimize the incident.

Señor de la Barra said the announcement by President Huerta did not mean the severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico. He drew a fine distinction between the diplomatic representative who performed the full functions of his office and one who confined himself to routine matters, and said he apprehended no serious consequences from to-day's incident.

Men close to the Administration say they would not be surprised should the United States take Mexico at her word and recall Ambassador Wilson, but the opinion prevails that President Huerta is not prepared to go so far as to hand the Ambassador his passports. That President Huerta in his conference with Mr. Wilson used much emphasis in explaining the position of his Government and that his remarks were characterized by a bitterness and warmth which clearly reflected his deep resentment against what he termed the unreasonableness of the Washington Government in withholding recognition of the Mexican Government, has been established, though Ambassador Wilson has refrained from discussing it.

In the face of the statement of President Huerta that a loan had been arranged through English, Belgian, French, and German bankers and was lackijng only authorization by Congress, there persists the opinion that recognition of the Mexican Governemnt by the United States is an essential condition to the consummation of the loan, and that this fact was the chief cause for President Huerta's attitude to Ambassador Wilson.

President Huerta, in his conference yesterday with the American Ambassador, stated clearly the position of Mexico in relation to the United States. The following official version of what occurred was given out to-day.

"Provisional President Huerta respectfully stated to Ambassador Wilson, that diplomat having referred to official matters, that the Government of Mexico was disposed to arrange the affairs pending between it and the Government of the United States. It was pointed out, however, that for the time being the American Ambassador should understand the necessity which the Government of Mexico has for abstaining from treating any official matters, with the exception of urgent affairs or ordinary procedure, for the simple reason that while the Government of the United States did not recognize the Government of Mexico all agreements would be ineffective, in view of the fact that the Government of Mexico has no personality before the Government of the United States.

"This was the substance of the conference between His Excellency Ambassador Wilson and the President of the Republic of Mexico, Gen. Victoriano Huerta.

"In addition, however, the Government of Mexico, whether recognized or not by the United States, has adopted and will always adopt measures for the security of all the inhabitants of the country, whether its own natives or foreigners, and this has been demonstrated by the attention given to the just petitions of those who have been in any manner injured by past revolutions.

"The United States and all the peoples of Europe have irrefutable proofs that the Government of Mexico is specially pledged to give guarantees to everybody, without distinction of nationality."

It was reiterated to-day that Ambassador Wilson had no official standing in Mexico in the eyes of the present Administration. President Huerta said:

"As a personal friend, I am always glad to treat with Mr. Wilson, but diplomatically he has no standing."

The Ambassador reported the statement to the State Department in Washington.

The newspaper El Pais in an editorial to-day bitterly censured the attitude of the United States, asserting that that country should view the policy of non-recognition of Mexico frankly and withdraw not only Ambassador Wilson, but also its Consular officers.

The claims arising out of the revolutions—the Chamizal Zone dispute, the Colorado River water rights, and other matters—were discussed by Provisional President Huerta and Ambassador Wilson at the inception of the new Administration. Gen. Huerta at that time promised immediate settlement, authorizing Francisco de la Barra, Foreign Minister, to make a speedy arrangement with the Ambassador.

The rebels again have cut off the capital from rail communication with the United States by burning bridges on the main line of the National Railway near Wadley, in the State of San Luis Potosi. It is believed that they came from Mateahuala, which they recently captured and made a concentration point for the followers of Carranza.

Directly west from San Luis Potosi, in the State of Zacatecas, there is greatly increased rebel activity. The State capital practically is besieged.

According to a private message received here, Francisco Vasquez Gomez, after a conference in Las Vacas with Gov. Carranza, is going to Washington as the representative of the rebels. This report is not regarded here as of great importance, as Gomez has no large following.

EAGLE PASS, Tex., May 9.—Federals under Gen. Casas Lopez are falling back on Saltillo, according to reports received here to-day from Gov. Carranza at Monclova. He said a Constitutionalist column was following the Federals and that more State troops were in their front.

EL PASO, Tex., May 9.—A formal demand for the surrender of Juarez was received to-day by Col. Juan D. Vasquez, commander of the Federal garrison. The letter was said to have been signed by a Constitutional leader in the field below the Texas border, who asserted that otherwise 1,500 insurgents would attack.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The State Department apparently knows nothing of the reported ultimatum of Gen. Huerta that his administration must be recognized formally by the United States if the American Ambassador in the City of Mexico is to continue to be received officially or if any further consideration is to be given to pending American claims against Mexico.

"All I know of that," said John Bassett Moore, counselor of the Department and Acting Secretary of State in the absence of Secretary Bryan, when the report was called to his attention to-day, "is what I have read in newspapers. We have received nothing of the kind here. I can't discuss a thing I know nothing whatever about."

The attitude of the United States at this time toward Mexico rests entirely with President Wilson, whose view is well-known. In spite of the demand of President Huerta for formal recognition, the United States will deal with the Huerta government as a de facto and not a de jure authority.

If the Huerta Administration should become a Constitutional Government, able to maintain itself against all comers for a period that would appear to insure stability, recognition would not be delayed. In the meantime, the delay in adjusting pending claims of citizens of the United States against Mexico is not regarded as consideration sufficient to modify the President's policy. The same delay occurred with the Madero Government. The communication of President Huerta will receive scant attention if Ambassador Wilson sends it here.

Tired of being raided and despoiled by every passing band of brigands, the little American colony in San Dieguito, Mexico, recently took to the warpath. When a band of fourteen outlaws swooped on the colony, ten Americans, reinforced by five Mexican Federal soldiers and a few Mexican civilians, pursued and defeated the looters and recovered several stolen horses.

SHOT IN AMATEUR DRAMA.

Too Much Realism Ends Performance Given by Sharon (Pa.) Lodge.

SHARON, Penn., May 9.—In the presentation of a drama here last night, given by amateurs under the auspices of a local lodge, the heroine, Miss Nina Shaffer, when heaping invectives on the head of the villain, lost consciousness. In the excitement, Frederick McIntyre, who played the villain, accidentally shot himself in the left hand with a revolver. The show ended abruptly.

STREET MEETINGS' CHAIN.

Missionary Rallies to be a Feature of the National Convention.

One of the striking features of the convention of the National Federation of Gospel Missions, in Calvary Baptist Church, West Fifty-seventh Street, will be a noonday meeting on Wednesday, extending from the Battery to Harlem. Relays of speakers, ten to a place, will tell the gospel message at Battery Place, Printing House Square, Madison Square, and 125th Street and Seventh Avenue. Other points are being sought where men congregate.

The convention opens Monday morning at 10 o'clock, and will continue morning, afternoon and evening until Thursday night, except that on Wednesday afternoon the delegates will go to the New York Home for Intemperate Men, Chester Street, Mount Vernon, and will have supper with Rev. George S. Avery, the Superintendent.

Thursday night it is expected that Miss Eva Booth of the Salvation Army will speak, followed by men who have been rescued through the mission from lives of intemperance and crime.

To-morrow will be Rescue Mission Day in the churches of the city. Probably one hundred preachers will touch upon some phase of mission work, and almost that many more delegates to the convention and superintendents and workers of local missions will occupy pulpits.

BEQUESTS FOR EDUCATION.

Alice Marian Curtis Also Left Legacies to Tuskegee and Hampton.

The appraisal of the estate of Alice Marian Curtis, who died on Feb. 1, 1911, a resident of Milton, Mass., was filed yesterday showing New York assets of $36,344 and a total valuation of $333,173. In her will she bequeathed $15,000 to the town of Hanover, Mass., for the purpose of buying books for the John Curtis Free Public Library, founded by her father; $25,000 to Radcliffe College for the founding of scholarships; $20,000 to the New England Hospital for Women and Children, and $25,000 to the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston "for the purchase of one acknowledged masterpiece by a modern master, not living at the time when the purchase is made."

As a memorial of the work done by her mother, Marian Curtis, during the struggle against slavery, she said in the will, she bequeathed $5,000 each to the Atlanta University, Tuskegee and the Hampton Institute. A $20,000 legacy to the Sharon Sanatorium for Incipient Pulmonary Diseases, made in her will, she revoked in a codicil without offering any explanation. The remainder of the estate was divided in small sums among friends and distant relatives.

RIKER ESTATE $724,082.

Left $10,000 Each to Bar Association and Good Samaritan Dispensary

Samuel Riker, a lawyer of New York who died on November 19, 1911, left a net estate of $724,082 according to the appraisal filed yesterday in the Surrogates' office. The schedules showed mortgages of $328,429; securities of a value of $224,686 and realty of $129,338, in which was included his residence at 27 East Sixty-ninth Street, valued at $75,000. Among the furnishings of his town residence were several paintings by noted artists including a landscape by Daubigny, $200; "Rocky Mountains," by Bierstadt, $650, and "Cattle," by William Hart, $200.

He left $10,000 to the association of the Bar of New York City for the purchase of law books, and $10,000 to the Good Samaritan Dispensary of New York. His daughter, Mrs. Julia R. Harmon received $108,000 and the residuary estate of $567,427 goes to the widow, Mrs. Mary A. Riker.

In every detail the Leading Retail Establishment of Brooklyn.

The Subway to Hoyt Street Brings the Loeser Store Within 17 Minutes of Forty-second Street.

Clearance of Ready-to-Wear Hats.
$3 to $15 Hats at $1 to $8.75.

THERE WILL BE A CLEARANCE SALE OF READY-TO-WEAR MILLINERY today that will enlist the attention of every woman who can use another Hat to see her through the summer, and who knows Loeser values.

The present prices range from $1 to $8.75. Their former prices were from $3 to $15. Hats are of hemp and Milan with other good materials and are trimmed with all the leading colors and trimmings, some with ostrich and other novelties.

In all the new shapes and extraordinary values.

$1.50 to $2.25 Untrimmed Hats, 49c. to 98c.

New shapes in good colors, mostly styles that need very little trimming and that may be trimmed very readily at home. Women who have an odd bit of trimming to use will find these Hats exceptional value. Hemp and chip, in white, black and the good colors.

A special purchase to great advantage which we are clearing out at an average of two-fifths the regular prices.

Second Floor, Elm Place.

Clearance of Women's Apparel.
$50 to $75 Spring Suits, $29.98, $37.50, $50

THIS IS ONE OF THE BEST OCCASIONS of the year in women's Suits. Many of them have been less than a month in our possession, yet they have been so favorably received that already they have come down to ones, twos, threes of a kind. They are just the Suits that you will see everywhere this summer at shore or mountain, for they are American reproductions of the most recent Paris models.

They are tailored to the perfection that women look for in Suits they buy at Loeser's. They will keep their shape with reasonable wear until they are discarded. They have distinction in design, attractiveness of appearance, smartness in finish and in trim.

They are made of such light weight, pretty materials as wool taffeta, wool taffeta brocade, broad cloth, thin wool ratines, loose basket weaves, fancy Bedford cords, French serges, summer weight diagonals, corded cheviots, etc.

Some of the models show the best combination of striped or checked black and white skirts, with plain color coats. Some have green and black striped skirts and dark coats, trimmed with combination.

There is a very handsome Paquin blouse model, trimmed with a beautiful quality of soft moire. Many of them are trimmed with the bound buttonholes and buttons—in one instance the coat opens up the side seams at the back. Most are the straight or draped cutaway coats. Some show odd modes of fastening, one with an elongated front drawn on each side through a slash and buttoned. One model has pointed bell sleeves. Just the "latest cry," every one, and every one a wonder at today's price.

These have been priced regularly at $50 to $75. They now are marked $29.98, $37.50 and $50.

New $25 Suits at $18.75.

A very attractive spring model, bought to great advantage and a full $25 value, will appear in the Sale today at three-fourths of the usual price.

It is made of a fine eponge, very light weight, in light brown, blue and black. The paneled skirt is draped very low, just above the ankle, making for long lines. The blouse jacket is trimmed with large and small steel buttons, and with satin collar and cuffs, matching exactly the tone of the material, and relieved by a shaped fold and pipings in a contrasting color. The soft girdle of the satin is closed by a steel buckle. Not a smarter model anywhere at $25, and these are $18.75.

Second Floor, Fulton Street.

Capture of Finest Imported Waists.
$18 to $35 Values, at $5, $7.50 and $10.

IT IS NOT AN EXAGGERATION to say that these Waists are among the most beautiful ever seen in New York. Nor is it more than the plain truth to say that their new prices are the smallest for such values ever seen in this country.

They are all new, many of them French reproductions of the most exclusive designs of Poiret and other creators of fashion. It is a trade chance, most fortunate for Loeser patrons, that has diverted them to us to sell for very small fractions of their real worth.

They are made of the sheerest French batiste, of fine handkerchief linen, of Brussels nets, of exquisite French crepes. They are hand-embroidered, hand made, trimmed with real laces, with colored embroidery, with beads. Some in all black are suitable for mourning wear, trimmed elaborately with dull beads, sewn on by hand. The net Waists are lined with pale pink chiffons. There are a good number of the newest French Collar styles.

Their air of fashion, their quality, the exquisite hand work, all proclaim the value of these fine Waists. It is not the least of their value to the fortunate women who secure them that there is scarcely a duplicate in the lot. Good range of sizes, 36 to 42 in the lot.

Amazing Offer of Misses' Spring Dresses
New $15 to $20 Dresses at $9.98.

CHARMING NEW STYLES for any hour of the day, Frocks for wear at any place and any time. They are made of

All Silk Crepe de Chine,
White and Colored Ratines,
Thin Eponges,
All Silk Poplin,
Fine Ramie Linens,
Silk Striped Ratines.

You will find among all the newest and best shades for Spring and Summer wear, the pale pinks, the soft rose, dull blues, navy, tans. There are the latest ideas in design and trimming. Many show the new fashion of combining two materials.

All one-piece models, but included are a number that give the effect of a Suit, the waist in jacket form, sometimes in the front, sometimes all around. Some are belted models; some with soft girdles of Persian eponge lace of velvet and of satin. Many have the turn-down collars of French embroidery. Some are embroidered by hand. One model of eponge has the collar and cuff trimming of white linen, appliqued with rat-tail braid. A beautiful crepe de chine frock in tan, blue, pink and rose, is brightened by trimming of heavy eponge lace, printed in Persian colors. One of soft rose eponge is trimmed with satin bands of dull green. A beautiful model in Suit effect, has a waist of fine linen Cluny.

Today the LAST DAY
Of This Money-Saving Piano Sale.
Not in Several Months Will There Be Another Equal Chance to Buy Pianos and Player-Pianos Under Value.

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL SPRING PIANO SALE in all our experience is drawing to a close—and it is a matter of satisfaction that so many instruments have gone into homes where we are confident they will give lasting satisfaction.

Today will end the Sale—but those who come today will find a splendid collection of instruments they may buy for prices which are remarkably low when the CONDITION and QUALITY of the instruments are considered.

The Loeser Sale is unique in the fact that all instruments are guaranteed to be in good playable condition.

We prefer not to sell a Piano or Player-piano that we cannot sell with assurance of its quality. We have spent time and money enough on these instruments to have that assurance in each case.

PURCHASES MAY BE MADE ON EASY TERMS.

If you have any desire to take advantage of the low prices of this sale, do not hesitate because you are not prepared to pay all cash. We will make terms to suit almost any reasonable requirement, but the PURCHASE must be made today, before the Sale is ended.

Just a few of the instruments in the Sale are listed here. Some of them have come newly from our repair shops, not having been finished in time for the earlier days of the sale.

PUTNAM'S NEW BOOKS

The Southland of North America

Rambles and Observations in Central America during the Year 1912.

By GEORGE PALMER PUTNAM

8°. With 96 illustrations and a map. $2.50 net. By mail, $2.75.

A richly illustrated volume, graphic in style, informing in substance, and entertaining in effect, presenting a trustworthy account of the Central American countries.

Zones of the Spirit

A Book of Thoughts.

By AUGUST STRINDBERG

Author of "The Inferno," "The Sin of a Servant," etc.

Translated by Claud Field, M. A. With Introduction by Arthur Babillotte.

12°. $1.25 net. By mail, $1.35.

Of this book of amazing copiousness and originality the Norwegian author, Nils Kjaer, has written: "Stamped with the impress of incomparable originality, every sentence shining like luminous letters in the darkness—such is this book in which the remarkable writer makes a final reckoning with his time and proclaims his faith, as pugnaciously as though he were a descendant of the hero of Lutzen."

A Candid History of the Jesuits

By JOSEPH McCABE

Author of "Twelve Years in a Monastery." "Modern Rationalism," etc.

8°. $3.50 net. By mail, $3.75.

An impartial record of the history and character of the Jesuits from their foundation to the present day. Every phase of their remarkable story—including the activity of political Jesuits and their singular behavior on the foreign missions—is carefully studied, and the record of the Jesuits in England is very fully examined.

Court Masques of James I.

Their Influence on Shakespeare and the Public Theatres.

By MARY SULLIVAN Ph.D.

8°. Illustrated. $2.50 net. By mail, $2.75.

The author establishes Shakespeare's connection not only as a private "Groom of the King's Chamber" and one of the company of the King's own players, but as an important instrument in entertainments prepared for the reception of Kings, Queens, and their Ambassadors under stress of peculiarly delicate diplomatic complications.

Silas Deane

A Connecticut Leader in the American Revolution.

By GEORGE L. CLARK

Author of "Notions of a Yankee Parson."

With Frontispiece. $1.50 net. By mail, $1.65.

The author presents a fresh study from original sources of one of the most efficient leaders in the early part of the Revolution. The book sheds fresh light upon eventful and critical days, and places before the reader in graphic and lucid style one of the most energetic, effective and pathetic leaders in the Revolution.

ARRANGE TO PRINT SCOTT STORY HERE

30,000 Words from Dead Explorer's Diary Will Appear in Everybody's Magazine.

1,000 PICTURES FOR IT

Magazine Editor, Back from Conferring with Lady Scott, Says She Is Bearing Her Loss Bravely.

Among the passengers who arrived last night on the French liner France from Havre was Trumbull White, editor of Everybody's Magazine. He went to England four weeks ago to confer with Lady Scott and Lieut. Evans on the publication of the diary of the Scott antarctic expedition in the periodical which he represents. He said that it had been decided to print 30,000 words of the narrative left by the explorer. This he said would be illustrated by 1,000 pictures.

"The tragedy of the expedition," said Mr. White, "centres around the dash to the pole. This is described in 3,000 words. When Scott departed for the pole with his companions he took with him a small camera containing a spool of twelve films, and three pocket diaries with flexible covers. The message to the British nation, which will be reproduced in the serial story, was written on three pages of a diary. He managed to survive longer than his companions because of his superior mentality. One of the most interesting pictures on Scott's spool shows him looking down into the tent left by Amundsen at the pole. The Norwegian flag left by Amundsen is seen clearly in the picture, flying from the top of the small tent. In the diary left by Capt. Scott there is nothing morbid or blameworthy, and everything is made very clear.

"There are also wonderful pictures of penguins moving across the snow in regiments and the place where Capt. Oates went out into the blizzard to die. The words on the memorial cross are: 'Hereabouts lies the body of a gallant gentleman.' The diary shows that the members of the party, suffering from starvation and cold, were working when their temperature was down to 94 degrees, instead of 98.06, the normal figure."

Mr. White said that the picture of the memorial cross erected over the cairn containing the bodies of Capt. Scott and his companions was on the way home from New Zealand. He spent two weeks in consultation with Lady Scott. In the three months which had elapsed since the death of her husband was made known she had recovered from the first shock of the announcement. Mr. White said, and was bearing her lot in a brave, womanly way. Their three-year-old son, Peter, was a sturdy little chap, he said, and would be the pride of the British Nation in any career he might select to follow later in life.

The first part of the story will appear in Everybody's Magazine for July, simultaneously with its publication in the Strand Magazine in London and in a magazine published by the firm of Hachette in Paris.

$24,399 FOR AUTO INJURY.

Spectator Hurt at Vanderbilt Cup Race Wins His Suit.

The Appellate Division of the Second Department in Brooklyn denied yesterday a motion for reargument in the case of Thomas Muller against the Pope-Hartford Automobile Company and the defendant was directed to pay a judgment of $24,399.72, recently affirmed by the court. Joseph A. Shay was counsel for Muller.

The Pope-Hartford car, in the Vanderbilt Cup Race on Oct. 1, 1910, left the track at Westbury turn and struck Muller, who was a spectator, injuring him badly and causing the loss of a leg. In March, 1912, a jury in the court of Supreme Justice Maddox, in Queens County, brought in a verdict of $22,500 damages against the automobile company, and that sum has since been increased by interest and charges to $24,399.72. The verdict was affirmed a fortnight ago by the Appellate Division.

HONOR FATHER EVERS.

Night Workers to Hold a Double Celebration at St. Andrew's.

A double quartette of professional singers and a chorus of forty voices will sing the mass in St. Andrew's Catholic Church, Duane Street, to-morrow morning at half-past 2 o'clock to mark the thirteenth anniversary of the founding of the Nightworkers' Mass, and the thirtieth anniversary of the ordination of the rector, the Rev. Luke J. Evers, to the priesthood. It is fifteen years since Father Evers went to St. Andrew's, at a time when it was feared, even by Catholic authorities, that the church might have to be moved. The Nightworkers' Mass has proved an institution of downtown New York, and led to the holding of other masses and services for similar workers. Other activities of Father Evers include the founding of Catholic work in the prisons of New York in its present efficient form, and the starting of noon-hour services during Lent.

Father Evers will complete the celebration of his anniversary with services at Troy, where he was ordained, and at St. Andrew's on May 25, the latter a mass of thanksgiving. He is a graduate of Notre Dame University, Indiana. He served in rural parishes of the Archdiocese of New York, and for four years had charge of a mission in the Bowery. During last Lent his noon-hour congregations averegade 1,800 persons.

COURT WARNS THE POLICE.

Judge Humphrey Tells Captain to Drive Out Disorderly Resorts.

For the second time in a few months, County Judge Burt J. Humphrey of Queens has taken action to drive out disorderly resorts from that county. After Detective Charles J. Newins had testified in the County Court in Long Island City yesterday, Judge Humphrey said to him:

"When you go back to your precinct I want you to tell your Captain that I want resorts of the kind here testified to cleaned out. Dance halls where white and colored men and women are permitted to congregate should not be tolerated. It is my intention to see, so far as I am able, that dance halls and resorts of this kind are eliminated in this county."

Judge Humphrey's remarks grew out of the trial and conviction before him of Alfred Cabello of Inwood, on a charge of assault in the second degree. Cabello was a Deputy Sheriff of Nassau County, and he was indicted for shooting Edward Edwards, a negro, of Jamaica, in a dance hall run by John Josephs at Far Rockaway. At the end of the trial Judge Humphreys summoned Josephs before him and told him that resorts such as he maintained were not desired in the county. Josephs told the Court that he was a law-abiding citizen and that he paid $60 a month rent for his place. Judge Humphrey replied that he considered the dance hall an undesirable addition to Far Rockaway.

Some time ago Judge Humphrey took action against resorts in South Street, Jamaica, and they were finally all discontinued.

WOMAN LEGISLATOR DEFENDS SUFFRAGE

No Effort to Take Franchise from Women in Colorado, Mrs. Robinson Says.

IS CONSULTED ON BILLS

Women Must Go Into Politics, She Tells Equal Suffrage League, to Protect the Home.

The only woman State Senator in the country, Mrs. Helen Ring Robinson of Denver, says there is nothing in the talk of dissatisfaction with Woman Suffrage in the West and a desire to take away the franchise from the women. She told the Equal Suffrage League about it yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Aster.

"There is just as much truth in their trying to take the franchise from the women as that they are trying to take it from men because they are bald-headed or because they wear side whiskers. It is very easy for some one to come from the East and get a one-sided story, especially if he comes by contract.

"You will find plenty of defeated candidates after an election who will say that Woman Suffrage is not a success and they will gladly say so in an interview. We court investigation and criticism; we only object to plain and fancy lies.

"Those stories of the women voters making themselves up in the image of men are not true. Neither do the women who vote or the office holders have faces like vinegar jugs. And we do not spend our time drinking cocktails and highballs or stuffing ballot boxes."

She told her audience about her experience in the Senate.

"I represent the industries of the wife and mother," she said. "I wish you could see my daughter. She's a good-looker. She is intelligent and very much interested in suffrage, only she says that she is going to Washington. This is the first time that the homemaker has been represented in the Government. The 'antis' say that in the home lies a woman's most sacred duty, and I think so, too, only I don't believe in what they call 'virtual representation.' That is a fool of a phrase. It was Robert Louis Stevenson, wasn't it, who said, 'Man does not live by bread alone, but by catch phrases'? I have been reading some anti-suffrage literature, and I think so, too. There are also phrases that are neurotic and tommyrotic, as we say in Colorado.

"People ask me what I have done. I have done nothing alone for I must always have at least seventeen men with me whatever I do, for it takes eighteen to make a majority. The men have never treated me with sex antagonism, and I have not had sex consciousness. The other legislators do not do things I like because I am a woman, but because I stand for a good measure. I notice that when certain bills come up they turn instinctively to me to see if I consider them good measures. There are other things in which I look to them.

"When a man tells me that home is the proper place for a woman I tell him that the proper place for a man is at home sometimes and also at others. I have no patience with the people who say that woman's place is the home and not in politics. If you wish to conserve the family you must consider the grocers' combines. There is not a tiny arch of the home circle that is not touched with politics. To keep the home inviolate you must go into politics."

Senator Robinson was attractively gowned in a blue suit and hat to match. Miss Mary Wood preceded her as a speaker, and Miss Florence Guernsey presided at the meeting.

Says Socialist Flag May Fly.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., May 9.—The red flag of the Socialist organization may fly here or in any other town in Ohio, according to Attorney General Hogan. The Socialists replaced the flag the Mayor had burned. When the decision reached here, some one climbed to the roof and smeared the red banner with black ink. The Socialists offered a reward for the name of the man, but no one gave it, although the act was seen by many persons.

Offers Little Journeys Out of the World of Hard Reality

"I hope," says Mr. Hewlett, "nobody will ask me whether the things in this book are true, for it will then be my humiliating duty to reply that I don't know. They seem to be so to me writing them; they seemed to be so when they occurred, and one of them occurred only two or three years ago."

What matter:—here is a book like no other; and the enchanted reader will not till long after ask the question Mr. Hewlett dreads.

The Land of the Spirit

Is the First Book of Fiction in Four Years

By Thomas Nelson Page

Expectations rise high at the announcement of a book by Thomas Nelson Page, but never too high and often not high enough. This one contains some of the most refined products of his sentiment and humor. Several of the stories—"The Shepherd Who Watched by Night," "The Stranger's Pew," "The Bigot," and "The Stable of the Inn"—are characterized by a strong spiritual quality. "The Old Planters," "The Trick Doctor," etc., are colorful pictures of Southern life, in whose painting none can equal Mr. Page.

Nietzsche's phrase, which the author takes for a title, suggests poetically its material:—papers written at various periods of a brilliant career and having the mellow tone of time. The titles themselves suggest how bright are the rays of his wit. "The Play-Boy of Western Philosophy" is Bergson. "A Philosophy of Philistines" is Pragmatism. "The Artist and His Wife" is an amusing essay on the effect of matrimony on genius. Other titles are "The Celtic Awakening," "In Praise of Fireworks," "Browsing Among My Books."

Frederic C. Howe,

Head of the People's Institute, Tells What Cities of Europe Have Done to Advance the Health and Pleasure of Their People; What Our Cities Should Do in

European Cities at Work

Dr. Howe, looking upon the development of city administration as the great hope of future civilization, presents in this book a constructive vision of the city of to-morrow. It is the third of his inspiring studies of city life and government; and as the first, "The City: The Hope of Democracy," presented the structure of cities, so this volume deals rather with the activities of cities. It emphasizes the social side of city life, the new art of community living: — planning for health and beauty with an allowance for future growth, laying out suburbs like garden cities, building model apartments, founding municipal pawnshops and savings banks.

IN ANOTHER MOMENT

A New Novel by Charles Belmont Davis
Author of The Stage Door, The Lodger, Overhead, Etc.

Pictures by Wallace Morgan

IN ANOTHER MOMENT is a striking novel of New York as a touchstone of character. With fidelity lightened by humor, and realism brightened by romance, Mr. Davis paints the Gotham of the Great White Way. Deftly he holds the interest in suspense, the reader breathless for what may happen—IN ANOTHER MOMENT.

THE BEAR'S CLAWS THE BEAR'S CLAWS THE BEAR'S CLAWS

The N.Y. Tribune

A novel by Grace Sartwell Mason and J. N. Hilliard

Now we have an uneasy feeling that if gossip of "The Bear's Claws" gets much around, many important telegrams will be delayed, dust will accumulate in the corners of rooms, commercial correspondence will suffer in the typing and the making of some useful laws may be neglected. Consequently, we feel it incumbent upon us to employ some tact in spreading news of this book. So we advise messenger boys, pale seamstresses, lonely typists and serious statesmen to beware of it. It goes with a rush.

FORCIBLE FEEDING OF TARIFF CRITICS.

Chairman UNDERWOOD is in a truculent and incompatible mood. Against manufacturers who may impiously complain of the tariff and reduce wages to make up for any loss it may inflict he invokes the terrors of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, established twenty-five years ago, which has slumbered on the shelf in innocuous desuetude until revived by this Administration. Here are Mr. UNDERWOOD'S words:

> When great manufacturing institutions are ready to threaten their laborers with a reduction of wages because they say there has been adverse action and legislation in Congress, or to reflect on the action of the Government of the United States, that bureau has the power to walk into their offices and ascertain whether there is real reason for their cutting the rates of wages of their labor or whether it is merely a selfish attempt to put money into their own pockets.

President ROOSEVELT in 1908 frightened the railroads by his threat that there would be trouble made for them if they attempted to reduce wages. They were in trouble already and had to reduce operating cost, which they did, not by lowering wages, but by discharging men. There has been among the friends of social justice a difference of opinion as to whether Mr. ROOSEVELT showed himself to be a friend of labor on that occasion, it being held by some that fair wages for all are more to be desired than high wages for some and no wages at all for others.

But Mr. UNDERWOOD strikes a discordant note, a note in harsh discord, indeed, with the declaration of President WILSON in his message that this tariff had been made to "put our business men and producers under the stimulation of a constant necessity to be efficient, economical, and enterprising"; and that "the object of the tariff duties henceforth laid must be effective competition, the whetting of American wits by contest with the wits of the rest of the world." The doctrine of greater efficiency is applicable not only to the counting room, but to the working force. We pointed out when the bill was introduced that it must have the stimulating effect indicated by the President; that as profits diminished there would inevitably be an effort to reduce production costs, and that labor would have to do its share. If organized labor insisted on a restricted daily output per man, or upon the employment of an unnecessary number of men, then, certainly, wage reduction would follow. Mr. UNDERWOOD now interposes his veto. By threatening investigation, publicity, exposure, and odium against manufacturers who attempt to reduce wages he practically guarantees the present wage to all workers. His threat is a direct invitation to organized labor to produce as little and to demand as much as it pleases. Will not the strong arm of the Government be stretched forth to shield the operative against a cut in his wages? Mr. UNDERWOOD'S statement is, in fact, a declaration that efficiency and the sharpening of wits are to be confined to the employer; the employé may be as slothful as he pleases and exact high wages for unproductive work. That is exactly contrary to the spirit and letter of President WILSON'S message.

There is a world of difference between Mr. UNDERWOOD'S application of the old Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce law and that proposed by Secretary REDFIELD in the case of the pottery men. The pottery interests offer to show their books and cost sheets; they will freely open them to the inspectors of the bureau. Mr. UNDERWOOD apparently will send the inspectors, backed by the land and sea forces of the Federal Government, to ascertain "the real reason" for cutting wages. He would stuff the tariff down the manufacturers' throats by sending inspectors to the factories. Resistance to such visitation would be deplorable. It would savor of nullification. But there is an old and probably forgotten provision of the Constitution in Article IV. of the amendments, which says that "the right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated." We have an impression which it would require a decision of the Supreme Court to remove that a search of the manufacturer's books to ascertain why he had reduced the wages of his men would be a violation of this article of the Constitution. An inquiry into costs for the information of Congress, while engaged in drafting revenue laws, is a very different thing from a forcible search to prove that revenue laws already passed are wise, salutary, and not to be complained of. If not too late, we suggest that Mr. UNDERWOOD add to his tariff bill a section providing that reduction of wages by manufacturers affected by its schedules shall be deemed high treason.

A LANDSCAPE ARCHITECT FOR THE PARKS.

No successor has yet been appointed to Mr. CHARLES D. LAY, Landscape Architect of the Park Department, who resigned some days ago because he could not work in harmony with Park Commissioner STOVER. All the parks of this city, and especially Central Park, are in need of the supervision and constructive ability of a competent landscape architect. The city's charter provides that the Landscape Architect of the Park Board must be skilled and expert, and that his assent must be obtained to all plans of works or changes relating to the conformation, development, or ornamentation of the various parks. The Landscape Architect, therefore, possesses the power to veto ill-considered plans affecting the parks.

The successor to Mr. LAY should be a man thoroughly trained to the park idea and, in respect to Central Park, thoroughly familiar with the original plan of OLMSTED and VAUX, and determined that it shall be regarded in all improvements of the Park. He should have the firmness of character needed to withstand all argument and appeal in favor of diverting Central Park from its only legitimate purpose The choice of such a man should not be deferred much longer.

CASUALTY INSURANCE.

We trust that Gov. SULZER will not be influenced to withhold his approval of the Industrial Compensation bill passed at the recent session by the clamor that has been raised by its opponents regarding the casualty insurance companies. Whatever may have been the faults or defects of the casualty companies in the past—and they have been a good deal exaggerated—we can see no reason why, under the conditions imposed by this bill and under the direct regulation of the State Insurance Department, they should not be permitted to compete for such business as is produced under the law.

It must be remembered that by this legislation the whole situation is radically changed. In the past the evil connected with the collection of industrial compensation, or damages, has arisen from excessive litigation, and it is not to be denied that the casualty companies may have taken advantage of this litigation. It grew out of the defenses that could be interposed under the common law, especially those of contributory negligence, of negligence of a fellow employé, and of assumption of risk. And beyond these defenses was the general principle that the employé claiming damages must show affirmatively by legal evidence the accountability of the employer. Under the bill now before the Governor these special defenses are done away with; employers who decline to come under the law are not allowed to plead them; employers who come under the law are required to pay definite compensation for definite injuries, and the need or opportunity for litigation is reduced to the lowest practicable level. There is little occasion or chance for vexatious delays or for escape from liability on technicalities. Against such liabilities as exist there is certainly no reason why the employers should not, if they choose, have the opportunity of insurance in the casualty companies, whose business must be under the immediate supervision of the State.

Another consideration that should weigh with the Governor, and, we should say, weigh heavily with him, is that if this bill do not become a law now there can be no provision for liberal or fair industrial compensation for at least another year. Meanwhile the constitutional amendment authorizing compulsory compensation will be submitted to the people. If it be adopted, as there is every likelihood that it will be, the present bill will be an excellent basis for the legislation required. After compulsory compensation is enacted, the whole system of insurance will be modified. The very object of insurance will be largely changed. It will then be its purpose mainly to secure the prompt and certain payment of the compensation imposed by law. For that purpose the casualty companies, with their ample capital and their thorough organization, will be well equipped. It is indeed probable that mutual insurance among employers of like character, aimed largely at preventing accidents, will grow up, which would be an excellent thing. But in the meanwhile it seems to us entirely plain that the employés must gain from the most extensive and active competition among those offering insurance.

GEN. HUERTA'S PLEA.

Provisional President HUERTA'S politely worded demand for recognition by the United States of the present temporary Government of Mexico is not likely to change the policy of President WILSON in relation to that troubled republic. An equally polite reply may be made without offense and the matter left just where it stands. As for the relations of our Ambassador at the Mexican capital, as he was duly recognized by two former Presidents of the Mexican Republic, they are not likely to be affected seriously by Gen. HUERTA'S intimation that, while unrecognized, the Provisional Government must abstain "from treating any official matter, with the exception of urgent affairs and ordinary procedure." Treatment of "urgent affairs" and "ordinary procedure" is all we can reasonably expect at present. Gen. HUERTA promises that American citizens in Mexico shall have the protection of his Government. As for the settlement of pending American claims, nothing can be done in that direction in the present state of the Mexican Treasury. Gen. HUERTA'S plea means that the Government of Mexico cannot raise funds while the United States withholds recognition; but that reason cannot impel President WILSON to extend formal recognition if he has other good reasons for withholding it.

Meanwhile the position of Ambassador WILSON is extremely delicate, and it has not been made less so by the iteration from the State Department that he is kept in office because the appointment of a successor would necessarily imply recognition of Gen. HUERTA'S Government. This explanation is extremely unfair to one of the most tactful and competent members of our Diplomatic Service. Every one can see that there are other and better reasons for retaining Ambassador WILSON in the post he has filled with so great distinction.

THE GREAT PEACE CELEBRATION.

Plans are nearly completed for the international celebration of the completion of 100 years of peace between the United States and Great Britain, in the latter part of 1914, a peace which is likely to endure, as Mr. CARNEGIE puts it, "through all the centuries to come." For the mind of reasoning man cannot conceive a cause for a future war between the two great English-speaking nations. Two monuments, identical in design and description, are to be erected in Washington and London, and the cornerstones are to be laid at the same moment by the King and the President of the United States, with a brief cessation of all business simultaneously in both countries.

Many other lesser plans are contemplated, such as the institution of traveling scholarships, the compilation of an authoritative history of the 100 years, the erection of many tablets commemorating events of the War of 1812, a great celebration at Ghent, in Belgium, where the treaty of peace was signed, and various monuments along the American Canadian frontier. One of these much favored is a new and splendid memorial bridge across the Niagara River, and another is a bridge between Detroit and Windsor. Lincoln County, Ontario, and Niagara County, New York, are already connected by several bridges across the Niagara, but a new one of imposing design would be an appropriate memorial. Perhaps the popular imagination would be more strongly appealed to by the erection of a new bridge spanning the St. Lawrence River. All the other details of this most interesting historical celebration seem to adjust themselves easily, but the project of a huge memorial bridge is one that demands careful consideration from many points of view, and a site should not be hurriedly settled upon.

MR. WALSH'S EXPLANATION.

Deputy State Controller WALSH'S contribution to the history of the Frawley bills relating to State bonds adds nothing to the sum of existing knowledge. It appears that Mr. WALSH conferred with the Governor, that the Frawley bills were put before him before they were introduced, and that in his letter of March 20 the Deputy Controller advised the Governor that one way to make a market for the canal and highway bonds shortly to be issued would be an increase in the exemption of investment institutions from taxes upon their holdings of State bonds. All this is interesting, but absolutely irrelevant to the question of the primal origin of the Frawley bills, of the interests that got them through the Legislature, and finally strangled the repeal bill in the Assembly. It is very evident that Deputy Controller WALSH was deceived with all the rest as to the chief but hidden motive of this legislation, for when the effect of the bills had been pointed out he joined in the effort to have them repealed. The strange thing is that a Governor, an Attorney General, and three Deputy Controllers could confer over the Frawley bills without discovering that, if enacted, whatever their effect might be on future bond sales, they would make a present of $12,500,000 to the holders of bonds already issued, and deprive the State of about $25,000,000 of revenue from taxes in the next fifty years. The Ethiopian was bigger than the woodpile, yet none of these gentlemen detected his presence.

DAVID B. HILL was not enthusiastic about direct primaries, for the very good reason that in that remote and unprogressive age when he was Governor of the State it had not occurred to anybody to invent the direct primary. Mr. HILL was distinctly not a reformer. But he did set up and maintain in the Capitol at Albany a system and mechanism for the rigid scrutiny of all legislative bills that came before him, insomuch that it is safe to say that no measure received his signature until he knew what it meant. Countless bills were returned by him for changes and amendment, to correct the gross blunders and remedy the oversights of legislative incompetence. We are entirely confident that DAVID B. HILL would never have been deceived by anybody about the Frawley bills.

FOUR MORE.

Although none of the four ex-Inspectors of Police convicted of conspiracy to obstruct the course of justice has offered, as it was hoped that at least one of them would offer, to give aid to the District Attorney in getting bigger offenders, the result of their conviction and sentence is extremely important. They are men who have been on the force for a long time, who have enjoyed the confidence of their superiors, who have attained high rank and who have had intimate knowledge of and share in the general conduct of the force. As they take their way to the penitentiary they are living proof of the extent and strength of the corrupt system which they have served. It is obviously incredible that this corruption could have tainted men in their places without the knowledge and connivance of those still higher. Apparently these and their fellows are in a position to offer to the convicted Inspectors adequate inducement to take their chances in the courts and in such careers as may be open to them when they have served their terms.

But this striking evidence of the power of the system will affect public opinion, and public opinion in the long run will overthrow the system. Nor shall we have to wait long for that achievement. It is not too much to say that the safety of the system will be the chief issue in the city election this Fall. If Mr. WHITMAN shall be a candidate for his present office with a Mayoralty candidate who can be relied on to work with him, the majority of the voters of New York will be determined that the process of purification shall be completed. The verdict on that point will be as prompt and certain as have been those of the juries which have sent such a notable number of guilty policemen to jail.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Defense of the Fashions.

Most of the people who are taking it upon themselves, just now, to comment, in print and out, upon the present feminine styles seem to be without even rudimentary knowledge of physiology, psychology, and aesthetics. One is tempted, when reading and hearing their open accusations and veiled insinuations against a multitude of honest women, to deny to these people the common decency that prevents criticism from sinking into reckless and malignant slander.

To the feminine garments of the present day—excesses and extremes apart, of course—objection is of the same quality as that which a woman in evening dress excites in observers from the backwoods. Confusing the unfamiliar and the improper, such observers transmute their surprise into horror, and impudently assume that any dress except their own is immodest in fact and shameful in motive. That a woman should wear a skirt so narrow that it shortens her steps to the endangering of her safety does, indeed, convict her of folly and make her a ridiculous or pathetic spectacle, but no degree of exiguity is as bad as sweeping the ground with yards or even inches of worse than useless cloth, and the activities of the modern matron or maid, no matter how much "hobbled," are not as much or as absurdly restricted as were those of their revered grandmothers.

That the narrowed skirt should be "slit" or "split"—their critics make a characteristic search for an offensive word—is a perfectly sensible, and therefore perfectly proper, device for retaining the advantages and avoiding the disadvantages of the change. The world's Mrs. Grundys, male and female, wax hysterically indignant over the revelations that follow, and declare virtue dying or dead, but wiser folk note that women at last are dressing just about as artists and doctors have always wanted them to dress, in accord with the laws of beauty and of health, and patiently wait till wont and custom have proved again that modesty is not an absolute, but a thing of place and time.

If the yelping prudes knew the close relation between the mental state into which the sight of shoes and stockings throws them and that described by the sex pathologists in certain chapters on "fetichism," they would realize that the shocking revelation is made by themselves, not by the women who imitate—as yet from afar—the dress of Diana, the virgin huntress.

Marriage Early or Late.

President LOWELL of Harvard, as quoted, has just announced that, in his opinion, it is not well for the man or his community to be forced to wait till he is 28 or more before he can think of marriage. This statement is one likely to cause a good deal of discussion, for it contradicts or opposes much that has been said in recent years by authorities as high about the dangers of early marriage, or, what comes to about the same thing, of marriage on an income inadequate to maintain an accustomed standard of living.

There is so much to be said on both sides of this important and interesting question that there is little chance of reaching a conclusion on which all will agree. Probably there is no one conclusion. "It depends," as the saying is. Marriages at no age always succeed, and those at none always fail, and it is because of that well-observed fact that President LOWELL was more than slightly incautious in formulating a law as of universal or general application.

Undoubtedly the common tendency of the time in this and most other countries is for both men and women to defer marriage longer than they formerly did. To economists the effects seem good, but neither the moralists nor the physiologists admit that the change is altogether for the better as regards the present or the future of the race. Humans are a confusingly complicated lot. They do, and apparently must, or should, consider many of the so-called practical matters that "nature," as illustrated in the simpler animals, persistently ignores in her cold indifference to the individual and the concentration of all her attention upon the race. Even we, however, are beginning to think about subordinating the present inclinations and conveniences of the individual to the needs and welfare of posterity, and there are many signs of a growing realization that the incentive to marriage at which we have been looking askance as "low" is, in fact, so high that it is not only the best basis of happy marriage, but the one basis on which marriage can be happy.

Whether that is true or not also "depends." More and more the thoughtful are turning to the eugenists for advice. Only the densely ignorant or the implacably prejudiced now dismiss their suggestions as applying to humanity the methods of the stock farm—a charge which is not less false by implication than directly, for the methods of the stock farm, so far as they go and in spite of their unscientific empiricism, are excellent.

Affidavits Supplied if Desired.

LEWIS WALLER, the English actor-manager, has "procured" the announcement by his legal representatives in this city that he was cruelly and utterly misquoted by the reporters who printed as coming from him the opinion that American audiences have neither appreciation nor liking for good plays.

Not only does Mr. WALLER declare that he did not say this or anything like it, but that he did not say anything at all to any reporter at the time—just before he sailed for home—when the interview was supposed to take place.

As against this denial, we are able to state, on the authority of three experienced and trustworthy reporters, that Mr. WALLER was interviewed precisely then, and that he did express the opinion ascribed to them.

Here is a clear issue of veracity, and everybody is privileged to decide for himself as to where the truth lies. There is help toward a decision, perhaps, for those who need help, in the impossibility of imagining any reason why unpleasant words should have been put in Mr. WALLER'S mouth, and further assistance in the fact that public men not infrequently say in their haste what they repent at leisure, after it gets into print and they begin to think about the consequences of rash or irritable utterance.

If Mr. WALLER could be convinced how little the United States was affected by his criticism, and how soon it will be forgotten, perhaps he would not have bothered to make a denial which to us seems to make a mistake otherwise trivial just a little important.

THE INCOME TAX.

Chinese Who Control Retail Philippine Trade Exempted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On Page 133, Section 2, of the new Tariff bill, beginning at line six, is the following, which I have just noticed in reading over the bill for the first time:

> and by every citizen of the Philippine Islands, which would impose the income tax upon the Americans and Filipinos living in the islands, but would exempt the Chinese and others in whose hands is the great bulk of trade.

This seems to me a tremendous injustice. Not 6 per cent. of the business in the Philippines is in the hands of Filipinos, and not 5 per cent. of them would be subject to an income tax, for the reason that the average Filipino's total income is not as much as $200 a year. The tax would fall heaviest on the Americans who are doing business out there, and great properties like Tabacalera, the big tobacco manufacturing plant, with a capital of $13,000,000; the big English and other bankers, the big English exporters, such as Smith, Bell & Co., who, excepting, perhaps, the inter-island boats owned by the Tabacalera and other local companies, do the greater part of the inter-land trading, would not be subject to an income tax. The great part of the retail business is in the hands of Chinese merchants, who have accumulated great wealth and are increasing it rapidly.

I believe a failure to amend the act so as to include those I have named would cause trouble in the Philippines. The natives hate the Chinese. A. S. C.

NEW YORK'S MANY NOISES.

Racket Made by Riveting "Guns" Declared to be Preventable.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is a well-known fact that the business of many concerns in this city has been, and is being, seriously interfered with by the noise of pneumatic riveting hammers, and if the reconstruction of New York goes on, as it now seems likely to do, the actual loss and injury from this continuing and great annoyance will be immeasurable.

This noise is probably borne only because people generally think it is unavoidable, and that modern buildings cannot be put up without the use of these "guns," but that is not true. Rivets were upset in steel structures long before these pneumatic hammers were invented, and it was done by methods involving the making of no noise whatever. It can still be so done; at some additional cost, perhaps, though not a great additional cost when considered as a percentage of the cost of a modern building.

The same compressed air which drives the "gun" and produces the rapid and intensely annoying hammering will, when admitted to a cylinder properly arranged upon a "C" frame, upset a rivet by quiet pressure. True, the machine for doing this cannot be handled with the facility which the "gun" permits, but it is safe to say that a building designed with the knowledge that no "gun" would be permitted to be used in its erection could be erected by the quiet machine referred to at an increased cost of less than 2 per cent. for any ordinary building.

It seems to me that it is an entirely pertinent question for New Yorkers to ask of themselves as to whether they will permit this disturbing and maddening noise to go on for the sake of enabling builders to save a little in cost of construction, especially in view of the fact that the only immediate economic effect of any necessary increased cost would be to check the advance in the value of the land upon which such buildings are erected and would soon be compensated for and lost sight of by other improvements in building processes.

If this city were to appoint a competent engineer for this purpose, and if he were to study pneumatic riveting, motor trucks, trolley cars, and elevated railroads, with a view to reducing the noises to a minimum, his report would, I think, be very enlightening; if followed it would make New York a much more tolerable place in which to exist, and would thereby probably tend in the long run toward an increase instead of a decrease of land values.

FRED J. MILLER.

New York, May 8, 1913.

SOME TEACHERS TRUSTED.

Words of Counsel Addressed to Future Young Pedagogues.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In THE TIMES appeared recently an excellent editorial on "Why Teachers Are Not Trusted"—excellent for teachers to read and post on the front page of their textbook, but discouraging and misleading to the young enthusiast about to become a teacher. For the sake of these young men and women we should like to have you write an editorial on "Why Teachers Are Trusted."

Many men and women, I am sure, look back to their teachers with the greatest reverence and count them among all men the most to be trusted and the best advisors on the questions of after life. Of course every profession has its merely professional members. Very striking editorials might be written on "Why Lawyers Are Not Trusted," or "Why Doctors Are Not Trusted," or "Why Wall Street Men Are Not Trusted," and so on for any profession or business.

While we acknowledge the truth of your strictures on the teacher as applied to the bully and the mere disciplinarian, we emphatically deny their application to the real teacher who is trying to teach the child his place among his fellows, or to the real educator who is trying to "lead out" the best that is in the child.

While any good teacher will stand horrified at the sight of a class "under a man's thumb," with the separate individualities suppressed instead of trained, he knows that restlessness is not, as a rule, the sign of attention, but quite the contrary. The whole attitude of a child is not only indicative of its mental processes, but is an absolute hindrance or help to these processes. The horse restless in the stall is usually a loafer on the road, and vice versa. Moreover, the child not taught consideration for others, and not taught to take a helpful place in a class, will miss perhaps the most important part of its education.

THE TIMES surely cannot have meant to leave the impression that unquestioning obedience is less important in the every day man than in the soldier. The skill of the teacher is manifested in his success in getting this unquestioning obedience while he leads out all the individuality to the full use of its powers. Of course, unquestioning obedience of the right sort means "reasonable" obedience. Let no would-be teacher deceive himself in planning to accomplish this result by any methods apart from his own personality. If the man or woman going into the teaching profession does not purpose to be "trusted" in all points which truly touch the child, let him or her not dare to offend one of these little ones by being a so-called "teacher."

I hope that the testimony of some of us as to the happiness of the teacher and his ever broadening influence over his fellow-men may do something to correct the impression that your editorial might make on young enthusiasts looking forward to our profession.

One of the chief practical difficulties of our profession is that almost any respectable man can get at once a living wage with but little incentive to his best efforts. In other words, he is not rewarded according to his works, and never can be, because nobody knows his works, least of all the general run of school trustees. Even the children or young people in a man's class never realize what they are getting till long after, when their old teacher is either dead or retired in poverty. As far as material incentive goes, there is little to prevent us from losing our visions and dropping down to be such men as your writer has evidently known as his teachers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On the controversy as to the status of teachers and as to the reasons for the somewhat light esteem in which the profession (if it be a profession) is held, permit me to observe that the Hanus reports make a very discreditable showing for at least the teachers of this city. It is impossible that the astonishing condition of affairs laid bare by this investigation was not fully known to all the teachers individually and as members of organizations of teachers, yet they held their peace when duty called on them to cry aloud and spare not. The Housewife's Earnings.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Commenting on Mrs. La Follette's statement that women do most of the buying for the family and spend 90 per cent. of the money laid out for household necessities, an anti-suffrage correspondent of THE TIMES contemptuously remarks that most of this money "was earned by the men, and the women in spending it acted only as men's agents."

The average house-mother has no money of her own to spend simply because she has chosen to invest her life in the making of a home and the rearing of a family—a business of enormous value in the aggregate to the country, but not bringing any cash to her separate account. This is cited by your correspondent as a reason why women are unworthy of a vote. This systematic undervaluing of women's part in the world's work simply intensifies the desire for the ballot in the minds of thoughtful women.

Income Tax Bill's Defects.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to indorse the very able criticism of the Income Tax bill presented by Mr. Morawetz in to-day's issue of THE TIMES. In regard to the merits of the income tax in general there may be a just difference of opinion, but the technical defects of this particular bill which Mr. Morawetz has pointed out are obvious. The bill ought to be entirely redrawn, and no one is more competent than Mr. Morawetz to redraft it, yet it will probably go through in its present defective form, to the annoyance and confusion of the taxpayer, but to the probable benefit of the legal profession.

THE HEAD OF THE HOUSE.

He was "head of his household," he said,
And his wife did not laugh, Heaven bless her;
Tho' he hadn't a collar, a shirt or a dollar,
And neither could feed her nor dress her.

He was "head of his household," he said,
And she, well, perhaps she believed him;
He gave her a drubbing and sent her out scrubbing
And this from all worry relieved him.

He was "head of his household," he said,
But she was too worn to discern it;
She took to her bed and they had no more bread,
As he was too lazy to earn it.

He was "head of his household," he said,
And she was too ill for pretenses.
She died from her labors, was buried by neighbors—
He hadn't the funeral expenses.

CALIFORNIA'S ACT.

A Japanese View of Its Significance—National Disapproval.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The action of the California Legislature in passing the Anti-Japanese Land act, ignoring the most reasonable pleading on its floor of Secretary Bryan for the postponement of the enactment until diplomatic endeavors were made to find a satisfactory settlement of the issue, is beyond one's comprehension. Patriotism, justice, and wisdom seem to have been thrown to the winds by the California Legislature for the single purpose of vindicating its view of the State's right to enact such a law.

One is constrained to think that the California legislators have been moved more by provincialism than by true patriotism in refusing to accede to the wish of the President of the United States, and to hearken to the voice of the American people at large. The voice of the Nation, as echoed in its press, stood thus:

> Out of 1,300 editorial articles from about 800 different papers of the country gathered by the Japan Society of New York for the purpose of ascertaining public opinion from press clippings during a test period of four days, the following estimate or classification can be made: Editorials in about 400 newspapers were rather suggested by the subject than directly commenting upon it, hence they may be left out of the count; editorials in 120 newspapers discussed the situation seriously but so judiciously that they cannot be classified, 207 newspapers condemned California, commended the President's course, and declared that the Nation cannot allow discrimination against the Japanese, and 25 newspapers supported California.

It is, then, clear that the California legislators have acted in defiance of the belief of the American nation, so far as it is reflected in the press, and are prepared to sacrifice the best interests of the country for the sake of asserting their vaunted right to do as they choose.

That the California legislators gave no heed to the dictates of justice, but acted in contravention to the spirit of the American-Japanese treaty, which the Senators from California took a hand in ratifying in 1911, hardly needs any demonstration. The warnings given by President Wilson, the extraordinary mission of Mr. Bryan to California, the whole history of the controversy, the minutes of the discussion on the floors of both Houses of the California Assembly, when its members did not mince words, and, above all, the very law itself, which allows enjoyment of the rights of owning and leasing land, hitherto enjoyed by all aliens, to those who are eligible to American citizenship, while the same rights are denied or limited to those not eligible to citizenship—these are too conclusive to admit the denial of the specific discrimination aimed at by the act against the Japanese.

True, the phraseology in the measure just passed has been somewhat modified, and by this technical device the effort has been made to bring it into harmony with the letter of the existing treaty. To try to cloud the vital point by such subterfuge is, however, to say the least, too un-American. The Japanese have already learned English enough to know that there is no distinction between "ineligible" and "not eligible."

What strikes me most is the lack of wisdom displayed by the California legislators. If there was real need for the welfare of California to prevent or restrict the Japanese from owning or leasing land in the State, its leaders could have proceeded to accomplish their end by more peaceful and courteous means, instead of proclaiming in the face of the Japanese the doctrine of their inferiority, and making it the cause of depriving them of the rights and privileges hitherto enjoyed. In fact, the Federal Government most clearly showed its willingness to do its best for the attainment of the end sought by Californians through diplomatic channels. And we have reason to believe that the Japanese Government was also prepared to enter into negotiations with the American Government with a view to finding an equitable solution of the question. The California legislators by enacting the Land Law have, however, completely "upset the table." They have, "by beating around the bush, found a snake," as a Japanese proverb says. They have now raised an issue which, we presume, the Californians are not much enamored of—the question of the naturalization of the Japanese. Although I am a strong believer in the equity of the measure, I have wished that the question might have remained in abeyance until time and education should have smoothed the race antipathy to the Japanese that exists among certain portions of the American community. Now, however, that the California legislators have done what they have done, and Japan is in a way pushed to the wall, one can see no other recourse for her than to ask the American Government to grant to her subjects the right of naturalization accorded to Europeans, or to give her a satisfactory answer that her subjects shall not be discriminated against.

Nothing is more regrettable than that the California Legislature, in order to gratify its vanity, should have brought about the situation which, while it touches upon no vital interests of the United States, has a transcendental importance to Japan. The subject of controversy has no concern with the large part of America. It is indeed an unprofitable affair, for what benefit will accrue to America at large by wounding the amour propre of Japan, thus impairing their long-standing friendship? To Japan, however, the question is one of life and death, for it strikes at her honor, more precious than life itself.

The words of glorification uttered by Governor Johnson over the so-called victory of California, and the tactics he has pursued to push the measure through the Legislature, give us scant hope for his vetoing the bill. Our only hope, then, rests in the wise course to be pursued by the American Government. The occasion indeed demands the highest statesmanship of the two countries to extricate them from the delicate and grave position they have been placed in by the procedure of the California Legislature.

New Jersey's Plumage Law.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is stated in THE TIMES that there is nothing to prevent bird plumage from being bought in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. As a matter of fact the law of New Jersey is practically identical with that of New York State, and plumage of wild birds native to that State or belonging to families members of which are native to the State cannot be bought there. The laws of Pennsylvania will have similar provision when the law recently passed goes into effect, i. e., July 1, 1914. B. S. BOWDISH.

COURT HOUSE SITE COSTS $6,138,653

Condemnation Commission's Report Covers 63 Parcels of Land and 72 City Lots.

BIG BUILDINGS ARE INCLUDED

City Can Take Title Any Time, but Plans Await McAneny's Civic Centre Arrangements.

The city will have to pay for the Court House site, as at present designated, $6,138,653, according to the preliminary report of the Condemnation Commissioners, issued yesterday. The commission consists of Abram I. Elkus, Chairman; Henry Schneider, and James J. Coogan, and they have found that the estimates presented to them by Assistant Corporation Counsel Charles D. Olendorf were much more near a fair appraisal than those of the property owners. The city reckoned that a reasonable price for the land and improvements would be about $5,600,000, while the property owners asked about $10,250,000.

Out of the total fixed, $6,126,050 was designated as the value of the property and from this sum the property owners will have to pay $46,224 to their tenants for leases. These tenants will also receive from the city $12,602 to recompense them for the value of the trade fixtures, which the city has destroyed or injured by taking over the property.

Among the largest awards are these:

Nos. 124-128 Leonard Street, 47 and 49 Lafayette Street, New York Life Insurance Company, $822,013.

Nos. 130-135 Leonard Street, 87 and 89 Centre Street, 75-79 Centre Street, 129-133 Worth Street, 123 Worth Street, New York Life Insurance Company, $505,314.

Nos. 125 and 127 Worth Street, Henry Woehr and others, $181,600; 117 and 119 Worth Street, 45 Lafayette Street, Alfred Gardiner and John S. Radway, $180,162.

Nos. 57 and 59 Centre Street, 514 Pearl Street, Thomas P. Fitzsimmons, $143,444.

Nos. 516-520 Pearl Street, 25 and 27 Lafayette Street, Kate Halk and others, $249,358.

Nos. 29-33 Lafayette Street, 63 Centre Street, Stuart Duncan, $226,789.

No. 126 Worth Street, 65 Centre Street, H. H. Cammann and E. C. Cammann, trustees, $124,738.

Nos. 515 and 517 Pearl Street, 119 and 121 Lafayette Street and triangular plot between 21 Lafayette Street and 517 Pearl Street, Elise Boyd, $142,187.

Nos. 43 and 45 Centre Street, 15 and 17 Lafayette Street, Samuel Green, $122,000.

No. 88 and 90 Centre Street, southeast corner of Leonard Street, Bradhurst Realty and Construction Company, $114,600.

Nos 148 and 150 Leonard Street, 86 Centre Street, James Boyd, trustee; $106,700.

156-160 Leonard Street, Lowenfeld & Prager, $169,843.

Nos. 155 and 157 Worth Street, Five Points House of Industry, $397,704.

Nos. 143 and 147 Worth Street, New York Dispensary, $127,397.

Nos. 76-80 Centre Street, Andrew Dougherty and others, $282,595.

66 and 68 Centre Street, A. C. Kingsland estate, $160,400.

Nos. 142-156 Worth Street, 3-6 Mission Place, William B. Dana estate, $279,534.

Nos. 52 and 54 Park Street, Abram M. Clenney, $124,360.

Land with Buildings Condemned.

Curiously enough, one plot at 121 Worth Street, of the value of $68,500, is returned as belonging to unidentified owners.

The condemnation proceeding was begun on June 7 last year, and with the exception of the Summer vacation, when the property owners rather than the Commissioners demanded an adjournment, has continued regularly ever since. Altogether 63 parcels were acquired, containing about 73 city lots, and most of the land was improved, some of it with buildings of from six to twelve stories. Mr. Olendorf, for the city, had to meet and contend with thirty-five different counsel for the property owners.

The record consists of 6,707 typewritten pages, and the Commissioners held about one hundred sessions and spent twenty-five days examining the property, reading the testimony and briefs, and considering their decision. The last brief of the property owners in reply was submitted to the Commissioners on Monday night, and since then they have given nearly all their time to making their preliminary report.

A hearing will be held by the Commissioners about May 23, at which any protests of property owners may be made, and soon after that the final report of the Commission will be sent to the courts for confirmation. Meanwhile the city may take title to the land at any time on the passage of a resolution.

This it appears depends a good deal on what it is decided will be done about the formation of a civic centre. Borough President McAneny is now consulting well-known architects concerning the drafting of a plan. He has already informed the Board of Estimate that he wishes to take in certain parcels lying between the Court House site and the Municipal Building, and would like to see proceedings to condemn them submitted to the present commission before this proceeding is closed, but his indisposition is causing delay on these proposals.

The Court House Board, not knowing what will be the exact territory taken for the civic centre, is a good deal handicapped in going ahead with its plans. For example, Centre and Worth Streets are to be closed, but, until the city has decided what thoroughfares will be substituted for them, it is impossible to make the final Court House plans. In order to hasten this matter, the Court House Board at its meeting yesterday requested Borough President McAneny o assign to this work his engineering force under the guidance of E. P. Goodrich, his consulting engineer.

Contracts for Excavation.

The board has also set about drawing up the preliminary contracts for boring on the Court House site, and for excavation and the removal of buildings. Moreover, it has requested Guy Lowell, its architect, to obtain from the Thompson-Starrett Company, the Fuller Construction Company, and Charles T. Wills & Co. rough estimates of the cost of erecting such a Court House as Mr. Lowell has designed.

A final determination on the Colliseum-like structure suggested by Mr. Lowell has not yet been reached. There is little doubt, however, that the Court House Board will accept it with only a few modifications of detail, but it will have to be approved as well by the Municipal Art Commission. To facilitate this process, the Board decided yesterday to ask the Commission to consider the Lowell plans for a preliminary general approval. They will be brought, it is expected, before the Commission at its meeting on Monday, and will then be referred to a committee and the architect of the Commission, I. N. P. Stok

ARMY AIRMAN DIES IN 15-FOOT PLUNGE

Lieut. Joseph D. Park Crushed to Death When Biplane Hits Tree in California.

NINTH VICTIM IN AIR SQUAD

Aviator Loses His Way in Mist on Flight from San Diego—Children See the Tragedy.

LOS ANGELES, May 9.—Lieut. Joseph D. Park, U. S. A., was killed to-day when a military biplane, which he was driving plunged its nose into a gulley, turned a somersault and crashed against a tree, at Olive, thirty-nine miles southeast of here. The aviator fell only fifteen feet, but the radiator crushed his head, and then fell upon his body.

The accident occurred at 7:46 A. M., according to a little aeroplane clock, which was stopped by the shock of the wreck. This was two hours and 41 minutes after the officer had started from San Diego on a 145 mile flight to Los Angeles.

Lieut. Park, who had been detailed recently from the Fourteenth Cavalry to the Army Aviator Corps, was attempting an experimental long distance aerial scouting trip, and had traveled 108 miles when he was killed.

He made good speed at the start, notwithstanding a strong north wind, but as he approached Olive he encountered a thick mist, which confused him as to his bearings, and he alighted a quarter of a mile from the Olive school house.

Several little girls who were on their way to school ran up to the machine. He asked them where he was, and asked one of them, Hazel Greenleaf, if she would telephone to the Aviation Headquarters here and say that he had lost his way, but had resumed his journey. When she had promised to deliver the message he slipped a half dollar into her hand.

The other children crowded around the machine, and the officer laughingly warned them away, saying: "You might do something to it that would cause me to be killed."

He climbed into the biplane and started, but it skimmed across a field on a hillside, and little puffs of dust showed that it was only making short leaps. The children watched the biplane until it disappeared near the base of the ridge, then they heard a crash and the whirring of the engine stopped.

They knew the officer had met with an accident, and ran down the hill. There they found the machine, bent and twisted, lying at the foot of a tree. Lieut. Park's body was under it.

Lieut. Park came to San Diego on Jan. 15 from the aviation school at Hammondsport, N. Y., where he had taken preliminary instruction. He qualified for an aviator's license on Feb. 15, and had made some remarkable flights, remaining in the air 2 hours and 55 minutes on one occasion. He attained the army altitude record recently.

He had a notable record for service in the Philippines, especially in operations against the Moros. He came from Rhode Island, and was a member of a well-known military family. His brother is in charge of the Government fortifications at Corregidor, which guard the entrance to Manila Bay.

With the death of Lieut. Park, aviation fatalities in the United States army now number nine, seven commissioned officers and two instructors. The first army officer in his life in an aeroplane accident was Lieut. Thomas H. Selfridge, of the Signal Corps, on Sept. 17, 1908. He went aloft as passenger with Orville Wright, and after they had circled about Fort Myer, Va., for a distance of three miles, one of the propellers broke and the machine crashed to the earth. Lieut. Selfridge was killed almost instantly. Wright was injured and was in a hospital for several weeks.

The second army officer killed was Lieut. George E. M. Kelly, of the Signal Corps. The tragedy occurred on May 10, 1911, at San Antonio, Tex. Lieut. Kelly had been flying a Curtiss biplane for several minutes and was descending when the machine struck some obstruction. A moment later the propellers began to revolve at a great speed. Suddenly, the biplane shot forward, ascended to an altitude of fifteen or twenty feet, and after darting through the air like a wounded bird it pitched to the ground, burying its driver under the wreckage. Lieut. Kelly died an hour later without regaining consciousness.

Lieut. Leighton W. Hazlehurst, Jr., of the Seventeenth Infantry, and Al Welsh, a professional aviator, were killed, in much the same manner, on June 11, 1912, at the Army Aviation School at College Park, Md. They had just left the park in a new Wright machine, which was receiving its official test. It pitched to the ground, a distance of thirty feet. Hazlehurst's neck was broken and Welsh's skull was crushed.

Paul Peck, another instructor at the Army Aviation School at College Park, fell with his biplane and was killed at Cicero Field, Chicago, on Sept. 11, 1912. It was a windy day, and though the aviators were warned against ascending, Peck believed that his small biplane would carry him through the choppy wind. When within 200 feet of the ground the machine fell.

Lieut. Lears C. Rockwell and Corporal Frank Scott were killed at the Army Aviation School at College Park on Sept. 28, 1912. The machine was only thirty feet from the ground, and Lieut. Rockwell was trying to rise again when it plunged head downward to the earth. Corporal Scott was instantly killed and Lieut. Rockwell lived only an hour after the accident.

Lieut. Rex Chandler, Coast Artillery Corps, started with Lieut. Lewis H. Brereton from the Army Aviation School on North Island on April 8 last, and when 100 feet in the air the hydroaeroplane plunged straight into San Diego Bay. Lieut. Chandler was killed and Lieut. Brereton was rescued from the water, badly hurt.

Lieut. Park, who lost his life yesterday, was thirty-one years old and a graduate from the Military Academy at West Point. He was made a Second Lieutenant in the Twenty-fourth Infantry, but a few months later he was transferred to the Fourth Cavalry. In July, 1911, he became a First Lieutenant and was attached to the Fourteenth Cavalry.

169 MILES IN AEROBOAT.

Two Navy Officers Fly from Washington to Annapolis.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Lieut. John H. Towers and Ensign Godfrey De C. Chevalier flew from Washington to Annapolis to-day over an all-water course, a distance of 169 miles, in a Curtiss flying boat. The actual flying time was 3 hours and 5 minutes, and the average speed was nearly fifty miles an hour. An average altitude of 1,700 feet was maintained, and at no time did the aviators find it necessary to take to the water.

The course was from the Washington Navy Yard, down the Potomac to its mouth, and then northward over Chesapeake Bay to Annapolis. The water boat left the Navy Yard at 7:40 o'clock A. M., and landed at the Naval Academy at 10:45 o'clock A. M.

PLANS OCEAN FLIGHT.

J. V. Martin Says He Will Try Atlantic Trip in Biplane Next August.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—James V. Martin, who holds a pilot's license for the air and a master's license for the seas, announced on his arrival from the Hawaiian Islands to-day that he would attempt to cross the Atlantic from Newfoundland to Ireland next August in competition for Lord Northcliffe's prize. He says he will take his wife with him. She was Miss Lillian Irvine, and she contends that she was the first English woman to fly.

The airline Martin will attempt to follow is 1,635 miles long. He believes he can cover the distance without a stop. His machine is a French biplane.

GERMAN AVIATOR MISSING.

His Balloon Last Seen in a Storm on the Baltic Sea.

KOENIGSBERG, May 9.—A German military spherical balloon, the Cassiopela, which ascended from this city on Wednesday, is missing with its passengers. It was last seen in the neighborhood of Pillau, about twenty-five miles from here, traversing the Frischen-Ehrung Peninsula in a storm.

It was under the command of Capt. von Webeser of the Second Balloon Battalion stationed here.

WEEK TO RAISE $50,000.

Rosenwald Gift of $25,000 to Charity Depends on It.

In order to win the $25,000 donation promised by Julius Rosenwald of Chicago, the Brooklyn Jewish Federation of Charities must raise $50,000 next week. By so doing it will complete the $200,000 fund on the raising of which Mr. Rosenwald made his gift conditional. In the last campaign for funds the committee members are calling on donors in all the five boroughs.

The Brooklyn association has many charges, and one of its charity works is the Brooklyn Cottage for Delinquent Jewish Boys, which is to be dedicated on May 18 at Hawthorne, N. Y.

OPERA HOUSE FILLS FOR LAMBS' GAMBOL

De Wolf Hopper in Whiskers as a Village Blacksmith Beats an Anvil Lullaby.

LAMBS IN VARIED GUISE

Seen in "The Green Beetle," a Chinese Fantasy—Victor Herbert Provides Hopper Music.

With the large auditorium of the Metropolitan Opera House filled to overflowing the Lambs yesterday entertained their friends at the Annual Ladies' Gambol.

As usual the programme provided opportunity for the display of membership versatility, from poesy, represented in the "Salute" by Lamb James Clarence Harvey to music in the especially commendable score by Lamb Victor Herbert, provided for "The Village Blacksmith," and for which Lamb George V. Hobart wrote the book and lyrics.

This, the piece de resistance of the entertainment, introduced a large congregation of Lambs as members of an army, who sang "Hush, Hush," over a baby's cradle after DeWolf Hopper had previously tried the soothing effects of a lullaby with an anvil chorus. Mr. Hopper in red flannel shirt and a plentiful crop of wind-sifters was billed as Hector Hotashes, the village blacksmith, and in addition to his, the title rôle, other important ones were played by Scott Welsh, John Park, Walter Lawrence, Lawrance D'Orsay, E. P. Gayer and Frank Lalor. Previously, "The Green Beetle," a Chinese fantasy, by John Willard, which proved to be both atmospheric and holding, was capitally done by Edwin Stevens, Effingham Pinto, Paul Everton, John Sainpolis, Phillip Klein and others.

"Even in the Wilderness," by Clay M. Greene; "The Naked Man," by Richard Harding Davis; "The Broadway Belles," by Burnside and Hubbell, and two scenes from "Virginius," served to introduce many more Lambs in various disguises, including feminine apparel in which some of them appeared to advantage.

GIVES $200,000 TO CHARITY.

Catholic Institutions Get Most of Mrs. Catherine Reilly's Estate.

The will of Mrs. Catherine Reilly of 255 West 138th Street, who died on May 5, was filed for probate yesterday in the Surrogates' Court, disclosing charitable bequests of more than $200,000 from an estate estimated at $280,000 in personalty. The largest single bequest was one of $25,000 to St. Joseph's Seminary at Dunwoodle, N. Y., which also received a one-seventh share in the residuary estate amounting to $150,000. Six of the one-seventh shares of the residuary estate passed to charitable institutions, these being Seton Hospital for Consumptives, Home for the Aged of the Little Sisters of the Poor, the Holy Name Mission for the Bowery District, Xavier Institute for the Blind, and St. Malachy's Home for Children at Rockaway, N. Y. The remaining share of the residuary estate was bequeathed to children of a deceased brother-in-law, who live in Ireland.

In a codicil of her will Mrs. Reilly directed that St. Ann's Church should receive $500 for the construction of a ciborium to hold pieces of jewelry which she gave the church. These were a diamond sunburst brooch, three diamond brooches, a pair of large diamond solitaire earrings, a ruby and a diamond ring and a pair of clover-leaf diamond earrings.

WIN PRIZES FOR SPEAKING.

Students of the City College Compete for Annual Awards.

A speaking contest was held in the Great Hall of the City College last night before a large audience. Harry Rothwitz of the Junior class won the Trustees' prize for the best oration. His subject was a "Cure for Crime." Charles G. Cristiano won the Drummond prize, and Hyman L. Schwartz the Thomas W. Churchill prize.

The Ralph Weinberg memorial prize for the best written oration was obtained by James Donoghue, who spoke on Dickens as a friend of humanity. The Roemer prize for poetry declamation was granted to David Karowsky of the sophomore class. Prof. Baldwin played on the organ at intervals in the speaking. Thomas W. Churchill, President of the Board of Education, presided at the contest.

OPEN-AIR TAX MEETING.

Congestion Committee Protests Against Fate of Albany Bill.

There will be a noon meeting at the north end of Union Square to-day to protest against the failure of the Legislature to submit to a referendum vote the question of gradually reducing the tax rate on buildings to half that on land. This will be under the auspices of the New York Congestion Committee, which has been working for the measure for several years.

As a popular way of attracting attention to the high rent feature of the present tax system, the committee is pointing out that nearly one in every twelve families receives a dispossess notice.

PROTEST SCHOOL BILLS.

Supt. Maxwell Seeks Support in Appeal to Gov. Sulzer.

William H. Maxwell, Superintendent of Schools, is appealing for support of his protest to Gov. Sulzer against three bills that now await the Governor's signature.

Assembly bill 1,684, he says, gives to the President of the Board of Education authority to direct any employe of the board to investigate and report upon the work of any other.

Assembly bill 1,685 would make the office of District Superintendent a political prize, in the opinion of Dr. Maxwell.

Assembly bill 1,212, 2,641 removes "the initiative in determining the curriculum of the schools from educators and places it in the hands of the physicians, lawyers, and business men of the Board of Education."

Dr. Maxwell wants the Governor to appoint a commission to draw up a new educational law for New York City "that shall simplify the present cumbersome system of administering the public schools of this city."

MUSIC NOTES.

Miss Kitty Cheatham and her secretary, Miss Johnson, are sailing to-day on the Kroonland. Miss Cheatham goes direct to Paris for private engagements and will give two recitals at the Little Theatre in London on June 10 and 17.

Samuel Baldwin will as usual give organ recitals at the City College next week, to-morrow and Wednesday afternons, at 4 o'clock.

The band of the Twenty-ninth United States Infantry, Fifth Band, Coast Artillery Corps; Twelfth Band, Coast Artillery Corps; the United States Recruiting Depot, the choir boys of St. Cornelius Chapel, the United States Army bandmaster students, and the People's Choral Union, under the direction of Edward G. Marquard, will give a concert at Governors Island on the afternoon of May 22 for the Army Relief Society.

The New York Military Band, under the direction of Edwin Franko Goldman, has been engaged to give a series of four concerts at Columbia University on the evenings of July 17, 22, 24, and Aug. 12.

The Italian Orchestral Society announces that it will give its first concert at Carnegie Hall on May 24. The soloists will be Mme. Gina Ciaparelli-Viafora, soprano, and Renato Troisi, tenor.

For the fourth and last week of the engagement of the Zuro Opera Company at the Thalia Theatre on the Bowery the operas to be given are, Tuesday, "L'Ebrea"; Wednesday, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci"; Thursday, "Aida"; Friday, "La Gioconda"; Saturday, "La Boheme"; Sunday afternoon, "Faust," and Sunday night, "La Gioconda."

CIRCUS BY BARNARD GIRLS.

Ringmaster, Clown, Slack Wire, and Bareback Artists from the College.

A big circus in a white and blue tent in which every performer from the ringmaster to the high-wire artist is a woman, will come to town to-night for a one-night stand. It is important to take note of the white and blue tent for the woman manager who picked it out shunned the ordinary dirt-grey canvas and would have nothing to do with the tent poles until they were neatly painted over in a delicate China blue.

The circus was not arranged by suffragettes or even their milder sisters of the Woman's Political Union. It was arranged by the girl students of Barnard College and it is to be of, for and by the girls themselves.

For the matinée this afternoon the tickets have been limited to sales among the girls except that Columbia students have been invited to come over in a body and get in if there is room after all the Barnard students have been accommodated. The public will be admitted to-night.

The white and blue circus tent was pitched yesterday in the Milbank Quadrangle where Barnard students usually practice athletic games. The programme, subject to change without notice, included at rehearsals last night five bareback riders and five girls who attempted to duplicate in the saddle some of the daring features of the Buffalo Bill show. There were also some clowns, some high-wire artists, some trapese artists, and some slack-wire walkers. Just to show that the management was not behind the times some features of the cabaret and vaudeville have been introduced.

A Pike and a Coney Island walk have been arranged while one of the side-show thrillers contains the picturesque title of "A Descent Into Hades." The entire student body of Barnard participated in the arrangements for the big show.

H. M. FLAGLER'S CONDITION.

Friends Are Called to Bedside of the Railroad Magnate.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., May 9.—The condition of Henry M. Flagler, the Southern hotel and railroad magnate, who has been ill for several months, is again causing his friends considerable anxiety. Mr. Flagler, according to reports given out at his residence, has grown weaker during the last few days. His present illness was brought on by a serious fall several weeks ago. He took very little nourishment to-day or yesterday, and friends and business associates were to-day summoned to his bedside.

His physicians would not admit to-night, however, that Mr. Flagler's condition had become critical.

SOCIAL NOTES.

Count Villafranca de Soissons entertained the Duke and Duchess de Richelieu and Miss Julia Wise, a sister of the Duchess, at luncheon at the St. Regis yesterday. Count and Countess Ledochowski, whose marriage took place in Baltimore, Md., on Thursday, and who are sailing to-day on the Prinz Friedrich Wilhelm for Europe, entertained at dinner last night at the hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Stuart are sailing to-day for Porto Rico, and do not expect to return until next Autumn

Col. Schuyler Crosby, who has been seriously ill for several months at Atlantic City, has returned to town, and is now convalescent.

Mrs. Anson Moran and her daughter, Miss Annette Moran, are sailing on June 10 to spend the Summer in Europe. Mr. Moran and Dr. John Vander Poel will join them about the middle of July.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf E. Flinsch motored up yesterday from their farm at Huntington, L. I., and are at the Hotel Gotham for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Whitman, Miss Mary V. S. Winthrop and Mrs. Frederic N. Goddard and her son, G. Goddard, are sailing for Europe to-day on the Berlin.

Clarence Mackay, who has been at the Plaza the past Winter, is now at the Ritz-Carlton. The German Ambassador is also at the hotel for a visit, as are Mr. and Mrs. Francis Burton Harrison.

A son was born yesterday morning to Dr. Reginald Ducat and Mrs. Ducat (Miss Louise Chalmers) at the Summer home of Mrs. Ducat's father, Dr. Chalmers, at Forrest Hill, L. I.

The marriage of Henry Fletcher and Miss Thompson, daughter of Mrs. Richard Thompson, of this city, will take place on June 3 in Greenwich, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Aldrich and the Misses Mary and Maude Aldrich will close their town house the first of June and go to their Bayshore country place for the early Summer.

Mrs. Thomas A. Jaggar, widow of the Right Rev. Thomas A. Jaggar, of Paris is the guest of Mrs. J. E. Fisher at Wakerobin, Oyster Bay. Bishop Jaggar, who was the official head of the American Episcopal Church in Europe, died last December in Paris.

The wedding of Henry W. Shoemaker and Miss Mabelle Ord will take place this afternoon at the Premium Point home of Mr. and Mrs. John Ferguson at New Rochelle. The families only will be present.

Miss Katherine S. Jewett of New York and Short Hills, N. J., will be married to-day to Daniel Howland of Providence, R. I., in the Second Christ Church at Short Hills. The bride-elect is the daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Edward S. Jewett of the General Theological Seminary.

Xavier Audibert of this city and Miss Natalie Whiting are to be married to-day at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. William S. Whiting of Boston, Mass.

Montagu La Montagne, who is to marry Miss Hildegarde Jurgensen on May 12, gave his bachelor dinner last night at Delmonico's.

Henry W. Beecher of Seattle, son of the late Henry Ward Beecher, is at the Hotel Vanderbilt, having come on to make arrangements for the one hundredth celebration of his father's birth, which occurs on June 15.

Mrs. George C. Heye of the Langdon, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, who underwent an operation for appendicitis on Thursday at the Sloane Hospital for Women, was said yesterday to be resting comfortably.

Stevenson-Bush Engagement.

Dr. Pine E. Bush of 45 Charlton Street announces the engagement of his daughter, Miss Marguerite Harriet Bush, to Arthur Stevenson of Newark, N. J. The engagement was formally announced to Dr. Bush's relatives and friends at a dinner which he gave last night at his home for his daughter and her fiancé.

Chicago Playhouse for Pictures.

The announcement was made yesterday from the offices of Klaw & Erlanger that the Colonial Theatre in Chicago has been leased for five years to Messrs. Jones, Linick and Schaefer to present vaudeville and moving pictures at prices ranging from ten to fifty cents. Charles Frohman and Klaw & Erlanger will concentrate the attractions they present in Chicago in the Illinois, Powers, Blackstone, and Studebaker Theatres.

"All Aboard" for New Roof.

Lew Fields's Summer production, "All Aboard," will be opened on June 2, using for the first time the roof garden over Weber & Fields's Forty-fourth Street Theatre. It will be known as "Lew Fields's Forty-fourth Street Roof Garden."

INCORPORATES FOR CITY CLUB OPERA

New Organization Will Take Its Name from the Century Theatre.

CAPITAL WILL BE $300,000

Issued in $100 Shares—12 of 15 Directors Chosen—Whitney, Kahn, and Mackay Are Among Them.

The certificate of incorporation of the "Century Opera Company," as the City Club opera organization now seems to be called officially, was signed yesterday at the law offices of Finch, Coleman & Baird, 32 Nassau Street. The names of the incorporators follow:

Edward K. Baird, William C. Cornwell, Miss Belle da Costa Greene, Edward R. Finch, Mrs. Edward R. Hewitt, Roland Holt, Otto H. Kahn, Mrs. Frederick Nathan, Philip M. Lydig, Clarence H. Mackay, Isaac N. Seligman, Arthur E. Stahlschmidt, William C. Le Gendre, Henry Rogers Winthrop, Thomas W. Lamont, Edmund L. Baylies.

Twelve of the fifteen Directors for the first year named in the certificate of incorporation are as follows:

Edward Kellogg Baird, William C. Cornwell, Edmund L. Baylies, Edward R. Finch, Otto H. Kahn, Alvin W. Krech, Thomas W. Lamont, Philip M. Lydig, Clarance H. Mackay, Paul M. Warburg, Harry Payne Whitney, Henry Rogers Winthrop.

Some of the articles of incorporation follow:

The amount of the capital stock is $300,000.

The number of shares of capital stock that may be issued by said corporation is 3,000 of the par value of $100 each; the amount of the capital with which the said corporation will begin business will be $30,000.

No Director of the said corporation need be a stockholder thereof.

The number of Directors is to be fifteen.

The following clause says that among the purposes for which the company is formed is:

To transact any or all of its business outside of the State of New York and at any place or at one or more places within the United States of America, Dominion of Canada, and in any other part of the world.

This seems to indicate that the company has the intention of giving opera on tour as well as in New York.

MRS. JOHN FORD DEAD.

Granddaughter of Maturin Livingston a Victim of Pneumonia.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 9.—Great regret is expressed here over the death of Mrs. John Ford, née Cavendish-Bentinck, a granddaughter of Maturin Livingston of New York.

She succumbed to an attack of pleurisy and pneumonia. Her health before her last illness had been excellent, but her husband has been an invalid for years. She was 31 years old.

COUNT MICHAEL CASSINI.

His Death Was at First Reported as That of the ex-Ambassador.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 9.—Count Michael Cassini, a brother of Count Arthur Pavlovitch Cassini, who was Russian Ambassador to the United States from 1898 to 1905, died in St. Petersburg on April 28.

The death of Count Michael gave rise to rumors that Count Arthur Cassini had died, but the former Ambassador is now living in France, and has not visited Russia for several years.

JACOBS' GOLDEN WEDDING.

Anniversary Celebration of Marriage of Blue and Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jacobs are to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary to-morrow at their home, 950 Leggett Avenue, the Bronx, with a reception from 3 to 6 o'clock.

They were married in Boston, Mass., in 1863. The civil war was then at its height, but Mr. Jacobs managed to secure a furlough, and traveled from Charlestown, S. C., to Boston to wed Miss Augusta Buchwald. The fact that he was a soldier in gray and she a daughter of the North did not matter to them. They have a family of four sons and three daughters, all of whom are living and will attend the celebration.

Mr. Jacobs retired from business in Charlestown twenty-eight years ago and moved with his family to this city. He and his wife have taken an active part in many Jewish charitable affairs, being identified with a number of organizations.

MISS ALDRICH TO WED.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Aldrich Will Marry Stanley Matthews

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Aldrich have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Maude Holley Aldrich, to Stanley Matthews, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Matthews of Cincinnati, and grandson of the late Stanley Matthews, Justice of the Supreme Court, and at one time United States Senator from Ohio. Mr. Matthews is a nephew of William Cooper Procter, who made a donation of $500,000 for a Graduate College at Princeton. Mr. Matthews is a Princeton graduate.

Miss Aldrich is a sister of Miss Mary A. Aldrich, of Spencer Wyman Aldrich, who recently married Miss Imogen Gaither of Baltimore, of Mrs. William C. Meisner of Garden City, and of Mrs. Talcott Hunt Clarke of Buffalo, N. Y., and made her début about two years ago. The Aldrichs have a town house at 29 West Fiftieth Street, and their country place is at Bay Shore, L. I. No date has been set for the wedding.

Potter—McCready.

William Woodburn Potter and Miss Gertrude McCready, a daughter of the late William Rhodes McCready, were married yesterday in the chantry of St. Thomas's Church. The Rev. Dr. E. M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Kenneth MacKenzie, Jr., of Westport, Conn. The bride walked with her uncle, John Babcock Morris, who gave her in marriage, and was attended by her sisters, the Misses Isabel and Esther McCready. Harry Clay Potter, Jr., was the best man, and the ushers were Horace Bowker of Hewlett, L. I., and John C. Hulsker, Rupert S. Holland, Thomas B. Browne, and John T. Paulding of Philadelphia and Charles I. Marvin of New York.

Barker—Beals.

Miss Marian Thornton Beals, daughter of Frederick F. Beals of this city, and Alexander Crichlow Barker of Utica, N. Y., were married yesterday in St. Agnes Chapel, the Rev. W. W. Bellinger officiating. Only the families were present. After a honeymoon in the South, Mr. and Mrs. Barker will live in Utica.

Marriage and death notices intended for insertion in The New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

§Ran for Meyers in eighth inning.

Two-base hits—Becker, Tinker. Three-base hits—Bates, Shafer. Home run—Herzog. Stolen bases—Grant, Devore. First base on errors—Cincinnati, 2. Left on bases—Cincinnati, 7; New York, 5. Double plays—Hoblitzel and Grant; Doyle and Wilson. Struck out—By Marquard, 2. Bases on balls—Off Fromme, 2; off Marquard, 1. Hit by pitcher—By Crandall (Clarke). Wild pitches—Marquard, 2. Hits—Off Marquard, 7 in 7 innings (at bat, 31); off Crandall, 2 in 1 inning (at bat, 4). Umpires—Messrs. Brennan and Eason. Time of game—One hour and fifty-five minutes.

During seven of the eight innings that he occupied the mound at the Polo Grounds yesterday Rube Marquard acted like a pitcher. In the other inning Rube pitched like an actor. That other inning happened to be the sixth, and the harsh treatment to which the southpaw was subjected in this session made him long for those happy days last Winter out in Kokomo when the matinée crowds showed how much an actor is appreciated. When the Reds had finished with Rube in that one inning the game was safely packed away to the credit of Joe Tinker, a brother Thespian, who finds the task of elevating the Reds a different proposition than elevating the stage.

The score was 3 to 1 in favor of the much-defeated tailenders, who got an even break as their portion of the first series on the Eastern edge of the circuit. But for a home-run drive by Charley Herzog in the second inning the Giants would have come through with another string of blanks such as Chief George Murphy Johnson handed out to them on Thursday afternoon. Driving the ball beyond the bulwarks is not a specialty of the Cantaloupe King, but yesterday he simply outdid himself when Art Fromme tried to slip a wide floating curve along the outside corner, and the ball finished up in the left field bleachers. That one slam makes Herzog's home run record for 1913 just half as big as it was last year in 140 games.

Manager McGraw made a shift in his line-up in the hope of adding batting strength to the team, benching Snodgrass, who has been abstaining from base hits quite regularly of late. Josh Devore was out in the middle pasture. The change had little effect on the hitting, which was for the most part an absent quantity. The Polo Grounders collected four solid smashes and a pair of infield scratches, but they came as far apart as hits can be separated in a nine-inning game, and did no damage, excepting, of course, the bleacher biff by Herzog.

The seventh inning outburst by the Red Legs ended in a stormy gathering at the plate, in which Umpire Bill Brennan found himself surrounded by all the Cincinnati regulars and substitutes, each trying to get a hearing at the same time. It all happened because Brennan slipped up on a play that was apparent to everybody else. Dick Egan had attempted to score from second on Tom Clarke's single to right field, and Red Murray made one of his copyrighted throws to the plate. Meyers blocked Egan off and tagged him with the ball, but failed to clutch the prize, and it rolled to one side. As there were no windows in Meyers's massive frame, Brennan missed the final scene and waved Egan out. With one rush from the Cincinnati dugout came twenty Reds with but a single thought, twenty throats that yelled as one. Manager Tinker began dancing up and down and wave both arms, so Brennan quickly brushed aside his mask and protector as if awaiting a swing from somewhere. Mal Eason was not called upon for his version of the dropped ball, neither did he volunteer any information, so Brennan won the argument against the combined Redland force. The Reds lost a run, and Chief Meyers got a put-out instead of an error.

The Giants had runners on the paths in seven of the nine innings, and in four of these innings the first Giant batsman reached first safely, but could not find his way around the corners. Josh Devore was run down between third base and the plate in the opening inning, after reaching the final turn on a pass, Shafer's single, and an out. He took too big a chance in trying to register on Doyle's drive to Hoblitzel, and was finally tagged by Tinker. Burns reached third and Doyle second during the running-down process, but Red Murray was snuffed out by Fromme and Hoblitzel. In the second inning Herzog got his home run, and in the third Shafer tripled with one down, but was doubled off third when Burns lined to Hoblitzel. During the last six innings only two Giants reached second base, each time with two out—Devore in the sixth inning on a scratch hit and a steal and Snodgrass in the eighth, when he ran for Meyers after the latter had singled.

Marquard had the Reds well tamed except in the sixth inning. Johnny Bates opened this chapter with a triple to left centre, Becker fouled to Meyers, and Tinker doubled to centre, scoring Bates. Shafer fumbled Hoblitzel's grounder and Tinker raced to third. A wild pitch allowed Tinker to score and Hobby to reach second. Marsans beat out an infield hit to Shafer. Hoblitzel was thrown out at the plate by Shafer on Egan's grounder, and a pass to Grant filled the bases. Clarke's hit to right scored Marsans, and Egan was called out by Umpire Brennan when he raced in on the same play, causing Meyers to drop Murray's throw.

Luderus's Hit Wins for Phillies.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—Fred Luderus, who had not made a hit since last Saturday, when his double in the ninth inning defeated New York, turned a possible shut-out for Philadelphia into a victory over St. Louis to-day by making a home run with two men out and Lobert on third base in the seventh inning, the final score being 8 to 1. Alexander held St. Louis down to two hits, but one of them, a single by Konetchy, was made in the first inning with L. Magee on second base as the result of a pass and an out and enabled the visitors to score. The score:

Pirates Lost Fourth Game to Braves

BOSTON, May 9.—In defeating Pittsburgh 5 to 4 to-day, Boston made it four straight victories for the series. The team has now won as many games from Pittsburgh as they captured from that team all last season. It is many years since the local National League Club won four straight games from any team. The contest was an exciting one, in which Boston outbatted Pittsburgh. The latter, assisted by two errors by Devlin, led, 3 to 1, up to the eighth inning. Boston, in this session, took the lead, 4 to 3, through a base on balls, Connelly's single, Sweeney's double, and a single by Titus. Pittsburgh evened matters in the ninth, when Hyatt, batting for Camnitz, hit safely and scored on Carey's double to left. Victory came to Boston in the last half of the ninth, when Devlin doubled, was sacrificed to third, and scored on Rariden's sacrifice fly. The score:

To Investigate Ball Players' Fight.

CHICAGO, May 9.—President Johnson of the American League has ordered an investigation of the fist fight between players of the Boston and Cleveland clubs on Wednesday afternoon. He sent a message of inquiry to Umpire Connelly, who replied that he knew nothing about the occurrence except what he had read in the newspapers. President Johnson then instructed the umpire to immediately ascertain the facts.

At the invitation of President Comiskey of the Chicago Americans, Mr. Johnson has promised to accompany the White Sox and the New York Nationals on their world tour next Winter.

First Baseman Pipp for Detroit.

DETROIT, Mich., May 9.—The Detroit Baseball Club to-day purchased First Baseman Pipp from the Kalamazoo team of the South Michigan League. Pipp, who played sixty-eight games with the minor leaguers last season, now is attending the Catholic University at Washington. He is expected to join the Tigers May 25.

Manhattan vs. Brown To-day.

The biggest game on Manhattan College baseball schedule for the season will be played on Lenox Oval, at 145th Street and Lenox Avenue, this afternoon with the Brown University nine. Manager Cunningham of the Manhattan team changed his line-up in practice yesterday, sending O'Connor to short and benching Godfrey. The change proved effective, and O'Connor has been selected to play the shortfield position in to-day's game. Hanley, Manhattan's star southpaw, will be in the box for the home team, with Loughran on the receiving end. Either Bayrer or Gram and Schnell will be the battery for Brown.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., May 9.—The chances of New York rising in the percentage column of the American League were enhanced considerably to-day by the pitching of Russell Ford. It proved that the Yankees have two good pitchers instead of only one. The score, 9 to 0, depicts just how one-sided the contest was.

Ford came into the game after Warhop, who started, injured a ligament in his shoulder. Warhop was sent to Youngstown, Ohio, to-night, to see "Bonesetter" Reese. He had pitched very well in the two opening innings, but Willett opened the third with a drive to centre. Bush got a pass, and in giving it to him Warhop hurt himself. After pitching two balls to Louden he hoisted the distress signal and asked Manager Chance to relieve him.

Ford looked as good as he ever did, and that is sufficient testimony of his pitching. He had the Tigers completely at his mercy, only three times was he hit for a safety, and on two of these occasions two were out, and he depended on his support. In each case he put on the brakes immediately. Only seven Tigers got on bases in his régime. Two were walked, one purposely, and two profited by errors, Derrick being the offender in each case. The best bit of his nerve came in the seventh inning, when two were on bases, with none out, and the bases were filled afterward. He demonstrated that he was as capable as he was three or four years ago.

The inning was opened with a wide throw by Derrick which gave life to Stanage. Zamloch picked out a straight one he liked and sent it to left field. So Ford tightened, the next two sending up weak lifts, Bush to Cree, and Louden a foul to Sweeney. Crawford, always dangerous at bat, was given a complimentary pass, filling the bases. Veach's best was a tall one, which Derrick got under.

The Yankees gave further encouragement to-day in their fielding and in their "pepper." The infielders all covered a lot of ground. One of Derrick's errors was excusable, being a throw made after a pretty stop, having no time to balance himself for the throw. By O'Leary, (Butler) by Acheson, (Meenan;) by Edlund, (Meenan, Haaren, Roseff.) Passed balls—Butler, 2. Wild pitch—Edlund. Hits—Off Acheson, 7 in three and one-third innings; off Edlund, 9 in four and two-thirds innings. Time of game—Two hours and ten minutes. Umpire—Mr. Haffey.

Fordham, 8; Catholic University, 4.

Fordham yesterday defeated the Catholic University nine by the score of 8 to 4. The visitors simply toyed with Fordham for one-half of the annual game at Fordham Field, the Maroon team being retired for the first four innings without a hit or run. Beginning in the fifth inning, with Billy Elliffe at bat, Fordham played ball that brought back memories of the champion Maroon nine of 1908, and never let up until the game was won. The largest crowd of the season turned out to see what proved to be the best game this Spring on the local field. The score:

BASEBALL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Pitcher Finis E. Wilson, a southpaw who came to the Cleveland club from the Knoxville (Tenn.) club last Fall, yesterday was released to the New Orleans Southern League team.

President Meyer yesterday denied the report that he was to move his Springfield Central League club to Indianapolis to play while the American Association team was on the road.

Illness of Mrs. Johnson may delay President Ban Johnson's trip to St. Louis to discuss Manager Stovall's suspension with the Directors of the American League club of that city. The league head was to have left last night, but may not get away before to-morrow.

President Chivington of the American Association has sent word from Louisville, where he is ill, that he would await details from the umpires regarding the fight between Dave Altizer of the Minneapolis club and Manager Clark of Milwaukee before taking action on it. Telegrams merely confirming the press dispatches were sent the President yesterday, but the umpires will make their formal reports by mail.

Senators Lose Again to Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Chicago made it two straight from Washington to-day by bunching hits with the errors of the visitors and Gallia's wildness. Scott held the visitors to five hits, only two of which were bunched. Manager Griffith thought it was too cold to pitch Johnson to-day and said he would probably use him to-morrow. Benton started to play in the first half of the first inning, but owing to a slight injury to his wrist during practice, he retired in favor of Fournier. The score:

CORNELL NINE ROUTED.

Columbia Hammers Ithaca Pitchers for Fourteen Runs.

Columbia batted out a decisive victory over the Cornell baseball team yesterday afternoon in the game on South Field by the score of 14 to 5. The Blue and White batsmen landed on Acheson and Edlund for fourteen hits, and these, with five errors in the visitors' infield, gave them a crushing revenge for Cornell's victory over Columbia last year. This is Columbia's second victory over the Red and White this season.

O'Neale pitched the entire game for the Blue and White and rendered a sterling account of himself. After allowing one hit and a pass in the first inning he settled down, and it was not until the last few innings that his arm began to weaken. The visitors then managed to connect for several tellings hits, but fine support in the field held the visitors down. On the other hand, Acheson was knocked out of the box in the middle of the fourth frame, after Kiendl had batted out a two-base hit and Watt a home run. Things did not go much better for Edlung, who displaced Acheson, as Kiendl scored a homer off of his delivery, and the board on the running track spolled a wallop of Lomm'ls from giving him a jaunt around the four bases. PLAN A WELCOME TO AUTO ENGINEERS

British Visitors to Hear of Self-Starters at S. A. E.—Good Jersey Tour Laid Out.

In arranging an appropriate welcome for the delegation of British engineers who will be the guests of the Society of Automobile Engineers at its Summer meeting on the Great Lakes, June 5, 6, and 7, the entertainment committee of the Metropolitan Section of the society has laid out an elaborate programme. Conspicuous features will be a beefsteak dinner on Monday evening, May 26, and the regular monthly meeting of the Section, which will be held on the next night. The members of the Institution of Automobile Engineers, as the English body is called, are expected to arrive on the Minnewaska on the morning of May 26 and will make their headquarters at the Hotel McAlpin while in New York. The plans for their entertainment include a visit to a baseball game, a tour of lower Manhattan, a luncheon at the Automobile Club of America and a visit to fire headquarters, where a demonstration of local motor-driven fire apparatus will be given.

At the professional session on Tuesday of their stay here, the visitors will listen to and probably participate in a discussion of engine starters. This subject has been selected as one of peculiar interest to British engineers just now. Various manufacturers of starting appliances will present brief papers on the subject, which will be introduced by an engineer who has given special attention to this field of motor-car practice. The papers will be illustrated by stereopticon views. The course of the Western sojourn of the visitors and their hosts, taking in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis and visiting some of the leading automobile factories, has already been outlined in these columns.

An association has been formed to lay out attractive motor routes in New Jersey. Encouragement was given to automobilists of other States when, a year ago, New Jersey's Legislature passed an automobile reciprocity act which was approved by Gov. Wilson. Now a publication known as The New Jersey Tour, copyrighted, is supported by several hotels, the proprietors having formed an organization with A. J. Murphy as President. The men behind the movement designed to aid their business, are from Asbury Park, Atlantic City, Beach Haven, Cape May, Delaware Water Gap, Lakewood, Shawnee-on-Delaware, and Spring Lake.

The tour they have arranged, starting from New York City, passes through the Rumson Road section of Jersey to the Atlantic Coast, through the various shore resorts to Lakewood, south on the State highway and shore road, passing Manahawkin, where a road is being completed to Beach Haven, back to the State highway and to Atlantic City, then along the regular route via May's Landing, and over a State highway recently completed to Cape May City. The return trip, crossing the southern end of Jersey to Gloucester, leads to Trenton, Princeton, Somerville, and through the Barnardsville section to the Delaware Water Gap, to Shawnee, then to Milford and Port Jervis, and back to New York over the familiar Goshen-Tuxedo route.

At least 350 cars will be required to transport the Brooklyn orphans on their annual automobile day, which will be held under the auspices of the Long Island Automobile Club on June 3. Cars, which need only be contributed for an hour in both morning and afternoon, have been coming in well, but many more are urgently needed.

Meetings on Heights of Buildings.

The recently appointed Commission on the Heights of Buildings, of which ex-Public Service Commissioner E. M. Bassett is Chairman, has received the offer of quarters free of charge in the offices of the Court House Board at 115 Broadway. It will have its headquarters there and will hold its meetings every Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission has approved the following:

Matter of the rescinding of the transfer of Miss Hattie A. Cadley from clerk to monitor in the office of the commission.

Report of the Chief Examiner recommending that the commission certify the list of alienist, first grade, as an appropriate list for appointment to the position of resident physician alienist, at $1,500 per annum, in response to the requisition of the General Medical Superintendent of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals.

Letter from the Chief Examiner recommending that the eligible list for promotion to second grade clerk, Bureau of Dependent Adults, be certified to the Department of Public Charities to fill a vacancy in the position of second grade clerk at an annual salary of $600 in the Central Office, Brooklyn.

Communication from the Chief Examiner supplementing his report of April 28, in connection with the letter from the Bohemian Gymnastic Association Sokol suggesting a physical test for candidates for the position of Supervisor of Recreation. Mr. Murray says that if the examination were an open competitive one a physical and a practical test would be necessary, but as it was a promotion examination it was limited to men who were actually serving every day as gymnasium attendants and whose knowledge of the requirements suggested in the letter had already been tested.

Letter from the Board of Water Supply requesting authority to employ Cornelius J. Smallen and George P. Hartman as temporary Inspectors, pending the promulgation of the eligible list. They qualified in a non-competitive examination in connection with a previous appointment.

Notification from the Commissioner of Bridges that, in accordance with a peremptory writ of mandamus issued by Leonard A. Geigerich, Justice of the Supreme Court, under date of April 29, Henry A. La Chicotte had been restored to the position of Deputy Chief Engineer, at a salary of $7,500 per annum.

Letter from the Tenement House Commissioner nominating the following-named persons for non-competitive examination in which to qualify for appointment as clerks, first grade, with salary at the rate of $900 per annum: Robert J. Caffry, Walter O'Connell, Abraham Bronstein, William Pinkerman, and Charles T. Scott.

United States.

The United States Civil Service Commission announces an open competitive examination at the New York Custom House for dentist, for men only, on June 4, to fill a vacancy in this position at $1,500 per annum in the Indian Service at Large, and vacancies as they may occur, in the positions requiring similar qualifications. The Office of Indian Affairs says that in addition to the salary mentioned the incumbents in these positions will be allowed actual and necessary traveling expenses, including sleeping car fare, incidental, and subsistence when actually employed on duty in the field away from headquarters. All dental supplies and instruments are furnished by the Government. These employes will have no fixed place of abode, but will be required to travel from school to school as the needs of the service require. Competitors will be examined in the following subjects, which will have the relative weights indicated:

Letter writing, (the subject matter on a topic relative to the practice of dentistry. 5
Anatomy and physiology, (general questions on these branches, also with special reference to the teeth, mouth, and head).....10
Chemistry, materia medica, and therapeutics, (the preparation, properties, and reactions of chemicals, crude drugs and their preparations, their action and application, with those of other therapeutic agencies).....15
Dental pathology and oral surgery, (the morbid processes incident to diseases and injuries of the teeth, mouth, and contiguent structures, and their surgical treatment).....20
Operative and prosthetic dentistry, (the detailed technics of general and special operative and laboratory work).....25
Bacteriology, histology, and hygiene, (the cultivation, isolation, demonstration of bacteria, the principles of sterilization, mounting specimens, use of microscope, the principles of general and oral hygiene, &c).....10
Orthodontia, (local and constitutional irregularities in growth and development of the teeth and their correction).....15
Graduation from a regularly incorporated dental college and at least two years' experience in the practice of dentistry subsequent to graduation from such college is a prerequisite for consideration for this position. Statements as to training, experience, and fitness are accepted subject to verification. Applicants for the Indian Service must be in good health. They must have reached their twenty-fifth but not their fortieth birthday on the date of the examination, which is open to all men who are citizens of or owe allegiance to the United States and who meet the requirements.

ENJOIN USE OF NAME.

Appellate Division Reverses Decision in Metropolitan Telephone Case.

The Appellate Division handed down a decision yesterday reversing a judgment of Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum, which denied an injunction restraining two corporations, one formed in Delaware for $3,000,000 and one formed in this State for $10,000, from using the name "The Metropolitan Telephone and Telegraph Company." The Appellate Division held that the injunctions should be issued pendente lite.

It appeared that H. Lee Sellers, President of the Telepost Company, was President of the New York corporation and Vice President of the Delaware corporation. All three corporations have New York offices at 106 Lafayette Street. Their lists of officers and directors reveal several names in common.

Three plaintiffs joined in bringing the suit. One was the New York Telephone Company, which bought out the business of the old Metropolitan Telephone and Telegraph Company, another was Ford Huntington, representing the bond holders of the old company, and the third was the old company itself, which Sellers and his associates contended was an "extinguished entity."

The Appellate Division in an opinion written by Justice Scott and concurred in by all his associates but Justice Dowling, strongly criticised the good faith of the defendants in adopting the name. The opinion said in part:

> The motion papers do not disclose, and we are unable to conceive of any reason except a fraudulent and reprehensible one, for the adoption by the defendants of the name under which they have severally incorporated. The name is not fairly descriptive of any business in which they are engaged or propose to engage. They in fact do no business and are apparently organized only for the purpose of issuing securities as subsidiaries or auxiliaries of a company proposing to build a projected line of telegraph between the City of New York and the City of Chicago. Any other name would have served any honest purpose equally well, and many could be thought of which would be more descriptive of the declared purpose of organization.

The original Metropolitan Telephone and Telegraph Company was incorporated in 1880, and sold out to the New York Telephone Company in 1896.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Wheat prices advance ⅝ to ¾c. net owing to an oversold condition in anticipation of a bearish Government report. Corn was quiet, with prices steady all day. The close was ⅛ to ¼c. net higher. Oats closed ⅛ to ¼c. net higher. Cotton declined from the opening advances and the close was net unchanged to 4 points lower.

WHEAT.

That the wheat market was considerably oversold in anticipation of a bearish Government report was amply demonstrated yesterday when prices advanced ⅝@¾c over the previous night, with the exception of May, which at one time sold 2 cents net higher. The buying movement in the latter contract consisted mostly of shorts and was started by a large purchase by a Chicago house. Immediately the room trade became alarmed and in the demand that followed it, was carried up to 90¾c, advancing all later positions in sympathy. So far as the news of the day was concerned there was very little calculated to inspire any bullishness among traders. The Modern Miller report, stating that the outlook is so uniform and good that nothing short of a calamity to the crop can prevent a large yield, about represented the tenor of nearly all private dispatches from the belt. Further rains appeared in both the North and Southwest, and it is believed that the crop is in fully as good condition at present as it was at the time the Government report was compiled. Foreign news was also generally bearish with the Liverpool market quoted ¼@⅝d lower, Berlin, ½@⅝c lower, and Budapest, 1¼c lower, while Paris was ⅛@½c net higher. The Argentine shipments of 2,760,000 bushels were larger than expected, and compared with 3,688,000 bushels last week, and 3,440,000 bushels a year ago. Broomhall also estimated that world's shipments would be around 8,400,000 bushels, exclusive of North America, compared with 7,624,000 bushels last week. Indian shipments were likewise heavy. About the only developments in the export department were 3 loads of No. 1 Northern Duluth at Buffalo; No. 2 red wheat in the local market was nominal, and No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.00¼, free on board, afloat.

CORN.

There was only a quiet trade in the corn market, but it showed steadiness all day, and closed ⅛ to ¼c net higher. Bearish weather news was counteracted to some extent by light interior receipts and a continued good cash demand, with firmness in Western spot markets. Argentine shipments amounted to 1,980,000 bushels, against 1,900,000 last week, and 2,320,000 bushels a year ago. At Liverpool a decline of ¾d was reported. Locally export corn was quoted at 63½c, nominal, free on board afloat.

OATS.

Dry weather news was again a feature in the oats market and chiefly responsible for the advance of ⅜ to ½c which occurred at midday. Part of this was lost in the afternoon, but the market, nevertheless, acted very steady on complaints about a backward situation in the Ohio Valley, where rain is quite badly needed. Cash oats in the local market were quoted as follows: Standard white, 42c; No. 2, 42½c; No. 3, 41½c; No. 4, 40½c; ordinary clipped white, 41 to 41½c; fancy clipped white, 42½c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

Starting out firm and a little higher on the strength of live hogs, provisions ruled dull all day, with a declining tendency in the late afternoon due to realizing. There were 10,000 hogs at Chicago, or 6,000 less than expected, while the estimate for Saturday was 8,000. Western points had 69,000 hogs, including 5,000 at Kansas City and 7,000 at Omaha.

COTTON.

The cotton market showed considerable strength during yesterday's early trading, but broke later and closed steady, net unchanged to 4 points lower. Broadly speaking, the early advance reflected the failure of the weather map to show any trace of precipitation privately reported in the Eastern belt on Thursday, continued reports of more favorable trade conditions abroad, and indications that prospective curtailment of production by Fall River Mills and the outlook for big grain crops had led to an improved demand for goods in the local market. The advance which carried prices some 25 to 30 points above the low level of the week attracted a good deal of realizing by recent buyers, while renewed reports of showers in the Eastern belt and private predictions of general rains in the South early next week, combined with rather a bearish view of the week-end figures, seemed to encourage a renewal of local selling on the afternoon break. Closing prices were a point or two up from the lowest on covering.

The market opened steady, at an advance of 3 to 6 points, and the early buying movement carried prices about 8 to 11 points above the closing figures of last night. The cables were rather disappointing from a bullish standpoint, but this was attributed to the influence of the approaching holidays and the Manchester reports that Manchester was a good buyer in the late trading. Houses with foreign connection appeared to be buying here as well as shorts and local bulls, but the demand slackened at the advance, and the uptown interests were heavy sellers in the late trading.

Spinners' takings of American cotton for the week, according to the New York Cotton Exchange, were 258,567 bales, against 305,785 last year. The world's visible supply of American cotton showed a decrease of 149,707 bales, comparing with a decrease of 214,798 bales for the same week last year. Spinners' takings fell off rather sharply after the middle of May last season, while after the Whitsuntide holidays, it is predicted by some local statisticians that the takings this year will compare more favorably, or be better maintained than at present, thus leading to a relatively more rapid decrease in the world's visible supply. Southern spot markets, as officially reported, were ⅛c higher, to 1-16c lower, generally unchanged.

The local market for spot cotton was steady and unchanged at 12.00 for middling uplands; sales, 6,046 bales, direct shipment.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Firmness was displayed in the early market, owing to a demand for July, partly from refiners. There was also a fair inquiry from consumers, and not much speculative pressure until after midday, when offerings increased, and with a reaction in hard, the market developed an easier tone, closing 1 point higher to 1 lower.

COFFEE.

Coffee again displayed a steady undertone, and after opening unchanged to 3 points higher, continued to advance slowly, closing at a net gain of 5 to 11 points.

Sales aggregated 30,250 bags.

Owing to Whitsuntide holidays, Havre and Hamburg closed until Tuesday morning. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were again firm. Rumors of further unfavorable crop cables were not confirmed, Havre closed at ⅛f to ¼f higher, while Hamburg was ¼ pfennig up. Rio was steady, unchanged, while Santos was unchanged to 50 reis higher.

Spot coffee, 11¼c for Rio 7.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

The Daily Consular and Trade Report notes the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding them may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, care of the Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C., giving the number of the item referred to:

10,880. AMERICAN GOODS FOR PERMANENT EXHIBITION.—A business firm in Portugal has determined to open a permanent exhibition of all American products and goods in order to develop the trade in these articles in Portugal and its colonies. Two business men who are now in the United States in the interests of this proposition inform the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce that they intend to open offices in New York, and will be glad to hear from any American firms desiring further particulars regarding this matter.

10,898. STATIONERY AND POST OFFICE SUPPLIES.—An American Consul reports that a new Post Office building in South America country is about to open, and several thousand dollars will be expended in the purchase of stationery and other articles. These will consist of large quantities of pencils, pens, writing paper, and other articles for office use. The person through whom this order will probably be placed desires to hear from American manufacturers of these goods. Correspondence may be in English.

10,899. PORT IMPROVEMENTS.—The American legation at Tangier, Morocco, has forwarded four copies of the "Cahier des Charges" embodying the conditions of the contract for improvements to the Port of Rabat, involving an expenditure of $154,400. Bids must be presented to the President of the Commission of Adjudications by June 6, 1913. It would seem impossible for any participation in the contract on the part of persons from the United States prior to a thorough inspection of the port and the local conditions under which the work is to be carried out, but an inspection of the pamphlets referred to will give a general idea of the work involved.

10,900. MACHINE TOOLS.—An American Consul reports that a local company engaged in the manufacture of projectiles and war material is in the market for machine tools to the extent of $280,000. It desires to buy direct from manufacturers and prefers American machine tools. Interested firms are requested to communicate with the Consulate in question, and the correspondence will be transmitted to the firm making the inquiry.

10,901. HEAVY OIL MOTORS.—A report from an American Consul in a European country states that a local business man desires to communicate with American manufacturers of heavy oil motors. Quotations, &c., should be addressed direct to the inquirer.

10,902. AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.—A business firm in a Mediterranean country informs an American Consulate that it desires to be put in touch with American exporters of agricultural implements in general. The firm is now prepared to state the amount of business it could give under favorable terms. It would like to receive catalogues and prices first. It would like to have quotations, cost, insurance, and freight, city of destination. The firm suggests that sales would be cash against documents with 3 per cent. discount. Correspondence should be in French.

10,903. BRIDGE CONSTRUCTION.—The American Consulate at Montevideo, Uruguay, reports that orders have been issued for a call for tenders to construct bridges over the Tacuarembo River at Paso de Tranqueras and one over Solis Grande River at Estacion Montes. Communications regarding this matter should be addressed to the Department of Public Works at Montevideo.

10,904. IRON RODS, COPPER, PEWTER, AND ZINC.—An American Consul reports that a firm in his district asks to be put in touch with American firms exporting iron bars and rods, copper in sheets, pewter in barrels, and zinc in sheets. If satisfactory terms could be obtained the firm states that it would be interested in the importation of some 50 to 60 tons of the above commodities altogether. Quotations are desired, cost, insurance, and freight, city of destination, and the terms of payment would be cash against documents, less 3 per cent. discount. Communications should be in French.

10,905. GAS RETORTS, &C.—Tenders will be received by the Town Clerk, Johannesburg, South Africa, until June 13 for supplying gas retorts, &c., (horizontal, vertical, or other type,) steelwork, &c., without delay, delivered in Johannesburg, or for the complete erection. Specifications and tender forms can be obtained from the municipality's agent, E. W. Carlin & Co., St. Dunstan's Buildings, London, E. C. England, on payment of a deposit of $10.22.

10,906. STEEL SHELVING.—Tenders are invited by the Public Works Department for the supply and erection of steel pigeon-hole shelving at the Union Buildings, Pretoria, South Africa. Bids will be received by the Chairman, Union Tender Board, Pretoria, until June 25. Local representation is desirable.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Metallic Wreaths and Slipper Ornaments at Lower Duty.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday sustained protests by the American Express Company and the Shultz-Goodwin Company, involving the classification under the Tariff act of 1909 of ornaments for women's slippers. The Collector at Boston returned the goods under Paragraph 421 at 60 per cent., as beaded articles. The importers established the ornaments to be in chief value of metal, properly dutiable at 45 per cent. under Paragraph 199.

The board sustained, in part, contentions raised by M. Rice & Co. of Philadelphia. Palm leaves, ruscus wreaths, asparagus, and leaves, were held by the Collector in that city to be dyed or preserved, and dutiable under Paragraph 438, act of 1909, at 60 per cent., as artificial flowers. Judge McClelland held that the assessment was properly made on the goods mentioned, but cut the tax on metal wreaths to 45 per cent. under the metal schedule.

FIGHTS RAILWAY SALE BILL.

Citizens' Union Man Criticises McCue Measure Before Sulzer.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 9.—Gov. Sulzer gave a hearing to-day on the bill of Assemblyman McCue, which authorizes a railroad company to buy the property of another road. Under the existing law, railroads may consolidate, but there is no provision for purchase of the property or a part of it by another corporation. C. C. Paulding, solicitor of the New York Central, explained the measure to the Governor, and said its purpose was to permit the Central to sell to the Lehigh company its "Peanut Branch," near Buffalo.

When the bill was introduced, the minority stockholders of the Harlem Railroad Company objected to certain of the provisions. Amendments were made which overcame the objections, according to the statement of Vice President Rumsey of the Continental Trust Company, principal holder of the minority stock.

J. O. Hammitt, Secretary of the Citizens' Union, opposed the bill on the ground that it would permit a company holding a perpetual franchise to extend that franchise over a purchased road with a limited franchise. The Central, it was stated, holds a 899-year lease of the Harlem. Although the Central interests maintained that the bill was intended to permit the sale of the Western New York branch, it was not denied that the McCue bill, if signed, would provide for the acquisition by the Central of the Harlem Company's property.

Gov. Sulzer said the situation was novel and asked each side to file briefs. He added that if it extended unfairly any franchise rights, he would not sign the measure.

KILLS LONG SAULT CHARTER

Governor Signs Repeal Bill—Says It Will Benefit the People.

ALBANY, May 9.—Gov. Sulzer signed to-day the Wagner bill repealing the charter granted by the Legislature in 1907 to the Long Sault Development Company for developing power on the St. Lawrence River. The bill appropriates $36,320 to be returned to the company for money paid to the State under the charter.

The Governor also signed a companion bill giving the State Court of Claims jurisdiction to hear any additional claims the company might have against the State.

In a memorandum, Mr. Sulzer said the granting of the charter "was not only violative of the State Constitution, but its provisions were in other respects improvident, unwise, and indefensible, both from an industrial and economical point of view." He asserted the repeal of the charter "will secure to all our citizens the beneficial results of the proper development of our natural resources, particularly of our unused water powers, in accordance with the constructive policy of real conservation to which the State of New York now stands committted."

FOR BETTER CONDITIONS.

Assistant Secretary Williams Says Currency Reform Is Under Way.

John Skelton Williams, the new Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, paid his first official visit yesterday to the Sub-Treasury in the city. He was accompanied by John Burke, Treasurer of the United States, and Deputy Treasurer Fort. Mr. Williams said that his trip had nothing to do with the deposit of Government funds in the National banks. The apportionment of the extra $10,000,000 set aside for that purpose will be made next week.

"I am very glad to report that the department has received a large number of communications indicating that the order requiring the payment of 2 per cent. on deposits of Government funds in National banks has been very well received," said Mr. Williams. "Our advices so far indicate that a very large proportion of institutions already carrying Government funds will retain them and pay the interest if they have not been doing so. There are other institutions that stand ready to take whatever deposits a few institutions may surrender. I believe that conditions in this country are going to be better. The Government has ample funds with which to take care of the monetary situation. What we need is a greater degree of confidence.

"A knowledge of this in business would automatically relieve the monetary situation to some extent at least, if it did not result in the tieing up of funds by individuals who might be afraid to put them into security or into business enterprises. I believe that a greater degree of confidence will soon obtain. The Administration and the department with which I am connected will do all in their power to accomplish this. The outlook for a comprehensive revision of our currency system is promising. The bill is in the hands of conservative men who have no axes to grind or who do not propose to show any favoritism. There is an excellent outlook for the accomplishment of the currency revision within the next six months."

243 Business Failures This Week.

Bradstreet's reports 243 business failures in the United States during the week, against 262 for the previous week, and 260, 245, 216 and 224 for the corresponding weeks of 1912 to 1909. The Middle States had 89, New England 16, South

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Trading in Stocks Comes Almost to Standstill—City Bonds Improving.

Only during the first two hours of trading yesterday was even a semblance of activity maintained. Thereafter dullness more pronounced than any recently shown prevailed. A little further advance was made in the general level of quotations, but the net change was as negligible in extent as was the volume of the dealings. It happens that a number of matters which have been factors of considerable consequence in the market at one time or another recently have, so to speak, reached a resting point, and the idleness of the market was prehaps a fair reflection of the resultant state of sentiment. The Tariff bill has been passed by the House, and the revision now enters its second stage of modification in the Senate. The European political situation has moved into neutral ground with the passing of the Albanian crisis, and for the time being the monetary situation is showing greater ease. Upon the sequel to these and to still other matters which have been kept prominently in view by the security markets will depend the further course of prices, but it seemed yesterday that for the moment at least the forces of reaction had spent themselves without those of opposite import having yet assumed sufficient momentum to do more than hold further price changes in abeyance.

Perhaps the phase of the day's trading most worthy of note was the firmness of the stocks which two days ago were the weakest in the list—Union and Southern Pacific. In some quarters much emphasis is laid upon the Union Pacific situation as one of the chief influences recently in keeping the market in a state of unsettlement. The firmness of these stocks yesterday suggested a further retreat from the dejection with which the Union Pacific situation was lately being viewed in some quarters. Fortunately a counterpart of this same sort of change in sentiment is found in other quarters of the financial district. Further improvement yesterday in the market for New York City bonds was one outward expression of this change, which was all the more welcome in that it afforded increased assurance of the success of the new city issue. New York City 4½s sold yesterday up to a 4.38 basis, which increased the margin of safety for the city in its offering of 4½ per cent. bonds. An equivalent price for the 4½s would be in the neighborhood of 102½.

It is not expected, of course, that such a price as this could be realized on the basis of existing conditions, but the change of the last few days in the city bond market makes it probable that a larger premium will be realized on the new bonds than seemed likely at the beginning of the week. It was also noted yesterday that a firmer tone was displayed in the demand for some other issues, including the new St. Paul 4½s, which are gradually being disposed of to investors. The clearing up of the unsold balance of these bonds and a generous response to the New York City offering are two of the possibilities of the near-by situation which might do a good deal to improve the investment market to the extent to which it is governed by sentiment.

Notwithstanding the gold exports of the week, estimates indicated a substantial gain in cash by the banks on the total currency movement. Arrangements were made yesterday, it was understood in banking circles, for a shipment of $2,000,000 additional gold to Paris, making a total of $4,000,000 to be sent out next week, in addition to the $6,000,000 which has gone this week. The fact that these arrangements were made, notwithstanding a further decline in sterling exchange, brought into still clearer relief the need which the French market feels of adding to its gold supply. If the gold which is being taken from this market under some pressure helps to ease the Paris money market, and to facilitate the heavy financing which the French Government has to undertake, these gold exports may eventually benefit the situation as a whole to an extent which will more than offset the inconvenience to ourselves in giving up a part of our bank reserves at a time when they are none too large. The Imperial Bank of Germany issued a statement which helped to explain the easier discount rates in Berlin early in the week, but the rate there yesterday again rose a little.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call loaned on Stock Exchange collateral at 2½@3 per cent., with the last loan at 2½ per cent. Most of the day's business was done at 2¾ per cent.

Time money rates were 3¾@4 per cent. for sixty days, 4 per cent. for ninety days, 4¼ per cent. for four months, 4¼@4½ per cent. for five and six months, and 5@5¼ per cent. for nine and ten months.

Commercial paper was quoted at 5@5½ per cent. for the best names.

Clearing House exchanges, $384,137,770; balances, $14,225,963; Sub-Treasury credit balances, $750,832.

The local banks lost $5,303,000 on their Sub-Treasury operations this week.

FOREIGN RATES.

Discount rates abroad yesterday were: London, 3⅝ per cent. for short and three months' bills; Paris, 4 per cent., and Berlin, 5¼ per cent. Money was 2½@3 per cent. in London, and 6 per cent. in Berlin.

The Paris check rate on London was 25f. 20c., and the Berlin check rate on London was 20 marks 45 pfennigs.

Foreign exchange rates at the points noted were quoted as follows at the close of business yesterday:

CABLE AND SIGHT RATES.

London—Cable,	$4.8630;	demand, $4.8615, $4.86, $4.86.
Paris—Cable,	5.18⅛;	check, 5.18⅛ less 5-64.
Berlin—Cable,	95⅛ less 1-64;	check, 95 1-16 less 1-32.
Switzerland—Cable,	5.19⅜;	check, 5.19⅜ less 1-16.
Holland—Cable,	40.15;	check, 40.11.

SIXTY AND NINETY DAY BILLS.

London—Bankers',	sixty days, $4.82¾; ninety days, $4.81¼.
London—Commercial,	sixty days, $4.82½; ninety days, $4.81.
Paris—Commercial,	sixty days, 5.22½; ninety days, 5.23¾ less 1-16.
Berlin—Commercial,	sixty days, 94 1-16; ninety days, 93⅝ less 1-32.

DOMESTIC EXCHANGE RATES.

Boston, par; Chicago, 5c. premium; St. Louis, 15c. premium; St. Paul, 40c. premium; San Francisco, 10c. premium; Montreal, 15⅝c. discount.

SILVER QUOTATIONS.

Bar silver was ½d. higher in London, at 27 13-16d., and ¼c. higher in New York, at 60¼c. per ounce.

Postal Cards to be Green.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—One cent postal cards will be green hereafter, as is the practice in many foreign countries. Postmaster General Burleson signed an order to-day for the change.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Messages of Cheer.

The Stock Exchange's educational campaign is making rapid progress. So many nice things have been said about the institution since the Governor's attempt to double the stock transfer tax and to force incorporation that it would require a good-sized scrapbook to hold them all. There have been a few unkind remarks interspersed here and there, but these have gone into the waste basket, so that they might sooner be forgotten. The Exchange has devised a way to keep the friendly criticism in circulation. The Library Committee has sent letters to all members, asking them to enclose with their market letters excerpts to be supplied by the committee. Thus, when Senator Smith-Brown mentions the Stock Exchange as an institution of which this country ought to be proud, the newspaper reports of his speech will be duplicated and copies supplied to the brokers, so that when they send out a market letter they may accompany it with a few notices complimentary to the Exchange. The more one sees of the favorable results which the Exchange is achieving under its new "open-door" policy, the more he wonders why the policy of exclusiveness was adhered to for so many years.

Waiting for Washington.

Omitting Saturdays and Sundays, when most of the bankers, lawyers and high officials of the Harriman roads are at their country places, and hence, for the most part, out of communication with one another, the Union Pacific management has just thirty-five days in which to formulate a plan for conforming to the order of the Court that it divest itself of its Southern Pacific holdings. From the discouraged tone adopted by some of them the thirty-five might just as well be five days. They say that they are making no progress susceptible of measurement, and there is nothing in sight except the appointment of a trustee in liquidation to market the Southern Pacific. Probably the situation is not quite so bad as that, but the consensus of opinion among those who have wrestled with the problem is that it is pretty bad. There are many complications, but the one which is causing the most trouble right now is the Attorney General's implied promise to invoke the Sherman law a second time in order to compel Southern Pacific to sell the Central Pacific. If the Southern Pacific does not want to sell the line to the Union Pacific, then it is useless for the latter to try to formulate another plan involving the transfer of that line. In that case the Union Pacific will offer to put the Southern Pacific shares in the hands of trustees, to be sold as conditions warrant. If the Court does not like that method it can name its own trustee.

Up to Mr. Kruttschnitt.

Pending some decision by the Southern Pacific the Union Pacific Directors have done nothing toward arriving at an understanding since the Supreme Court agreed to give them an extension to July 1. If the Huntington Road fears a dissolution suit sufficiently to be willing to mark several million dollars off the asked price of Central Pacific it might be possible for the two companies to agree. The decision appears to rest with Julius Kruttschnitt, Chairman of the Southern Pacific. Mr. Kruttschnitt is a very large man, who moves slowly, but like most deliberate men, he is usually moving forward. So far he has refused to become excited over the reports of what the Attorney General will do to him if he does not mind. He even appears to believe that it is not absolutely a foregone conclusion that the United States Government could force his company to sell the Central Pacific.

Nothing New.

The London Financial News says editorially that it is now ninety-nine years since, in the "Stock Exchange Laid Open," an early nineteenth century critic offered his "observations on the mischievous tendency of time bargains, and the absolute necessity of abolishing the present stock exchange."

An Anniversary Day.

Reminiscences of the famous corner in Northern Pacific, the twelfth anniversary of which occurred yesterday, formed items of conversation to help pass the time in brokerage offices. As the market drew to a weary close, one watcher of the ticker turned to another and said: "Twelve years ago at this moment I heard more than one in this room say, 'thank Heaven, the day is over at last.' Matching to-day's dullness against the activity on that ninth of May, we might say the same thing." In the session when Northern Pacific went up to $1,000 a share, total transactions amounted to 3,336,695 shares against an aggregate turnover of 187,243 shares yesterday. The liveliest hour on the panic day was between 11 and 12 o'clock. These were the transactions in Northern Pacific, in order, in that period: 300 shares at 700; 300 shares at 1,000 cash; 200 shares at 600, cash; 100 shares at 600; 700 shares at 500 cash; 100 at 450 cash; 700 at 500 cash, and 500 at 700 cash. Steel preferred opened with 20,000 shares distributed along from 95 to 95¾ while the final price was 89½. Steel common declined nearly 6 points under a tremendous volume of trading.

Copper Prices Harden.

The small supply of copper metal in producers' hands, as exhibited by the Copper Association's statement for April caused a slight hardening of prices in the local market and in Europe as well yesterday. There was optimistic talk in the trade of 16 cent metal before many days, but transactions as far as reported were firmly on a 15¾-cent basis. In London 15.80 cents was quoted with the larger agencies not especially eager to accept contracts. Exports from May 1 have amounted to approximately 10,000 tons against 8,883 tons in the same period last year.

Rumely Action no Surprise.

The news that the Rumely Company would not declare any more dividends until the year's results in the way of profits are known did not come as a shock to Wall Street. Previous recessions of the shares had not only foretold such action, but also discounted the removal of income to investors to such an extent that prices advanced instead of going down further. The common stock gained a point and the preferred nearly four.

THE TREASURY STATEMENT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Treasury statement issued to-day gives receipts and expenditures for yesterday and for the elapsed periods of the month and of the fiscal year as follows:

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Curb Stocks Again Very Dull —City Bonds Are Active and Higher.

Transactions in unlisted stocks yesterday showed no increase in activity. All changes were advances. New York City bonds were active, with sales of $85,000 of the 4½ per cent. issue. A net gain of 1-16 was made, the last sale being at 100 11-16. The 4½s of 1960 and 1962 closed at 97⅛.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Charles A. Stoneham & Co., prominent members of the New York Curb for several years, have withdrawn from the association on the ground that the commission rates adopted by that body are not satisfactory to them.

James N. Wallace has been elected a Director of the Central Foundry Company, succeeding Nathan D. Bill.

Otto L. Dommerich of L. F. Dommerich & Co. was elected yesterday a director of the Pacific Bank, the board being increased from thirteen to fourteen members.

William T. James, a Director of the Queens County Savings Bank for the past twenty-two years, thirteen of which he was Treasurer, was yesterday elected President. He succeeds Lindley M. Franklin, who died on March 12. Abram C. Hageman, who has been associated with the bank for several years was elected cashier and Secretary.

NORFOLK, Va., May 9.—H. W. Stanley, Assistant General Manager of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, was appointed General Manager to-day.

RUMELY FINANCED BY ITS BANKERS

Salamon & Co. and Hallgarten & Co. Say Company Was Mismanaged, but Business Sound.

$3,500,000 TO TIDE IT OVER

Clarence S. Funk Made President and Executive Committee and Directorate Reorganized.

In announcing that the affairs of the M. Rumely Company had been completely reorganized, William Salamon & Co. and Hallgarten & Co. said yesterday that the company had been extravagantly managed, and that much misleading information had been given the bankers in regard to its financial position. The resignation of A. J. Rumely as President and the appointment of Clarence S. Funk, now general manager of the International Harvester Company, to succeed Mr. Rumely was made known. It was said further that the company had been able to renew certain lines of credit to an extent of $3,500,000, sufficient to insure working capital for the coming year, but that no further dividends would be paid until the results of operations in 1913 were known.

The two banking firms were the principal underwriters of the Rumely stock when the capital was increased last year and the issues placed on the New York Stock Exchange. The heavy declines in the market value of the shares since the first of the year made evident that something was seriously out of order with the management of the company.

In their statement the bankers said the difficulties of the company were the direct result of a too rapid extension of its business with an extravagant executive management and without a full appreciation of the unusually large amount of capital required in the agricultural implement trade, in which credits of eighteen months or more were habitually given. Partly through the acquisition of other companies, sales jumped from $10,000,000 in 1911 to $17,500,000 in 1912.

Reports made to them, the bankers said, misled them as to the company's affairs. During the annual audit they were for the first time led to believe that neither they nor the accountants employed by them had received full and reliable information from the officers of the company regarding its true manufacturing and financial position.

Eight weeks ago they had John H. Guy elected Vice President in charge of finances. He found that the officers had planned to increase the business for 1913 to $28,000,000. This was cut down to $22,000,000. On the publication of the annual report on April 2, showing that the earnings for 1912 had fallen far short of the company's estimates, the company's banks, most of whose loans had been paid from the sale of $10,000,000 two-year notes, became distrustful of the management and hesitated to extend the usual seasonal credits upon which it relied to carry on its business until Fall, when most of its collections are made. Further investigation made for the bankers convinced them that while the management of the company had been improvident, its bookkeeping system imperfect, and information furnished to them "most inaccurate and misleading," the enterprise was essentially sound.

"What the company needed," the bankers said, "was new management, together with the financing of its immediate requirements. To that end, we ourselves and others interested in the company have arranged to advance to the company $2,000,000, which is to remain in the business at least until the end of next year. On the strength of the arrangements above outlined the company has been able to re-establish lines of banking credit to the extent of $3,500,000, which is deemed sufficient for this year's seasonal requirements.

"It is impossible at the present time to make any accurate forecast of the earnings for the year. The profits will undoubtedly suffer from the mistakes of the late management. For these reasons and in order to maintain as strong a cash position as possible, the Directors have determined to take no action in respect of dividends on the preferred stock until the outcome of the business for the present year is known."

Clarence S. Funk has been general manager of the International Harvester Company for the past six years. An officer of one of the banking houses most interested in the Rumely Company said yesterday that the arrangement had been entirely agreeable to the Harvester Company, and that Cyrus W. McCormick, its President, had supplied much useful assistance in rearranging the Rumely management. It was positively stated, however, that the International Harvester Company had no financial interest in the Rumely Company.

No information was given yesterday as to the relations A. J. Rumely and his brother, E. A. Rumely, formerly Vice President and general manager, will bear to the company now. Mr. Funk, it was said, would have entire charge of the company's management, the position of general manager having been discontinued. The Board of Directors was reorganized so that a majority of the members represent the interests which are financing the business.

An Executive Committee has been appointed, consisting of President Funk, James A. Patten, Elisha Walker of William Salomon & Co., and John H. Guy, the recently elected Vice President in charge of finances. The Finance Committee consists of President Funk, Elisha Walker, and Max Horwitz of Hallgarten & Co.

When the Rumely stocks were listed on the Exchange last year the common shares sold as high as 101. On April 26, after a protracted decline, they reached a low level for the year of 21⅝. The preferred sold last year at 103¾ for a maximum figure and dropped to 49 on the day the other issue touched bottom. The preferred stock sold at 54⅝ and the common at 29 in final transactions yesterday.

RUMELYS NOT ELIMINATED.

Re-elected Directors — Funk Will Retain the Present Force.

Special to The New York Times.

LA PORTE, Ind., May 9.—The announcement to-day of the election of Clarence S. Funk to the presidency of the Rumely Company was followed by the refusal of both A. J. Rumely, President, and Dr. E. A. Rumely, General Manager, to give out any interviews relative to the action taken. The Rumelys, however, have not been eliminated from the affairs of the company, both A. J. Rumely and Dr. E. A. Rumely being elected members of the new Board of Directors. James A. Patten is the third member of the old group to be recognized by re-election to the directorate, President Clarence S. Funk, Paul D. Cravath, Herman Clifford, C. A. Lafever, who represents the Battle Creek interests; C. P. Holton, who represents the Richmond stockholders, in addition to Elisha Walker, John H. Guy and Max Horwitz, who are representatives of the banking interests, are included in the new directorate. Joseph J. Rumely and Emmet Scott, the former Vice President and the latter Treasurer, together with John Wolfe, who married into the Rumely family, got no official recognition in the reorganization of the corporation. The statement issued to-day from the offices of the Rumely Company in this city indicate that the policy of Clarence S. Funk will be to use the heads and employes of the present organization. In his own words, he said that no strong organization could be built by taking away men from competing companies or from other fields of work, but that each company must train and build its own corps of executives. His success in the Harvester Company is attributed to his ability to co-ordinate the activities of the working forces.

CONFER ON HIGHER RATES.

Commercial Committee and Railroad Men Together.

The Executive Committee of the Eastern Commercial organizations, D. O. Ives of Boston, Chairman, conferred yesterday with the representatives of the Trunk Lines at the headquarters of the Merchants' Association of New York, in the Woolworth Building, in regard to proposed increases in freight rates.

The Executive Committee of the Eastern Commercial organizations represents the traffic bureau of the commercial organizations of New York City, Richmond, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Bridgeport, Worcester, Boston, and other Eastern traffic centres.

The Trunk Lines were represented by Mr. Daly of the New York Central, Mr. Dixon of the Pennsylvania, and Mr. Cook of the Erie.

LEGAL NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—JACOB L. KESNER, complainant, against J. L. KESNER COMPANY, defendant.

Take notice that the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York has this day made a nisi decree accepting the bid made by the Twenty-third Street Stores Corporation for all the property and assets of the J. L. Kesner Company, as stated therein, and that a further hearing will be had in Room 68, United States Post Office Building, on the 10th day of May, 1913, at 10 o'clock A. M., at which time said nisi decree will be made absolute unless good cause is shown to the court why said decree should not be so confirmed.

At that time any bids will be received and other business may be transacted, the hearing of April 30th having been adjourned for all purposes to the foregoing date.

Copies of the said bid may be procured from the attorneys for the receivers.

At said hearing this court will make any such orders in reference to the disposition or distribution of the estate as may to the court seem best, including any or all disposition as to the nature, extent, or validity of claims of creditors.

Dated New York, April 30th, 1913.

DALE, THEODORE B.—The People of the State of New York, by the Grace of God Free and Independent:

To Sosha Schapiro, an aunt of Theodore B. Dale, deceased, and Feiga Rosental, an aunt of Theodore B. Dale, deceased, if said Feiga Rosental be living, whose place of residence is unknown and cannot after diligent inquiry be ascertained, and if said Feiga Rosental be not living, to the creditors, heirs, next of kin, executors, administrators or other person or persons interested in the estate of said Feiga Rosental, who and whose names and places of residence are unknown and cannot after diligent inquiry be ascertained, and Rose Gelberg, an aunt of Theodore B. Dale, deceased, if said Rose Gelberg be living, whose place of residence is unknown and cannot after diligent inquiry be ascertained, and if said Rose Gelberg be not living, to the creditors, heirs, next of kin, executors, administrators or other person or persons interested in the estate of said Rose Gelberg, who and whose names and places of residence are unknown and cannot after diligent inquiry be ascertained, and Yitzchok Brodzky, also known as Itzke Brodzky, an uncle of Theodore B. Dale, deceased, if said Yitzchok Brodzky, also known as Itzke Brodzky be living, whose place of residence is unknown and cannot after diligent inquiry be ascertained, and if said Yitzchok Brodzky be not living, to the creditors, heirs, next of kin, executors, administrators or other person or persons interested in the estate of said Yitzchok Brodzky, also known as Itzke Brodzky, who and whose names and places of residence are unknown and cannot after diligent inquiry be ascertained, and if said Lewy Brodzky be not living, to the creditors, heirs, next of kin, executors, administrators or other person or persons interested in the estate of said Lewy Brodzky, who and whose names and places of residence are unknown and cannot after diligent inquiry be ascertained, and any other heirs and next of kin of Theodore B. Dale, deceased, who and whose names and places of residence are unknown and cannot after diligent inquiry be ascertained, the heirs and next of kin of Theodore B. Dale, deceased, send greeting:

Whereas, Maurice Brodzky of The City of New York has lately applied to the Surrogate's Court of our County of New York, to have a certain instrument in writing, bearing date the 19th day of March, 1913, relating to both real and personal property, duly proved as the last Will and Testament of Theodore B. Dale, late of the County of New York, deceased.

Therefore you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at his office in the County of New York, on the 30th day of June, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said last Will and Testament.

And such of you as are hereby cited, as are under the age of twenty-one years, are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none, to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or to the Court of your neglect or failure to do so, a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

In Testimony Whereof, We have caused the Seal of the Surrogate's Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed. (L. S.)

Witness, Hon. Robert Ludlow Fowler, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said County, the 5th day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirteen.

EDUCATION NOTES.

A successor to Principal Lyman A. Best as Secretary of the Retirement Board will be chosen on May 15. The teachers met in the various districts of the five boroughs on Thursday to elect their delegates, who will choose Mr. Best's successor. Mr. Best himself was elected as a delegate in District 40. Miss Cora B. Guild of Public School 6, Queens, was elected to represent District 42; Stephen Bayne, Principal of Public School 5, Manhattan, was elected in District 22. The teachers of District 39, Brooklyn, elected as their representative Miss Ida Claire, a class teacher. They also adopted the following resolution:

"Whereas, The Board of Retirement, as at present constituted, is made up of members of the Board of Education, the City Superintendent, and Principals of public schools, leaving the 17,000 class teachers, who contribute to the great bulk of the money out of which pensions are paid, absolutely without a vote in the matter how their money should be spent, therefore

"Resolved, That we, the teachers and supervising force of School District 39, feel that it would be but a simple act of justice to have at least one class teacher on the Board of Retirement, and we hereby instruct our representative to vote for none other than a class teacher for member of the Retirement Board on Thursday, May 15."

The Association of Women Principals will meet at the Hotel Majestic on Monday afternoon.

The Isaac Pitman Shorthand Teachers' Association will hold a meeting this evening at the Thompson Business School, 116 West Fourteenth Street.

The Male High School Teachers' Association will hold an election of officers at Sheffel Hall, Seventeenth Street and Third Avenue, this morning.

The Association of Men Teachers on the Eligible List Principals No. 1 (men) will hold a meeting this morning at the City College clubrooms, 63 West Fifty-sixth Street.

The New York Public School Kindergarten Association will hold a meeting on the afternoon of May 28 at the Normal College.

Dr. Dennis J. McDonald, a member of the Committee on Lectures and Libraries of the Board of Education, has received a letter, accompanied by a copy of a clipping from THE TIMES, consisting of the communication from Robert Patrick Knox relative to the smaller attendance at the free lectures in the various schools. The letter reads:

"May I supplement the above [Knox's letter to THE TIMES] by stating some of the reasons way the lecture system has degenerated and become more or less a failure? There are many such, but the principal one is that Dr. Leipziger has neglected the main purpose for which the appropriation was made, and, in his attempt to retrieve the situation and save the system from possible extinction, is turning what should be a series of interesting and instructive lectures almost into concerts, which are of a decidedly amateurish character.

"The appropriation, as I understand it, was not given for musical, but purely for lecture, purposes, and in diverting the funds of this appropriation from its use (for which the bill was originally drawn,) Dr. Leipziger is robbing the people of an opportunity of informing themselves on matters of science and kindred subjects, which are of much more importance than mere concerts or lectures, interrupted and interpreted by songs, solos, &c., no better than any one can have at home. A private investigation is under way at present, and at the proper time and place a full report will be made.

"The appropriation is sufficiently large to warrant a higher type of lecture than Dr. Leipziger is at present offering to those who help to foot the bills. May I ask your honorable committee to interest yourselves actively in the welfare of the public in general?" WILLIAN DOWLING KOCH."

May 6, 1913.

Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards will deliver an address to-day at the Gold Theatre, Broadway and Varet Street, Brooklyn, to the members of the Volunteer Civic League, Public School 43, and the Girls' School Civic League, Public School 141, Brooklyn. This address will be preparatory to Monday's "clean up."

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—An extensive area of high pressure overlies the central and northern portions of the country east of the Rocky Mountains, with its crest over Lake Superior. It is attended by a decided fall in temperature over the lake region and the great Central Valleys, and low temperatures also continue in the Northwest, with the result that they are now from ten to twenty degrees below seasonal over the district covered by the high pressure.

The weather east of the Rockies was more or less unsettled, and showers were quite general over a narrow belt of country extending from Colorado and Nebraska eastward through the lower lake region into New England. There were also scattered thunder showers in the East Gulf and South Atlantic States, but apparently without much rain of consequence.

West of the mountains the weather was fair, except in the Coast States, where there were rains.

Showers will continue Saturday and probably Saturday night and Sunday, from the central Rocky Mountain region eastward through the Ohio Valley. Showers are also probable Saturday in the South Atlantic and the south portion of the Middle Atlantic States.

Over the remainder of the country the weather will be generally fair Saturday and Sunday.

It will be cooler Saturday from the Ohio Valley eastward and northeastward, and warmer Sunday in the Upper Mississippi and Missouri Valleys.

Winds along the New England and Middle Atlantic Coast will be moderate northwest, becoming north and northeast Sunday; South Atlantic Coast, moderate and variable, becoming northwest and north.

Steamships departing Saturday for European ports will have moderate northwest winds with fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SUNDAY.

Eastern New York—Fair Saturday; cooler south portion, Sunday, fair; moderate north and northeast winds.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair, cooler Saturday, Sunday, fair; moderate northeast to north winds.

New England—Fair, cooler Saturday. Sunday, fair; moderate northwest to north winds.

Western New York—Fair Saturday and Sunday; moderate north and northeast winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

Governor Hughes
had the laws changed making it possible.
Governor Sulzer
has had it carried into practical effect for the benefit of all the people.
When a Bank failed
formerly a Receiver was appointed to dispose of the assets. A few individuals with plenty of ready cash obtained the bargains and made the money.
Governor Hughes
had the law changed and the State of New York Banking Department takes charge of and liquidates all failed Banking Institutions.
Governor Sulzer's
administration has ordered that if there are to be any opportunities for making money from the assets of failed Banking Institutions, all the people should be given an equal chance.
The Banking Department of the State of New York realize perfectly that such a large tract as 3019 separate lots of the Morris Park Race Track cannot be sold without sacrificing their value.
But the property must be sold—
There is no alternative.
That is what is meant by the State of New York giving you
The opportunity to make money
The sale takes place
May 31st, and succeeding days
70% can remain on mortgage. Titles insured free by Lawyers Title Ins. & Trust Co.

PURSUING OFFICIALS IN TAXICAB GRAFT

District Attorney's Office Has No Intention of Prosecuting Companies.

WANT THE MEN WHO RODE

Charge Books Expected to Furnish the Names of City Employes Who Have Ridden Free.

Owing to the fact that the case against Senator Stilwell took up all the time of the Grand Jury, Assistant District Attorney Joseph Du Vivier was unable to bring to the attention of that body yesterday, as he had hoped, the results of his investigation into the graft aspects of the holding up of the taxicab ordinance and the conduct of the taxicab business with its munificent bestowal of unlimited free rides on public officials whose smile or whose frown would mean much to the taxicab interests. Several important additional items of information reached the District Attorney's office in the course of the day, however, with offers on the part of other agencies to cooperate with him by putting at his disposal the results of other investigations that have, in the last few months been caried on secretly into the causes of the delay in reporting a relief ordinance.

When the matter is put before the Grand Jury on Monday, that body will have full access to the books and correspondence of the Yellow Taxicab Company, with whatever light those records can throw on the intimate relationship between the company and various public officials. The first witness to be called before the Grand Jury will be Edwin P. Banta, contract agent for the company, who was discharged some time ago, and whose revelations really started the investigation that has been carried on since then. Other witnesses, who have been subpoenaed to appear before the Grand Jury on Monday, are Aldermen Marks and Bolles of the committee which was appointed to prepare a new taxicab ordinance, and who have steadfastly opposed the ordinance reported by Alderman Henry F. Grimm, Chairman of the committee. There will appear as witnesses under subpoena, also, Jesse Judson, Assistant Treasurer of the Yellow Taxicab Company; Max W. Rhine, a clerk in its constructing department; Benjamin F. Schaeffer, one of its credit men; John Clark, a company dispatcher, and Charles From, a clerk in the accounting division of the company. Rhine and From brought down an armful of books to the District Attorney's office yesterday.

Contain Interesting Revelations.

These books, it was intimated, would tell many interesting stories. Among other things of interest to the District Attorney, it was said, they would show how Alderman, police officials, and License Bureau officials had traveled in taxicabs gratis and without limit. Among the list of free riders whose luxurious travels the District Attorney hoped by means of these boooks to trace there would be, it was said, two important officials of the Mayor's License Bureau. It was asserted that the District Attorney expected to show that they rode on accounts that were never collected, and for which no bills ever were rendered.

An important caller at the office of Assistant District Attorney Du Vivier yesterday was Wilfred Earl Youker, Assistant Secretary of the Citizens' Union, who told him that that body for some time had been carrying on secretly an investigation of its own into the causes that underlie the holding up of remedial taxicab legislation. The investigation, Mr. Youker said, had followed similar lines and developed similar results to that carried on by the District Attorney; and he offered to co-operate with the District Attorney's office in laying those facts before the Grand Jury and the courts. One of the facts discovered by the Citizens' Union investigators, it was said, was a secret meeting between an important member of the Aldermen's Taxicab Committee and officials of the Yellow Taxicab Company at an uptown hotel.

More assistance along similar lines, it was said, had been volunteered to the District Attorney by Alderman Meagher, a former member of the Taxicab Committee, who spent months investigating the taxicab situation.

Denial from Whiteside.

George W. Whiteside, attorney for the Yellow Taxicab Company, had denied on Thursday that he had any hand in drawing up an ordinance for the taxicab company for Alderman Grimm to report, as it had been intimated an attorney for the company had done. Mr. Whiteside said, however, that he was not the only attorney for the company.

Benedict M. Holden of 111 Broadway, another attorney for the company, admitted yesterday that he had drawn up an ordinance for it, but explained that he had acted perfectly regularly and within the law and professional ethics in doing so.

"I was employed by the company as its attorney," he said, "and as such had every right to further its interests and urge upon the legislators, in every legitimate way, measures to meet its interests. All the taxicab interests concerned agreed to submit ordinances to the Aldermanic Committee.

"The Yellow Taxicab Company, other companies, Commissioner Wallace of the License Bureau, Chief Inspector of Complaints Drennon of that bureau, all presented ordinances. From the ordinances so submitted the committee was expected to chose what it considered best and incorporate it in its own ordinance. But the ordinance I drew was submitted to the whole committee openly, and not to Alderman Grimm or any other member secretly, as has been intimated. If Alderman Grimm should decide to adopt my ordinance, I should be very glad as well as proud of my success as attorney for the Yellow Taxicab Company."

Mr. Holden added, however, that the ordinance he submitted did not attempt to deal in any way with taxicab rates or private stands. He had maintained from the beginning, he said, that the Board of Aldermen had no right to attempt to fix rates for taxicab rides any more than for any other commodity sold in the city.

"This whole outcry," he said, "started from an employe who tried to undercut us and obtain our stands for competitors in business. He was caught through a letter he had written to the Pennsylvania Railroad relative to the stands at the Pennsylvania Station, which letter the railroad company sent on to us.

Company Discharged Him.

"Thereupon he was discharged. Almost immediately afterward he began to send threatening letters to various officials of the Yellow Taxicab Company, to its President, A. F. Rockwell; to its General Manager, P. J. Holdesworth, and to H. R. Swartz, its Vice President and Treasurer, threatening them with criminal proceedings unless he was reinstated. When the letters were shown to me, I said that I considered them blackmail, and advised that they should be disregarded entirely. Thereupon the discharged employe went to a newspaper office with his story, sold it to the newspaper, and was taken by two of the paper's reporters to the District Attorney's office to tell his story there."

Mr. Holden added that he had held no secret meetings with individual members of the Board of Aldermen or its committee on drafting a taxicab ordinance, but admitted:

"Of course, I buttonholed any member of the committee at every opportunity I got, whether it was in a hotel, saloon, or elsewhere, and talked to him from the company's point of view."

Such meetings, however, he said, were never by prearrangement, and usually accidental. He did not recall whether he had ever met Alderman Grimm apart from the rest of his committee at an uptown hotel.

Assistant District Attorney Du Vivier explained yesterday that he had no intention of prosecuting any taxicab company, but only public officials whose conduct could be shown to have run counter to the Penal Code. Just what would be the status of those officials who had accepted free rides or other privileges from the taxicab company, on "charge accounts," he said, was undecided. The decision of the Appellate Division in the Hyde case, he added, might shortly throw light on that point.

EDITOR TO CHAIN GANG.

But Saunders, Who Challenged Arrest for Libel, Takes Appeal.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C., May 9.—W. O. Saunders, editor of The Independent, published here, was convicted of libel to-day, and was sentenced by Judge R. W. Turner to six months on the county chain gang. Notice of appeal was served, and bail was given for the appearance of the defendant at the September term of the Superior Court for a rehearing.

The trial was the result of an article published in The Independent several weeks ago, in which certain statements were made concerning Mr. Aydlett, to which the latter objected. Saunders refused to retract, and challenged Aydlett to have him arrested. Aydlett was the only witness, and was on the stand several hours.

WOMAN WEDGED IN SLIP

Between the Ferry Walls Unconscious When Rescued by Chance.

Three watchmen of the New York Dock Company in Brooklyn heard the scream of a woman shortly after 10 o'clock last night from an old and disused ferry house at the foot of Montague Street. The men ran over to the ferry house and walked out on the pier. After a few minutes search they found a woman wedged between the two walls of the ferry slips. She was almost entirely submerged and was then unconscious.

The men extricated her and summoned an ambulance. The woman was removed to the Long Island College Hospital, where at an early hour this morning she was still unconscious. She was about 30 years of age, and was dressed entirely in white. At the hospital it was said that she would recover.

Two Scientists See New Comet.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 9.—Observations of the new comet discovered by Schaumasse of Nice were made last night by Antoniazzi at Padova and by Aitken at the Lick Observatory, according to despatches received by Prof. Edward C. Pickering, Director of the Harvard College Observatory, to-day. The comet was visible through small telescopes.

Compositor Killed by Express Wagon

While crossing Forty-third Street at Ninth Avenue last night Anthony Deering, a compositor, 50 years old, of 408 West Forty-third Street, was killed by an Adams Express wagon. One of the horses trampled him, and he died a few minutes after the arrival of Dr. Schoenberg of Polyclinic Hospital

SUFFRAGE CALL ON MME. BERNHARDT

Delegation Leaves a Flag and Button and Elicits a Nod and Smile.

THIS WITH MUCH CHEERING

Crowd Complicates Stage Door Interview, but Maybe the Actress Knew What It Was All About.

The Woman Suffrage Party sent a delegation to meet Mme. Sarah Bernhardt yesterday at the Palace Theatre. There were large crowds at the suffrage meeting in front of the theatre, but still larger crowds at the side entrance where Mme. Bernhardt was expected to appear in leaving the theatre.

At first the suffragists had it all their own way, and the big crowd listened. Then a door opened and a man appeared. He made signs to clear the way. Then two more men appeared and stepped down into the narrow passage that had been cleared for them between two human walls. Then came a little maid, and then it was unmistakably Mme. Bernhardt herself who appeared walking between two men. She wore a small hat covered with heliotrope blossoms and heliotrope maline, and a big chinchilla coat over her shoulders. A smile was on her lips.

There were cheers and wild shouts for Bernhardt, and no one gave a thought to the suffragists standing lonesomely in their taxi. Miss Portia Willis, who was on the inside line next the actress, handed her an American flag, which she took, Miss Willis saying at the same time in her best New York French:

"Are you for suffrage?"

Mme. Bernhardt nodded, still smiling, and "Corporal" Klatschken presented her with a "Votes for Women" button.

Then, with great effort, the crowd was pushed back sufficiently for Mme. Bernhardt to enter her carriage, and the suffragists dismissed their taxi and disappeared.

A note was to have been sent to the actress before she left the theatre. It read:

"We, the undersigned, your sister suffragists, would consider it a great honor if you would see us as you are leaving the theatre, where we are holding a meeting."

The note didn't get through, and Bernhardt carried off all the honors. If she saw the suffragists at all, it was only by chance.

I. B. KLEINERT'S WILL.

$75,000, Life Interest in Realty and $6,000 Annuity Left to Wife.

The will of Isaac B. Kleinert, President and founder of the I. B. Kleinert Rubber Company, who died on April 18, was filed for probate yesterday. The value of the estate is given as "more than $100,000 realty and more than $100,000 personalty." The sum of $10,000 is left in trust to his daughters, Hermine E. Kleinert and Loonie B. Kleinert, "to distribute among poor relatives." The United Hebrew Charities and the Home for Aged Hebrews each receive $3,000. A cash legacy of $75,000, an annuity of $6,000, and a life interest in all his realty holdings are given to his wife, Mrs. Virginia G. Kleinert.

The residuary estate is left in three equal shares to his two daughters, Hermine E. Kleinert and Belle Sessler, and the remaining third to Ethel Gruen and Catherine Janowitz, children of his deceased daughter, Deborah Janowitz. In regard to his daughters, Henrietta Guinzburg and Leonie Gulzenburg, he said that he made no provision for them because of his having transferred to them securities in the I. B. Kleinert Rubber Company of a value equal to the other children's share in his estate.

SARATOGA SPRINGS RADIUM.

Dissolved, It Exists to Exceptional Degree, Federal Experts Report.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, May 9. — Dissolved radium salts to an exceptional degree exist in the mineral springs of the New York State Reservation in this village, according to the United States Bureau of Mines, which has submitted to the State Reservation Commission a report of a recent investigation in thirteen of the wells now owned by the State. It is further stated that the springs are peculiar in carrying considerably more than a trace of barium, an element usually associated with radium.

These results were all obtained from waters taken in October, 1912. Since that time, the commission reports, the progress of recovery of the springs has been continuous, a number of new wells have begun to flow, and very substantial advances in the amount of radio-activity are likely to be discovered upon further examination.

LURAY, Va., May 9.—Noah W. Fleming, who is 82 years old, braved matrimony for the fourth time to-day. His bride was Mrs. Lucy Eppard, a widow, thirty-two years younger than her husband.

O'HARA'S ACCUSER FOUND.

Maude Robinson Talks of Testifying, but Disappears Again.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Maude Robinson of Springfield, maker of the now famous affidavit on file in the Illinois Senate in which it is charged that Lieutenant Governor O'Hara, Chairman of the Senate Vice Investigating Committee, accompanied a Springfield woman to the Hotel Sherman in this city on the night of Jan. 17, was found here to-day. She is striking and of an unusual type, 26 years old, tall, slender, and graceful.

State Senator Samuel Ettelson, Chairman of the committee investigating the charges against O'Hara, enlisted to-night the aid of detectives in searching for Mrs. Robinson. She disappeared again this evening from the home of relatives here. It found she will be served with a subpoena to testify before the committee.

Records of the Sangamon County Circuit Court show Maude Robinson to be a divorcee. She was married to Foster Shriver in Hannibal, Mo., on June 26, 1911, and on April 17, 1912, she obtained a divorce on statutory grounds.

Mrs. Robinson said to-day she would appear before the committee investigating the charges against the Lieutenant Governor as soon as she was notified that her testimony was desired. She said she had received no summons to appear, although she understood she would have to give testimony in support of the affidavit, which she acknowledged that she signed.

"I'll say all I have to say when the proper time comes," added the young woman.

A County official said he had been visited by a Republican legislator and Deputy Sheriff Sullivan a week ago, and that they informed him O'Hara was carrying his investigation too far; that they had the goods on him, and would make them public unless he ceased his investigation. The official then sent for O'Hara, who admitted, he said, that he came to Chicago with Thomas Wredenburg of Springfield, Maude Robinson and another woman, but denied that he went to the Hotel Sherman with the party.

"I do not believe that Mr. O'Hara is guilty of the charges made against him, although I am satisfied he invited criticism by appearing in places with the women where he was well known," concluded the County official. "His story is one that in some points agrees with the affidavit, but I am convinced the serious charges intimated are untrue, and will be so proved by the investigation."

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., May 9.—Lieut. Gov. O'Hara, after his address to-night at the closing session of the Illincis Congress of Mothers, was asked for a comment on the statement made by Maude Robinson in Chicago that she signed the affidavit purporting to involve him. The Lieutenant Governor said it would be wholly improper for him to make any statement relating to the charges. He did, however, reiterate a former statement to the extent of saying he would have no difficulty in showing his whereabouts on dates which it was alleged were mentioned in the affidavit.

NO 80-CENT BROOKLYN GAS.

Appellate Division Orders Commission to Fix a New Rate.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court handed down a decision yesterday upholding the appeal of the Kings County Lighting Company from an order of the Public Service Commission fixing the rate at which it should supply gas at 80 cents per thousand cubic feet. The court ordered the commission to fix a new rate in accordance with the terms of its decision.

In fixing the rate the Public Service Commision valued the property of the company at $2,400,000 and decided that a fair rate of return from the property should not exceed 7½ per cent. The company contended that its property was worth at least $4,400,000, or at least $2,000,000 more than the commission's appraisal. The commission had deducted nearly $500,000 a year from the value of the company's plant for depreciation, and the company insisted that it had a right to return its plant at its full cost because of its showing 100 per cent. efficiency and on evidence that the efficiency of the plant was unimpaired.

The Appellate Division commented on the fact that the company had offered to give a 95 cent rate to its consumers, and observed that the commission might fairly have adopted this rate.

J. S. KENNEDY ACCOUNTING.

Marked for Decree by Surrogate—To Settle Dividend's Status.

Surrogate Fowler marked for decree yesterday the accounting made by the Trustees, created under the will of the late John S. Kennedy, thus giving those interested in the estate the privilege of filing objections at any time within eight days. The application for this action was made by John L. Cadwalader, as attorney for the residuary legatees, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Presbyterian Hospital, and the New York Public Library, and the law firm of Nash & Jones for Columbia University, also a residuary legatee.

The attorneys brought the case before the Surrogate on a question whether an extra dividend declared by the Standard Oil Company, after its dissolution, should be classed by the Trustees as a part of the income or of the corpus of the Kennedy estate. If this extra dividend should be classed as a part of the principal it would pass to the residuary legatees, but as income it would be paid to the life tenants of the trusts.

West Virginia Governor Confiscates Socialist-Labor Paper.

HUNTINGTON, West Va., May 9.—W. H. Thompson, editor of The Socialist and Labor Star; Elmer Rumble, a reporter, and R. M. Kephart, George Gillespie, and F. M. Strum, all connected with the paper, which was confiscated at 2 o'clock this morning by the military under orders from Gov. Hatfield, were taken to Charleston late to-day by National Guard officers and placed in jail.

An attack upon Gov. Hatfield in connection with the coal strike troubles of Kanawha County, under martial law, recently printed in the Socialist publication, caused the raiding of the plant and the arrests. The warrant authorizing the military to take the men into custody does not provide that they be brought to trial, but orders that they be arrested and confined in the county jail as long as necessary or until further orders from the Governor. The men left for Charleston without protest and without making an appeal to the civil courts.

The Labor Argus at Charleston was seized under like circumstances last week and the editors jailed.

RICE JOINS DOUST.

Second Australian Tennis Player Arrives, Third Expected To-day.

Horace Rice, a member of the Australian tennis team to play for the Davis cup, arrived in New York yesterday and joined Captain Stanley N. Doust, who reached the city on Thursday. A. B. Jones, the third member of the team, is expected here to-day. The three players will go to Philadelphia early next week to play a series of exhibition matches.

Capt. Doust, after a conference with Rice, journeyed to the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, where the Davis cup preliminaries will be played. For two hours he engaged in hard practice with H. H. Hackett, Gustave F. Touchard and other players, but no attempt was made to keep any score.

The Australian Captain showed improved form over his previous day's work. His service is slow compared with that of the Americans, but he is accurate in his strokes and shows considerable skill in placing. It is generally admitted that when he becomes familiar with American grass courts he will prove a formidable opponent to down.

WRENN AND LARNED LOSE.

Tennis Cracks in Round Robin Tennis at Tuxedo Club.

Special to The New York Times.

TUXEDO PARK, N. Y., May 9.—A large and fashionable crowd witnessed the opening matches in the annual round robin invitation lawn tennis doubles on the courts of the Tuxedo Tennis and Racquet Club this afternoon. Harold H. Hackett and Raymond D. Little easily defeated William J. Clothier and Charles T. Watson, Jr., two straight sets and Robert D. Wrenn and William A. Larned were defeated by A. S. Dabney and Nathaniel Niles.

Some of the finest lawn tennis witnessed this season was brought out to-day by the Wrenn-Larned and Dabney-Niles match. Each good play was applauded by the spectators. The courts were in splendid condition and although the weather was a bit chilly it had no effect upon the crowd.

The surprise of the day was the defeat of R. D. Wrenn and William A. Larned of Tuxedo by the Boston team, Niles and Dabney. The Bostonians won the first set easily, the second went to the Tuxedo pair, the third set was nip and tuck all the way and finally went to the Bostonians.

The gallery included many of the expert lawn tennis players of the country. The summary:

FIRST MATCH—FIRST SET.

Niles and Dabney	1 0 0 1 1 1 1 1—6
Wrenn and Larned	0 1 1 0 1 0 0 0—3

SECOND SET.

Niles and Dabney	0 1 1 0 1 1 0 0 0—4
Wrenn and Larned	1 0 0 1 0 0 1 1 1—6

THIRD SET.

Niles and Dabney	1 1 1 0 1 1 0 1—6
Wrenn and Larned	0 0 0 1 0 0 1 0—2

SECOND MATCH—FIRST SET.

Hackett and Little	1 1 0 0 1 0 1 1 0 1—7
Watson and Clothier	0 0 1 1 0 1 0 0 1 1 0—5

SECOND SET.

KOLEHMAINEN FAVORITE.

Finnish Runner Will Be No. 1 in Road Race To-day.

With a field which will size up in numbers as the largest which ever engaged in a footrace through city streets or under any other conditions, the annual "modified" marathon, under the auspices of The Evening Mail, will be held this afternoon, with the course reaching from Fordham Road and Jerome Avenue, in the Bronx, to City Hall Plaza, an estimated distance of 12⅝ miles.

One thousand five hundred nominations have been made for the contest, for which a multitude of prizes will be awarded to both individuals and organizations. Chief of those who will start will be Hannes Kolehmainen, Irish-American A. C., who is favorite, and who has been the sensation of the footracing world since his wonderful showing in the Olympic games in Stockholm last year, when he swept the boards in the distance events.

Eight of the dozen men who carried the American shield in the Olympic marathon will be in the line-up when the army is sent away at 1 P. M. There will be team prizes for athletic clubs, Catholic Athletic League, Church Athletic League, Recreation Centers, high schools, and many other organizations aside from the individual trophies and time prizes.

Kolehmainen, who will wear the figure 1, will make the attempt to displace every record now held at the intermediate distances. He will make a special effort to eclipse the course record of 1 hour 8 minutes 28 2-5 seconds, now held by Louis Scott, for which feat he or any other of the runners will receive a one-hundred-dollar gold watch. The club prize is valued at $250, and was awarded last year to the Pastime A. C.
